Davis Urges U. S. Preparedness Here

Today

Coolidge, He Knows.
Many Would Gaily Cancel.
The Dole Bogey.
Russia and Religion.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

SOME TIME ago on the Mayflower, with President Coolidge, Secretary Kellogg, Gen. Pershing and your narrator on board, someone quoted George Harvey's suggestion that President Coolidge send a commission to London to "discuss Europe's debt to us." Calvin Coolidge looked up from his plate and settled the question. Said he:

"They came here to borrow the money. Why can't they come here to talk about it?"

ONCE MORE, in his article published yesterday in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, the Chicago Herald and Examiner and many other newspapers, Calvin Coolidge "talked sense" concerning foreign debts.

If you haven't already read what he said, read it now:

"What is involved in the argument that the (European) debts should be canceled to increase trade? Fundamentally this means the most enormous subsidy to foreign commerce that was ever proposed.

"This has a strange sound in the vocabulary of those who advocate that trade should be free and unrestricted. We would be involved in subsidizing the trade of foreign people out of money collected from our own people.

"If this policy is to be adopted, if our taxpayers are to be paying the taxes of foreign people supposedly in order to increase their power to trade with us, there is no reason to limit the process to those who happen to owe our government.

"The principle would require a broader application. It would be logical to select all countries where an argument could be made that if our treasury would bear a part of their tax burden they might enlarge their commerce with us.

"If we adopted this principle, logically, we should open our treasury to all the world."

IF YOU KNOW President Coolidge, your imagination can see the expression in his gray New England eye as he wrote those words. Every American ought to remember them, and remember that the treasury of the United States is an American institution, not an international charity organization.

MANY INDIVIDUAL Americans would welcome cancellation of their debts to brokers, banks, stores, mortgage lenders, as a step toward prosperity. But, that isn't done.

Our European friends should read again President Hoover's statement that the world's expense preparing for war is five and a half billion dollars every year. If Europe would resolve to stop international murder and discontinue her war expenses, she would save in three years more than she owes us.

GREAT BRITAIN is worried, "staggered," by the cost of the dole. It runs up now to $500,000,000 of our money a year. That is too much if spent unnecessarily. But it is a small sum if the spending prevents serious revolution.

England preferred sending money to the continent financing the fights of others in Napoleon's time, to going over and fighting on her own account. When the peace was ripe for picking, she went over and picked it at Waterloo.

WITH THE question of unemployment dangerous in Great Britain, that rich country prefers to spend half a billion feeding the people rather than pay the cost of a revolution.

As it is, having the Labor party in power is revolution enough, for the Tories. And if a country can afford 20 billions for an external war, it can afford some money to prevent dangerous dissatisfaction at home.

WE MAY COME to realize that even in this blessed land, we can't solve a great problem by handing money to Y. M. C. A., Red Cross or Salvation Army, with a request to hand "whatever is left after the overhead" to the needy.

WALTER DURANTY says bolshevism is "a new and excessively militant religion." Mrs. Clarence Warren, on the contrary, says the Russians have abolished God and offer no substitute for God. She says:

"They have tried to destroy spiritual hope as they have destroyed earthly hope.

Also she says:

"Russia is the most immoral country I ever entered, and I have been through most European countries."

The lady, whose portrait looks highly intelligent, must have seen a great deal in a short time.

ONE THING is sure, giving up the outward forms of religion is dangerous, if you want religion to continue as an important institution.

Samuel Johnson, who knew it, said in his "Life of Milton."

"To be of no church is dangerous. Religion, of which the rewards are distant, and which is animated only by faith and hope, will glide by degrees out of the mind unless it be invigorated and reimpressed by external ordinances, by stated calls to worship, and the salutary influence of example."

MRS. WARREN also says:

"There is no laughter left in Russia and nobody smiles. All know that the people were far happier under the Czar, but none dares to say so. Those who do, die."

A terrible condition, which

MURDER SUSPECT HERE BREAKS JAIL

DAVIS ADVISES PREPAREDNESS BY U. S.

Strong Defense Assurance Against War, He Says; Awards Hearst Trophy

United States Senator James J. Davis made a fervid plea for national preparedness today as he presented the William Randolph Hearst trophy and medals to members of Carnegie Tech's R. O. T. C. rifle team before a crowd which lined the walks about Tech campus for more than two blocks.

He also delivered a scathing attack against American-owned industries in foreign countries, accusing them of "sniping" the nation's protective tariff.

The presentation of the awards marked the third time that Carnegie Tech riflemen have won third place in the section competition of the Hearst national tournament.

PRAISES STUDENTS

Praising the students for the accomplishments, Senator Davis said:

"You are acquiring proficiency as marksmen and sharpshooters, not as a threat against any other nation, but rather as a matter of national self-defense.

LAUDS HEARST STAND

LINER AGROUND IN FOG FREED

NEW YORK, May 8.—(AP.)—The Cunard liner Berengaria ran aground in Gravesend Bay today and tugboats and Coast Guard cutters worked nearly three hours before she was finally freed.

The liner, inbound from Southampton with 468 passengers, ran into the mud in the heavy rain and fog. The Coast Guard cutter Seneca came alongside immediately to take a hawser, but it parted under the strain. A second line to the Seneca, with tugs nudging at the Berengaria, brought her off.

2 Prisoners Blind Trusty, Flee Jail

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., May 8.—(INS.)—Two escaped prisoners who "jumped" the county jail after flinging pepper into the eyes of a trusty and threatening a keeper with a revolver were sought today.

The escaped prisoners were William H. Harkins, of Memphis, Tenn., and Fred Santos, 17. Joseph Vanderveer also tried to escape, but became wedged in a window.

Dr. Diller Indicted On Dope Sale Charge

Auto Dives Through Roof

An automobile, being backed from a Rook street garage, today plunged over a 200-foot hillside, landing on the roof of a house at 24 Kirkpatrick street.

David W. Jones, 40, a Negro, of 100 Rush street, driver of the car, is in Mercy Hospital. Physicians said he was not expected to live.

His companion, Fred Jabour, 21, of 51 Fullerton street, was injured slightly, doctors said.

When the car, after two somersaults, struck the roof, the second floor ceiling collapsed and crashed down on the bed which had been occupied 10 minutes earlier by Michael Manion, 68, whose home it was.

CITY GETS COAL RATE SETBACK

Pittsburgh and Ohio coal producers suffered another defeat today when a special examiner for the Interstate Commerce Commission recommended that the petition for a revision of freight differentials on coal shipped to lake ports be denied.

Pittsburgh operators stated today that the recommendations of examiners to the commission are not necessarily final.

Until the commission definitely affirms or reverses the examiner's report, no further steps can be taken by local coal interests.

The petition was brought by Ohio coal operators. Pittsburgh producers later joined in the petition. The commission was asked to reopen the lake cargo coal case and to grant more favorable freight differentials to northern coal producers in competing with West Virginia and Kentucky fields for lake business. At present Pittsburgh's rate is 35 cents a ton lower than that of the West Virginia fields.

'Apple Vets' Quit Chicago's Streets

CHICAGO, May 8.—(AP.)—The "apple vets" are moving on. Capt. John Horan, of the loop police district, reluctantly gave orders clearing the sidewalks of the unemployed World War veterans who have been selling apples from curb stands since last fall.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, May 8.—(AP.)—It was reported here that heavy patrols of mounted police have been stationed in the Calle Florida at Buenos Aires, where the political situation was said to be developing along grave lines.

MRS. PINCHOT FACES WOMEN FOES HERE

Clash Expected Over Effort To Win G. O. P. Council For Governor's Policies

Mrs. Gifford Pinchot and Mrs. Worthington Scranton, high in the circles of the Pennsylvania Council of Republican Women, political enemies of long standing, faced eath other today at the annual regional conference in William Penn Hotel.

Mrs. Pinchot's first thought was of the bitter fight her Governor-husband is waging in the State Legislature to abolish the Public Service Commission and she expected, if given the opportunity, to force the women's council leaders to indicate in no uncertain terms their approval or disapproval of Gov. Pinchot's policies.

CLASH EXPECTED

Rumors are that Mrs. Pinchot is to aim her attack particularly at Mrs. Scranton, national Republican committeewoman, who thus far has not indicated her position in the heated controversy at Harrisburg.

Although Mrs. Pinchot does not stand alone in support of her husband's policies, she was surrounded at the meeting by numerous political enemies, and such a move was expected to result in a display of open hostility.

"COOL" NOD

When Mrs. Scranton and Mrs. Pinchot met on the confidence floor this morning, a nod scarcely perceptable was exchanged between them and later during an address Mrs. Scranton in which she declared that the women had elected President Hoover in 1928

Williams was taken to the sheriff's office to be held until he had posted a $2,000 bond guaranteeing the temporary alimony of $250 a month asked by his wife.

Nevada's in Union But There Isn't Any Union There

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

About $20 worth of that Reno, Nev., divorce philosophy.

The state is in the Union. But there's no union in the state.

Only 20 bills for an ordinary divorce. Five dollars extra for two reliable witnesses.

Divorce filed, fought and decided in six weeks. It's final. If you don't think so we will give you 30 days' guarantee.

Life partnerships are incorporated. But not limited.

When they said let no man put them asunder they forgot to mention the ladies.

Bed and board now means a lower berth to Reno and plenty of cabaret dinners.

Reno is fighting Paris for the divorce business. We are determined to protect this home industry if we have to break up every home in the nation.

A CAPTURED "BAD MAN:" HE CAME OUT FEET FIRST, TIED UP!

INDICT 2 AFTER POLICE SIEGE

NEW YORK, May 8.—(AP.)—The fastest indictment for first degree murder ever returned in Nassau County—26 minutes from the time the grand jury convened until the true bill was voted—named Francis (Two-Gun) Crowley today as the killer of Patrolman Frederick Hirsch on Long Island Monday.

Rudolph Duringer, pistol pal of Crowley, was indicted by the Bronx grand jury for the murder, April 27, of Virginia Brannen, young taxi dancer from Maine.

Crowley and Duringer were captured late yesterday when 200 policemen with guns, axes and bombs, trapped them and Crowley's 16-year-old sweetheart, Helen Walsh, in an apartment. After the exchange of hundreds of shots Crowley was wounded four times and they surrendered.

It was the murder of Virginia Brannen which started the police hunt for Crowley. And it was another dance hall hostess—Billie Dunne—who led to his capture.

Police revealed that on Wednesday, as Crowley with Helen Walsh fled from the most intense manhunt in New York in years, Crowley telephoned Billie Dunne at the Ninetieth street apartment where she had been living. He told her to "get out," that he was bringing "a regular girl" to occupy the apartment.

GREENSBURG CELL BARS SAWED

Youth Wanted in Barbecue Killing Flees With Pal; Crawl Through Long Pipe

GREENSBURG, Pa., May 8.—Louis Zemler, 22, indicted for participation in the Long Run barbecue murder of William G. Weddell, more than a year ago, sawed his way to liberty in the county jail early today. In his escape he was accompanied by Richard Golden, 22, of the North Side, held on a bad check charge. Zemler's home is in McKeesport.

The prisoners, housed in the same cell, sawed its steel netting, dropped eight feet to the corridor and made their way to an air outlet. They sawed a heavy steel bar from the opening into the emergency engine room, which opened onto a street.

FACED ARRAIGNMENT

The escape was effected between midnight and 4:30 o'clock this morning. Zemler, caught in an attempted robbery at New Kensington last February, was scheduled to be arraigned next Wednesday. The prospect of a suspended sentence to permit his trial for murder in Allegheny County is believed to have prompted the escape.

Zemler was indicted March 11, 1930, in Allegheny County for the murder of Weddell, during the holdup February 14, 1930. Two other men, neither of whom has been apprehended, were indicted with him.

BROTHER SHOT

At the time Weddell was killed his brother, Charles, was shot and Carl D. Wisser, brother-in-law of William Weddell, was struck on the head.

Golden was committed to the county jail April 2 on a charge of passing bad checks involving a total of $65 and was not considered a dangerous character. His name did not appear on the trial list for this term, and Warden James M. Keating said he was informed a short time ago by the district attorney's office that Golden would be released upon payment of $65 and costs.

Lewis Fowler said told him he had been drinking and didn't know where he had found the horses.

Mrs. Coolidge Gets Medal, 'Silent' as Her Husband

NEW YORK, May 8.—(INS.)—Mrs. Calvin Coolidge last night proved her sense of humor and challenged some of the renown won by her famous husband for his sustained silence when she made a brief address in accepting the gold medal of the National Institute of Social Sciences here saying:

"I always thought one voice was enough for a family. I've always kept silent myself. As a representative of the home makers of America I accept this award."

Medals were awarded to Mrs. Coolidge, Miss Grace Abbott, Frank B. Kellogg, former secretary of state, and Dr. Richard C. Cabot, professor of social ethics, Harvard, for outstanding social service. Miss Abbott is chief of the United States Children's Bureau, Department of Labor.

The award to Kellogg, who is in Europe, was made in absentia. He received the honor for "social services in advancing the peace movement of the world."

MISSING SCIENTIST RESCUED FROM GREENLAND ICE CAP

SLEDGE PARTY DISCOVERS COURTAULD

International News Service.

COPENHAGEN, May 8.—The dramatic story of Augustine Courtauld's lonely vigil throughout the winter on the Greenland ice cap remained locked in the Arctic wilderness today as the young scientist, alive and well, trekked over the snow toward Angmagsalik with the sledge party that rescued him.

Courtauld, son of a millionaire British manufacturer, was found by a sledge party under H. G. Watkins, leader of the British Arctic air route expedition, in or near the little hut where he had been marooned since last December.

News of his rescue was broadcast to the world by Capt. Albin Ahrenberg, noted Swedish flier, who journeyed to Greenland from Sweden by plane to aid in snatching the young meteorologist from what appeared for a while to be almost certain death.

HUT SIGHTED

Taking off from the base camp of the Watkins expedition near Angmagsalik, Ahrenberg flew northward to the ice cap where Courtauld went into voluntary exile and isolation to spend the winter testing air currents and velocity on behalf of the expedition, whose object was to determine the feasibility of a regular air route across the Arctic Circle.

Ahrenberg reconnoitred over the 7,500-foot-high ice cap and, at a spot 124 miles inland, he sighted Courtauld's hut.

The Swedish airman descended and scrutinized the shack. The missing man was nowhere to be seen. Capt. Ahrenberg reluctantly turned back to Angmagsalik, prepared to report his failure.

COURTAULD SAFE

Ahrenberg sighted the Watkins sledge party a few miles from the site of Courtauld's hut. He saw four men in the party and, knowing Watkins had left Angmagsalik with only two aides, the airman immediately realized his search was at an end.

By means of pre-arranged signals he ascertained that Courtauld was among the number, apparently in good health. Ahrenberg dropped sufficient food supplies to enable the party to reach Angmagsalik in safety, and then advised the base camp by radio of the success of the Watkins expedition.

Under present conditions, it will take Courtauld a week to reach the camp.

FIANCEE CALM

LONDON, May 7.—Mollie Montgomerie, fiancee of Augustine Courtauld, British scientist, displayed no extravagant emotion at the news of his safety. Her pleasure and relief, however, were manifest in her features when she said:

"I am overjoyed."

PENOWA FRAUD TRIAL OPENS

WASHINGTON, Pa., May 8.—J. W. Stephenson, coal mine operator of Penowa, near here, was placed on trial today on charges of fraudulent conversion and obtaining money under false pretense.

It was alleged that Stephenson had agreed with a commissary company at Penowa to permit his men to obtain merchandise and food on credit at the store. He was to take the money owed by the men from their wages and to turn it over to the company, it was said.

The company alleges that he took the money from the men, but failed to turn it over to the commissary. In another case against Stephenson, not yet listed for trial, he is accused of failing to pay his miners $6,000 in wages.

Fireman Commended For Slugging Woman

LOS ANGELES, May 8.—(AP.)—Porterous D. Mahanney, fire inspector, hit a woman on the jaw in a cafe last April 18. Today he held an official citation for "courage, bravery and judgment." His solid right swing quieted Mrs. Bernice Emme, who, police said, had been threatening her husband with a gun.

Note Leads to Man Dead In 2 Feet of Water

A farewell note from his friend of nine years led Martin L. Landis, of 1824 Ohio street, Versailles, to Long Run, where he found the body of Charles Hoffman, 69, who had lived at his home.

Landis, 62, told police that yesterday he went into Hoffman's room, and found him writing on a sheet of paper which he hastily tucked into his pocket. After a brief conversation Landis left and went to Bunola, where he remained three hours. When he returned Hoffman was gone.

Landis and his brother, Henry D. F. Landis, searched the room, and in the drawer of a bureau found a note addressed to Mrs. Mary J. Greff, sister of the Landis'. It read:

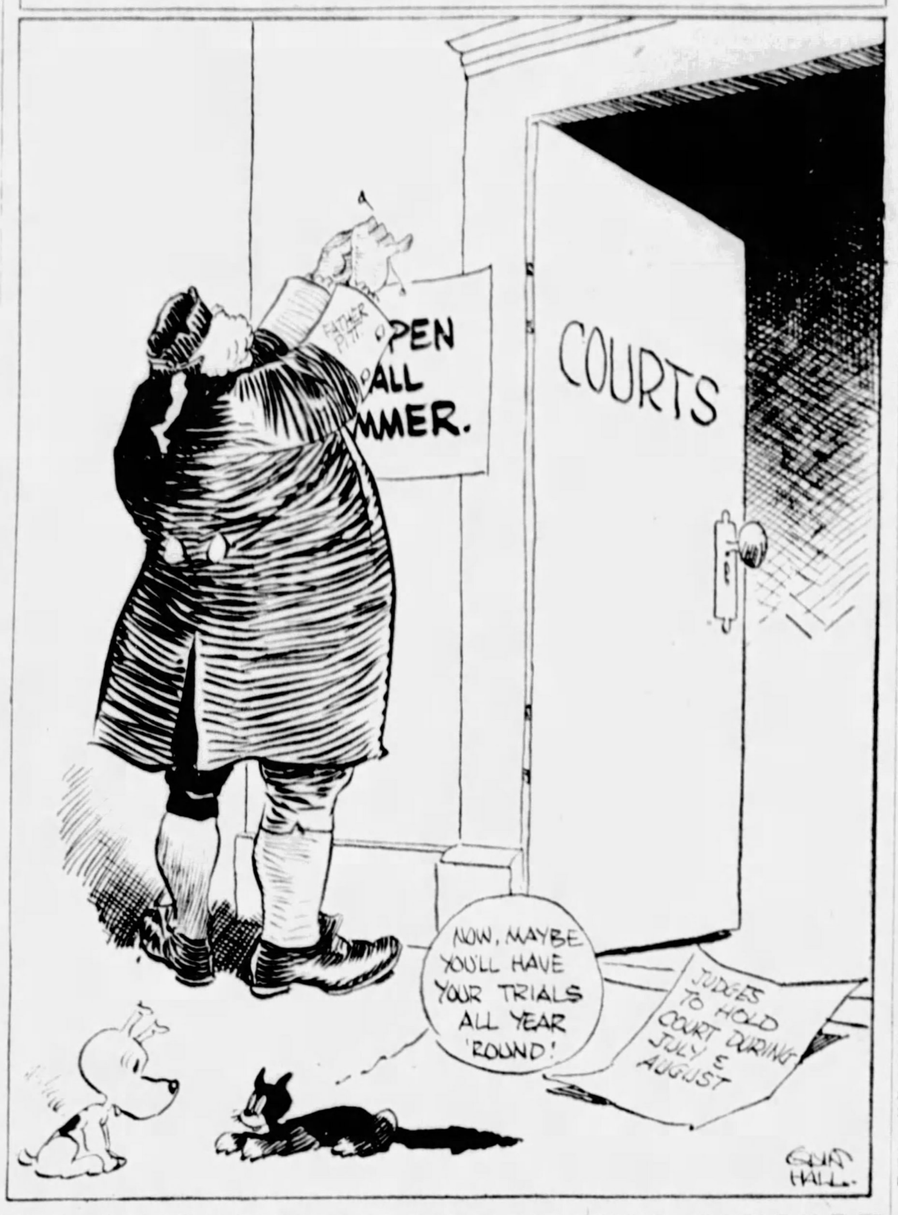
"I will have to thank you for the last time for all that you have done for me, and all the rest of your brothers. This is the hardest thing I have ever done in my life. I would like to write a lot more, but I have made all kinds of mistakes; I got so nervous I just had to quit."

It was unsigned.

Landis began a search for his friend and in the street met the motorman of a West Penn Railways car, who told him Hoffman had left his car a few hours before at the Rainbow Garden stop. The creek is a short distance from the track, and when Landis arrived at the stream he found the body of his friend submerged in two feet of water.

He had been in ill health for some time, police were told.

REAL JUSTICE :-: By Quin Hall



MRS. PINCHOT FACES FOES

and would repeat in 1932. Mrs. Pinchot visibly exhibited her displeasure. Mrs. Scranton predicted that prohibition and the tariff would be the real issues in the 1932 campaign, as it was in 1928. This statement was not to be challenged by Mrs. Pinchot, she indicated, but during her talk she said she would adhere to an attack upon the Public Service Commission.

Senator Daniel O. Hastings, of Delaware, predicting the return of prosperity within a year, scored Democrats and Republicans alike for holding President Hoover responsible for the depression. He forecast the re-election of Mr. Hoover, adding:

"If for any reason, Mr. Hoover should not be available as a candidate for 1932, it would, in my judgment be a crushing blow to the Republican party and a sad thing for the country as a whole."

SEES TARIFF ISSUE

Senator Hastings did not share the views of Mrs. Scranton that prohibition will be an issue in the forthcoming campaign. Tariff and farm legislation will be the real issues, he said, and added:

"We shall not urge amendment to the federal Constitution as part of our platfrom and we shall not let Tammany Hall name the next president of the United States."

Many figures prominent in Pittsburgh's political life, some of whom aspire to election this fall, converged upon the assembly late today. Among them were: County Commissioners Joseph G. Armstrong and Charles C. McGovern, Judges James H. Gray and W. H. McNaugher, Ben L. Anderson, secretary to Commissioner E. V. Babcock, and President John S. Herron, of City Council.

The meeting, which adjourned after the luncheon meeting, began with a president's breakfast in the William Penn Hotel. Mrs. John W. Lawrence, vice president of the Allegheny Council, host to the delegates, presided. Other speakers included: Miss S. M. R. O'Hara, of Wilkes-Barre, president of the Pennsylvania council; Mrs. Hannah M. Durham, of Allentown; Mrs. Charles T. Etter, vice chairman of the Republican

Hastings Hits Hoover Foes, Sees Re-Election In '32

Predicting the return of prosperity within a year and scoring Democrats and Republicans alike for the abuse of President Hoover as responsible for the era of depression, United States Senator Daniel C. Hastings, in his address at the luncheon of the Pennsylvania Council of Republican Women, today forecast the re-election of President Hoover.

Senator Hastings added:

"If, for any reason, Mr. Hoover should not be available as a candidate for 1932, it would in my judgment be a crushing blow to the Republican party and a sad thing for the country as a whole."

Tariff and farm legislation will be paramount issues in the forthcoming campaign, according to Senator Hastings, who added:

"When the country is prosperous, it is easy enough to make the people believe that prohibition, regulation of power interests, the World Court, and many other national problems are paramount, but in the midst of economic distress these questions become less important. It is because the tariff and farm legislation have so important a part in the economic welfare that they remain interesting subjects for discussion."

200 New Dry Agents In 3 Largest Cities

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(AP.)—The Prohibition Bureau announced today that 200 of the 500 additional agents authorized by Congress at its last session already have been appointed.

The largest reinforcements have been assigned to the New York, Chicago and Philadelphia areas. The remainder of the 500 will be mobilized after July 1.

Denver Gangsters Renew War, 1 Dead

DENVER, May 8.—(INS.)—Gang warfare flamed anew here today when several gunmen entered the home of Sam Carlino in North Denver, shot him to death and escaped.

First reports of the slaying received at police headquarters said that it was believed gunmen had been imported from the East to accomplish the killing.

Woman Gets Term For Hitting Official

BLOOMSBURG, Pa., May 8.—(INS.)—Pleading guilty to a charge of striking a public official, Mrs. Florence Brown today began an eight months' jail sentence.

Several weeks ago Mrs. Brown was alleged to have struck Poor Overseer Daniel Eckerd, of Berwick, in the face.

MRS. PINCHOT SCORES P. S. C.

Foreseeing the doom of private utility corporations by an aroused citizentry, Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, in a radio address broadcast from WJAS late today, warned that the "high handed" methods of the Public Service Commission would eventually result in government control of public utilities.

Hurling broadsides at Pennsylvania's Public Service Commission, which she described as becoming the "cats-paw of the corporations" and is "worse than useless," Mrs. Pinchot said her Governor-husband's fight for the abandonment of the commission, now in the Legislature, is one of unbelievable bitterness.

Mr. Pinchot does not favor government ownership according to Mrs. Pinchot, who said if government ownership should ever come in America, the utilities "would have no one to thank for it but themselves."

Attempts charged to utilities to corrupt the school system of the state were described by Mrs. Pinchot as "shameful, wicked and un-American."

Building and Loan Here Given Charter

HARRISBURG, May 8.—(INS.)—The State Department today approved a charter for the Fort Pitt Building and Loan Association of Pittsburgh, with a capitalization of $10,000,000.

The incorporators are R. H. Axhelm, W. A. Confer and R. A. Rimmel, all of Pittsburgh.

SMITH UPHOLDS RASKOB PLAN ON DRY LAW

Ex-Governor Urges Decision By People on Rum Trade; Puts Issue to Parties

PRINCETON, N. J., May 8.—(AP.)—The Daily Princetonian today quotes Alfred E. Smith as saying that "both political parties will have to take a definite stand on prohibition in the next presidential election." The former New York governor was quoted as saying in an interview:

"Citizens throughout the country are demanding a prompt settlement of the question."

He reviewed the suggestion of John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, of a supplementary amendment for states dissatisfied with the present situation, saying:

"The chairman of the Democratic National Committee has offered the most important suggestion. This proposed reformation of prohibition entails the unquestionably sound democratic principle of permitting the electorate to determine its own policy. Its leading feature is that it leaves the whole question to be settled by the people."

In another statement appearing in the undergraduate daily, President John Grier Hibben voices his approval of the Crusaders, an organization of young men seeking repeal of prohibition. He says it is an effort "to gain for the United States control of the liquor traffic which will be most responsible and effective."

BAN ON FOKKER PLANES TO END

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(AP.)—Thirty-five Fokker airplanes forbidden to carry passengers may take to the air again shortly with human cargoes.

After several conferences, the Commerce Department Aeronautics Branch, Anthony H.G. Fokker and air transport operators agreed upon a maintenance program for the F-10 and F-10A type planes restricted Monday from passenger service.

Clarence M. Young, assistant commerce secretary for aeronautics, announced the agreement, which he said would involve reconditioning and maintenance of wings and modification of aileron design.

The restrictive order grew out of a Commerce Department investigation of the crash in which Knute Rockne and seven others were killed.

SOLDIERS HALT MINE TOWN DISORDER

Guardsmen Patrol Scene Of 5 Deaths; Terrorized Families Return Home

EVARTS, Ky., May 8.—(AP.)—This little mountain town assumed a military air today as patrols of National Guardsmen were posted at strategic points to guard against recurrence of outbreaks that have cost five lives in the nearby coal fields.

Since the arrival of more than 300 troops, Evarts has been quiet. There were no disturbances reported last night, and families that previously fled their homes, fearing violence, returned. Schools will be reopened Monday. They were closed because parents feared to send their children during the troubled times.

Col. Dan M. Carrell, commanding the guards, conferred with mine workers and operators with a view to ending definitely the disorders in the Harlan County mining regions. He said he has had satisfactory conferences with both factions.

At Frankfort Gov. Sampson said he looked for settlement of all differences.

Coolidge Hails New Era in College Sports

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., May 8.

To the Editor of The Sun-Telegraph:

Columbia University has taken a leading position in relation to intercollegiate athletics. The old system so long in existence has resulted from the conception that such sports were entirely the voluntary and essentially the outside and independent activities of students with which the school had only remote connection. Not the faculty but the students and alumni committee have been in control. This has led to abuses both of commercialism and professionalism. This era of irresponsibility is passing.

Mr. Coolidge

By squarely recognizing that such athletics are a part of the official student activities and putting them in charge of the faculty, under the trustees, a unified control has been secured and the chance for abuses has been much reduced. In supporting these activities out of the college treasury instead of out of gate receipts the entire responsibility for them has been assumed by the university.

Physical culture and competitive team sports are officially recognized as legitimate parts of the educational courses. This will give a new standing and dignity to athletics. The university will no longer appear as an adjunct of the football squad. The training of the body and the mind will be co-ordinated and each stand in its proper relation.

TRAFFIC SNARLED AS STORM CAUSES DAMAGE HERE

LIGHTNING HITS CHURCH CROSS AND FACTORY

Washouts and Landslides Block Streets; Trolley Tracks Covered by Debris

Many washouts, landslides, flooded streets, delayed traffic and interrupted electric light and telephone service were the aftermath today of the season's heaviest rainstorm, which struck the Pittsburgh district late yesterday. Two buildings were struck by lightning. The rainfall reached 1.67 inches, the heaviest in more than a year, according to the weather bureau.

Lighting struck the cross on the top of the Epiphany Roman Catholic Church, at Epiphany and Washington streets, knocking a part of the cross to the ground.

TROLLEYS DELAYED

The roof of the Wiseman Barrel Factory, in Verona street, Braddock, was struck by lightning. The damage was slight, police reported.

Street cars in outlying sections of the county were delayed from 15 minutes to more than an hour because of landslides, railway officials said. Traffic in North Dithridge street, near Bigelow boulevard, was halted when a cave-in occurred.

The most serious street car tie-up was on Braddock avenue, between North Braddock and East Pittsburgh, where a creek overflowed on the street near the stone arch. Debris blocked the routes of Homestead and East Pittsburgh cars and Westinghouse plant "trippers." They were rerouted between 4:30 and 7:30 a. m., while the rails were being cleared.

TUNNEL FLOODED

Rain washed several tons of earth onto the street car tracks between Wilmerding and East McKeesport.

The intersection at Darragh and Aliquippa streets was guarded by police when a cave-in occurred in Darragh street. The paving fell into an abandoned coal mine which had been burning several months.

COYNE BOOSTS CANDIDACY

State Senator James J. Coyne returned from Harrisburg yesterday and continued to build fences in connection with his candidacy for county commissioner, although he has not made a formal announcement.

Coyne has been quoted as declaring he would make his announcement as soon as he obtains the expected approval of Mayor Charles H. Kline. The two are believed to be in close harmony on political matters and it is said the Mayor would insist on the slating of a ticket that will eventually get the city administration's support.

In addition to his apparent following in numerous wards of Pittsburgh, Coyne is setting up organizations in adjoining populous industrial centers and in the residential boroughs and townships.

Text of Davis Preparedness Plea

United States Senator James J. Davis, speaking at the presentation of the William Randolph Hearst trophy and awards to members of the Carnegie R. O. T. C. rifle team today, made a vigorous plea for national preparedness. His address follows:

The American people have always admired "straight-shooters," on the field of battle or sports, and in business, legislative or social activities. Hence, in congratulating you today for your participation in the National Hearst Rifle Trophy Matches, I feel sure I am echoing the acclamation of a marked majority of our national citizenry.

Loyalty to Nation

Your presence here proves your loyalty to our nation and its honorable traditions. You are acquiring proficiency as marksmen and sharpshooters, not as a threat against any other nation, but rather as a matter of national self-defense. America has never engaged in war for conquest of foreign territories, and I believe it never shall wage such warfare.

But, while our nation is sincerely desirous of world peace, it must keep itself prepared to defend itself in the event of an attack by an aggressive nation.

To totally disarm ourselves, as extreme pacifists would have us do, would put our nation in the category of a "Fool's Paradise," and make of us an easy target for the militaristic ambitions of foreign dictators, or warlike nations.

You are united in the grand program of national preparedness, which in itself is one of the greatest assurances against war. Nations and individuals hesitate before launching an attack on another fully able to defend himself.

Praises Hearst

Besides making yourself proficient as riflemen, it might be well for you to heed the creed of Americanism upheld by the sponsor of these meritorious matches, William Randolph Hearst, who, during his long and brilliant career as a newspaperman and publisher has persistently urged our nation to adhere to the policies of sound Americanism as sponsored by George Washington and Abraham Lincoln.

The keystone of peace for America, as Mr. Hearst has repeatedly asserted, is the strict adherence to Washington's warning for the United States to keep itself free from foreign entanglements.

A nation of sharpshooters is the best insurance against foreign aggression. Our forefathers proved this fact in the American Revolution, when our straight-shooting farmers and hunters, who were raw novices in militaristic lore, vanquished the efficient war machine of Great Britain.

Straight shooting is needed in other walks of our national life, particularly in the fields of politics, legislation and tariff protection.

Just now in Washington, economic sharp-shooters are trying to perforate the tariff stockades which protect American industry, the American workmen and the American standard of living. Straight-shooting legislators and economists are answering these tariff snipers.

Much of this protective tariff sniping seems to come from American industries which have established gigantic plants in foreign lands. These plants are equipped with American machinery, but not with American workmen. The wage scales and living conditions surrounding these American plants in foreign lands are far below the standards prevailing in the United States.

What a paradise our markets would be for these plant owners, and what a hades our country would be for our workmen if our protective tariff safeguards were reduced or eliminated!

These tariff snipers, however, are not using solid shot in their assaults in our tariff targets. They are using buckshot fired at random, which they hope may hit many targets at the one time.

In other words, they are not specific in their hue and cry for reduction, or elimination of our protective tariff safeguards. They attack the entire tariff structure, which contains approximately 2,500 items. They decline to specifically name the schedules in their tariff tinkering ballyhoo. (More than 60 per cent of our imports now are duty free.)

Protection Needed

American industry which has no factories in foreign lands, needs protective tariff today as urgently as it ever did. And the workman today needs protective tariff safeguards more than he ever did in the history of our nation.

Our largest export now is American machinery which is installed in foreign factories, constituting a vital factor responsible for the ever growing keenness of world-wide economic competition.

It would be well for the people of these foreign lands if they would also "import" the American newspaper ethics which have done much to elevate wage scales and living standards in the United States. Incidentally, our American papers have profited themselves by upholding this policy.

Generous wage scales in the United States have resulted in greater consumption demands and mass buying power, which reflects itself in ever growing advertising revenues for the American newspapers.

If the newspapers of Europe and Asia would take up the cudgels in behalf of higher wage scales for their workmen and better living standards for their masses, they might find the results as profitable in the long run, as they have proved in the United States.

Markets in Europe

Instead of attacking our protective tariff barriers, the owners of American factories in foreign lands could do constructive, profitable work outside the United States. Let them develop markets in Europe and the Orient.

They could do this by raising the wage scales in their foreign plants, thus automatically encouraging the people of those continents to elevate their standards of living, so that the gap separating foreign wage scales and living conditions with those of the United States may be narrowed, and in time perhaps equalized.

On your own account, do not permit your "straight-shooting" proficiency to end on the target range. Carry the idea into your civic existence.

Pickout the target of professional or vocational aspirations and keep your eyes and mind focused on it. Keep firing away until you have made the "bull's eye" of success.

But, in your quest for economic advancement, fame, or social position, do not forget to be a "straight-shooter" in other lines of duty, which we owe to our country and our fellow man.

upheld by the sponsor of these matches, William Randolph Hearst, who, during his long and brilliant career as a newspaperman and publisher, has persistently urged our nation to adhere to the policies of sound Americanism as sponsored by George Washington and Abraham Lincoln."

Assailing the attacks on protective tariff, the senator said:

"Much of this protective tariff sniping seems to come from American industries which have established gigantic plants in foreign countries.

"The wage scales and living conditions surrounding these plants are far below those in the United States.

"It would create a hades for our workmen in this country if our protective tariff safeguards were reduced or eliminated."

The R. O. T. C. passed in review before Senator Davis, President Thomas S. Baker, of the school; Harry M. Bitner, publisher of the Sun-Telegraph; Col. George E. A. Fairley, national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars; Capt. A. S. Ackerman, commandant of the corps.

PRESENTS TROPHY

U. S. S. CHICAGO AT SEA, May 8.—(AP.)—Alkapone, 7-week-old black billygoat mascot of the cruiser Chicago, was buried with full naval honors.

As the ship passed over the equator a special service was held. Then a squad fired a salute and while seaplanes droned overhead the body of Alkapone was consigned to the deep.

The Chicago is on her shakedown cruise from San Francisco to Tahiti and Samoa. The sea trip proved too much for the mascot.

The highlight of the day's activities was the president's review of the R. O. T. C. and the awarding of the Hearst plaque to the Tech rifle team, which won third place in sectional competition.

Late today 173 seniors were scheduled to be "called" by the 16 honorary fraternities on the campus. Membership in the societies is based on high scholastic standing and campus activities.

RENO, Nev., May 8.—(INS.)—Mrs. John Burns, otherwise known as Lady June Inverclyde and as June Darling, of the English musical comedy stage, is in Reno to divorce his lordship, it was disclosed today.

She filed suit two weeks ago, it was revealed, but the decree cannot be granted until 30 days after papers have been served upon her husband. She said she would charge "mental cruelty."

Liberal Leader Quits in London

LONDON, May 8.—(AP.)—Col. Charles Kerr today announced his resignation as chairman of the executive committee of the National Liberal Federation, emphasizing the growing split in the Liberal party ranks.

In a letter to the federation's president, Col. Kerr said that he was out of sympathy with the majority of the parliamentary party and the party organization in supporting the present government.

Queen Marie Denies Carol Intends to Wed Magda

NICE, France, May 8.—(INS.)—The dowager Queen Marie, "queen mother-in-law of the Balkans," today issued a formal statement on the matrimonial affairs of two of her children, King Carol II of Rumania, and Princess Ileana, which have gained wide public notice during recent weeks.

The dowager queen declared that King Carol now has no matrimonial ties, since Princess Helen is legally divorced from him, but she denied emphatically that Carol will contract a morganatic marriage with Mme. Magda Lupescu, as has been freely reported during the past week.

Princess Ileana's engagement to Archduke Anton of Austria was characterized by Queen Marie as a "case of love at first sight." The date of the wedding, she said, depends entirely upon the decision of King Carol, although June 1 has been mentioned.

The dowager queen's statement was issued to the press through her aide de camp.

Ex-Circus Trainer Fined For Stabbing Elephant

It cost Ollie Phillips, 40, a former animal trainer, $25 today just because he doesn't like elephants.

He told zoo attendants who held him until police arrived:

"I don't like elephants. Anyhow, that's how you make them stand on their hind legs. I ought to know. I used to train elephants in a circus."

Arraigned before Magistrate Charles Papale in East End Police Court today, he admitted the stabbing and confessed that he had been drunk.

Charles Marfi and John Bevilacqua, zoo attendants, testified that Ollie came to the zoo about 3 p. m. yesterday and entered into long conversation with Gloria, the elephant, which he later stabbed, and Mike and Ike, a pair of seals.

Gloria ignored his advances, he said, a fact which apparently enraged Ollie.

Gloria, her wounds so distributed she could neither sit nor lie down last night, was a highly perturbed elephant this morning. Even the arrival of news photographers failed to restore her usual calm and she consistently refused either to be interviewed or to pose for pictures.

5 CHILDREN DIE AS TRAIN HITS SCHOOL BUS

International News Service.

MERCED, Cal., May 8.—While five lay dead, doctors today fought to save the lives of other children and of a bus driver who were critically injured when a school bus was struck by a Santa Fe freight train late yesterday.

Four other children may die, doctors said. Fifteen suffered broken limbs. There were 40 in the bus.

BUS OVERTURNED

J. H. Kregger, driver, allegedly drove through a wigwag warning signal. With a crash that was heard for blocks, the train overturned the bus and dragged it 50 feet.

The death of Muriel Keller, 10, today brought the total deaths to five.

Meanwhile, four investigations into the accident were under way.

The bus was transporting pupils from school to their homes.

W. E. Vicklund, driving behind the bus, told police the wigwag signal was operating and the train was in full view when the school vehicle went on the tracks. He said:

"We could hear the screams of the children and the shriek of the brakes as the engineer tried to stop the train. At least two of the children were thrown through the windows of the bus and fell under the wheels of the train."

WORLD SLUMP CURES LISTED BY LEADERS

International Trade Chiefs Outline Plans to Bring Prosperity to Nations

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 8.

A wholesome program of constructive remedies for restoring prosperity to the world was being formulated today at the sixth congress of the International Chamber of Commerce, with outstanding business men pledging international co-operation in meeting industrial, financial, commercial and agricultural problems.

It appeared certain the congress would recommend the curbing of agricultural overproduction, establishment of easier international credits, rationalization of emigration, reduction of governmental budgets, a truce against commercial restrictions, lowering of tariff walls and promulgation of regional free-trade agreements as steps for ending the world depression. The congress also will recommend an international conference to stabilize silver prices, but will remain silent on the subject of Russian dumping.

Some of the recommendations of the congress, if it follows the advice of its special committees, will be:

Industry

Removal of export and import restrictions and prohibitions wherever possible; international cooperation of banking circles to steer credit facilities into the nation where fresh capital is needed; a gentle hint possibly for the reduction of wages, especially in European nations.

Tariffs

Proposal of a truce against any increase in tariffs and a recommendation for the lowering of tariff duties wherever possible.

Unemployment

Rationalization of immigration to keep the flow of labor into countries where it is needed. There may be a suggestion for the "free migration of men" without "unsurmountable hindrances," which would be a rebuke to the American selective immigration law.

Finance

Recommendation for the reduction of governmental budgets and some measures to overcome the concentration of gold in the United States and France, with a special appeal to bankers to provide easier international credits and an indorsement of the bank for international settlements.

War Debts

Silence, if the American delegation has its way. If the British and German delegations have their way, the congress will suggest study and consideration of a revision of World War debts as a means of ending depression.

Agriculture

A recommendation for the establishment of international agreements, "to organize agricultural production in a manner to avoid unnecessary disturbances of the world's markets through diverse and individual methods."

Aviation

Suggestions for the elimination of red tape in the handling of air mail and in arranging for the landing of passengers on international lines.

HARRISBURG, May 8.—(INS.)—Formal murder charges were lodged today against James Ritter, Marysville, in connection with the death of Mrs. Eleanor M. Wright, of New Buffalo, whose scantily clad body was found on a highway near here eight days ago.

American reporters traveling through Russia with cameras show you photographs of Russian women working with the men, smiling broadly, amazingly powerful. They bring back also photographs of young people apparently enjoying themselves. Perhaps it is all hypocrisy.

STRANGELY, CONCERNING the charge of "slavery in Russian lumber camps," one of the biggest lumber men in this country, head of an old established business, said to this writer last Sunday:

"We have reason to think that conditions in Russian lumber camps are on the average better than in the United States. In any case, workers in our lumber camps earn just enough to live and go on working, so that talk about slavery is rather aimless."

Near Death

Dr. Michelson, 78, famed Pasadena (Cal.) scientist who worked recently with Prof. Einstein, was feared near death today. He's best known for experiments to measure light's speed.

12 MORE WALKS DEFECTIVE

Twelve more sidewalks in the Hazelwood district have been found to be under city specifications, which require a thickness of five inches, J. J. Paine, superintendent of the City Bureau of Tests, reported to Director Edward G. Lang, of the Public Works Department, today.

The walks were laid by the Carcia Construction Company in 1930, the same company which put down the 18 other walks in various sections of the city, 17 of which were found to be under the specified thickness, it was said.

Director Lang has ordered the repaving of all of the walks found defective, it was said, and, although both the contractor and his bondsman have been ordered to begin the work, nothing has been done as yet, it was said.

CITY'S BUYING INSPECTORS SHIFT OFTEN

Supplies Audit Reveals Changes at Rate of Three Yearly; Dual Quiz Speeded

Inspectors employed in checking up the city's purchasing of supplies have been changed as many as three times a year, the dual audit of the Department of Supplies has revealed, it was reliably learned today.

Why these frequent changes were made can only be surmised, but, according to observers, the motives appear to have been political.

AUDIT SPEEDED

The dual probe into purchases has been speeded the last week. Auditors for Controller James P. Kerr, under the direction of Price, Waterhouse & Co., and Main & Co., auditors for the Citizens' Committee, having worked nights during the week. Controller Kerr is anxious to complete the audit promptly. That also is the attitude of the Citizens' Committee.

The audit of the books of L. H. Parke & Co., which had large dealings with the city, has almost been completed, according to word from Philadelphia.

It was also learned that the work done here by Main & Co., has been largely investigation and checking up outside leads. The information obtained is looked upon as valuable. The Main auditors are not expected to complete their work for several weeks.

KLINE APPROVES FUND

Mayor Charles H. Kline has signed on his sickbed the $5,000 appropriation to pay engineers who are to engage in technical phases of the Department of Public Works investigation. City Clerk Robert Clark announced today. The Mayor signed in his room in St. Francis Hospital, where he is recovering from an operation.

Chief Engineer Charles M. Reppert, of the Public Works Department, said he was informed the committee of five engineers appointed by the Engineers Society of Western Pennsylvania would begin work in a few days.

Each member of the committee will be paid $15 per hour, with eight hours to constitute a working day. It is likely the technical investigation will continue about a week before the appropriation is exhausted.

PALMER TOLD TO FACE LANG

I. Charles Palmer, an engineer in the city Public Works Department, was ordered today in a letter by Director Edward G. Lang of the department to appear in Lang's office Monday prepared to defend himself against charges that he was associated with Mike Manella, a city contractor.

Palmer, who has been ill for several weeks, is a director of the West Penn Sand and Gravel Company, of which Manella is the president. It had been alleged that because of his association with the company, he had favored Manella in contracts for public improvements.

Director Lang said that Palmer will be given an opportunity to defend himself at an open hearing in the director's office Monday morning.

PINCHOT WARNS LEGISLATORS OF PRIMARY

Voters Will Have Chance To Give Them 'Ride' If Utilities Measures Fail

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., May 8.—(AP.)—Popular government is on trial in Pennsylvania and "it is high time the people put certain senators and representatives square on the spot," Gov. Pinchot told an audience here today.

Entering the second day of his direct-to-the-people fight to secure passage of the administration's Public Service Commission "ripper" bills, the executive appealed for support to the constituents of State Senator Charles H. Clippinger, of the Adams-Franklin district.

Referring to his intention to call a special session of the General Assembly to consider public utilities legislation if the "fair rate" bills do not pass the Senate this session, the Governor said:

"If the extra session is called, it is extremely likely to come just before the primaries next spring, so that the people will not have time to forget who served them and who did not.

PUT ON SPOT

"Then, if the people put any senator or representative on the political spot and they fail the people, the chance to take them for a ride will follow close behind.

"Nobody can contend that the people are not overwhelmingly in favor of this legislation. They are in favor of it because they understand clearly and they have made up their minds definitely that it will be good for the people if these bills are passed. They want them passed, and, so far as I am concerned, they are going to be given every chance to get them passed.

"Somebody will object that an extra session will cost money. So it will, but if it passes the fair rate bills, it will save the people of this commonwealth 10 or 20 or 30 times as much in a single year as it will cost.

"For what the public utilities are taking out of the people of Pennsylvania yearly over and above a fair return on the money invested is something like $20,000,000, and an extra session would not cost more than a half million dollars at the most.

ASSAILS "GANG"

"Everybody who knows anything about Philadelphia knows that the Philadelphia gang is the handy man of the public utilities, with Gen. W. W. Atterbury at their head. Every man who knows the facts knows that it was the public utilities, with Atterbury at their head, that elected August F. Daix as president pro tempore of the Senate, and everybody knows that if the fair rate bills are beaten, it will be the public utilities, with Atterbury at their head, that are responsible.

"If I am forced to call an extra session, we shall find out again, and even more clearly, who stands for the people and who doesn't."

The Pinchot caravan of five cars drove here this morning from Towanda, where the night was spent. After the meeting here the party left for Huntingdon, where an evening meeting will be held.

Girl Hiker Wearing Man's Clothes Held

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(INS.)—Helen Moore, 28, Lancaster, Pa., was being questioned by police at Hyattsville, Md., today after a policeman noticed she was wearing male clothing. She told them her name and her native city and that she preferred men's clothing "because they were quicker to put on," but would answer no other questions.

Disapproval of the system of blind booking and block handling of films also was expressed.

Another resolution pledged continued support of the Eighteenth Amendment.

SENATOR-ELECT DENIES FRAUD

RALEIGH, N. C., May 8.—(AP)—Josiah W. Bailey, Democrat, made public his reply to the contest of his election to the United States Senate, terming the contest "unfounded and frivolous" and asking that it be dismissed without a hearing.

Bailey denied charges of "fraud and irregularities," made by former Representative George M. Pritchard, defeated Republican candidate, in bringing the contest. He asserted the charges were "insufficient to support an inquiry or a contest."

Pritchard, whom the count in last November's election showed to have been defeated by 113,632 votes, filed the contest near the close of the last session of Congress.

Bailey, in his reply to Pritchard's contest, said that, assuming to be true every allegation of the contestant, each of which is denied, not enough votes would be shifted to change the result of the election.

SHACKLED MAN FOILS HOLDUP

NEW YORK, May 8.—(AP)—Three holdup men were foiled by a handcuffed bookkeeper yesterday, in attempting to rob a diamond firm of gems valued at $450,000. As the robbers made for a safe containing the jewels, the bookkeeper, Samuel Siegal, moved to a nearby desk and, unobserved, pressed an alarm button with his leg, summoning special officers.

Two of the men escaped. A third was captured in Fifth avenue by a policeman when a cab used in flight became jammed in traffic.

The gunmen, apparently familiar with everything except the alarm system in the eleventh-floor offices of Samuel Lenkowsky, diamond importer, entered shortly after noon and handcuffed Siegal, who submitted as he faced two guns and spied a lookout in the corridor. He moved casually to the desk concealing the signal and flashed the call.

18 ALIENS DUPED BY SMUGGLER

BRADENTON, Fla., May 8.—(AP.)—Eighteen aliens, including two women, who said they had been without food and water for two days, were arrested yesterday on Anna Maria Key, near here. They came from Cuba, they told authorities, who plan to turn them over to immigration officers at Tampa.

The aliens were rounded up by a sheriff's force as they wandered into the little town of Anna Maria seeking food. They included Poles, Slavs, Russians and Italians.

Some of the group told officers they had left Cuba five days before. When three days out of that country, they said, they were put ashore and told to look out for themselves as they were in West Tampa. They said the captain of the boat promised to deliver them to Tampa.

AUTO LICENSE FEE CUT URGED

(This is the eighth of a series of articles on proposed changes in the Pennsylvania motor code, now pending before the Legislature. The stories were prepared by the Pittsburgh Motor Club for the Sun-Telegraph.)

Automobile license and registration fees would be revised next year if proposed changes in the state motor code, now before the Legislature, are approved.

Passenger automobiles, remodeled to serve as commercial carriers, would be charged commercial registration fees, with $10 as the minimum passenger registration and $16 as the maximum for commercial cars.

A new classification, requiring a higher registration fee, would be provided for commercial cars having six wheels and three axles.

SECOND KILLED IN RUM WAR

JACKSON, Miss., May 8.—(AP.)—The death toll in a week of rum warfare in Mississippi stood at two today while federal officers in this state, Louisiana and Michigan were rounding up three or four score persons indicted here as the aftermath of a million-dollar airplane-boat-rail-motor liquor smuggling syndicate recently uncovered in New Orleans.

Wales Land, 27, was shot to death by three federal raiders on his farm in Northeast Mississippi yesterday for allegedly resisting arrest. Last week Federal Dry Agent H. L. Verett was slain from ambush in the southern part of the state.

A score of men are already under arrest in connection with the big syndicate through which Canadian distilleries are alleged to have cleared large quantities of liquor through the Gulf of Mexico to inland points.

STORY OF ABUSE WINS DIVORCE

A high school romance came to an end in Common Pleas Court when Judge Sylvester J. Snee granted a divorce to Gladys E. Dingeldein, 25, Hickman road, North Versailles Township, from William D. Dingeldein, 29, Bryn Mawr, Versailles Township. They were married August 11, 1923, when she was in high school, and have three children. He was abusive, beat and choked her, gave her a black eye once and broke a fruit bowl over her head, she testified. She said:

"He chased me out of the house one night, as he had some other woman there. He kept her for a week. He said he didn't want me."

Chinese Bandits Rob Women Missionaries

CHUNGKING, China, May 8.—(AP.)—Bandits operating along island waterways between here and Chengtu yesterday robbed the Misses Marian and Grace Manly, of Ithaca, N. Y., members of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The missionaries were en route by boat from Chungking to Chengtu after having returned from vacation trips to America. They carried medical supplies and instruments worth about $2,100 for the Methodist hospital at Chengtu. They were not harmed and returned to Chungking.

Thousands Swindled In Fake Sweepstakes

NEW YORK, May 8.—(INS.)—Residents of 75 cities throughout the United States and Canada have been swindled in bogus sweepstakes on the last Agua Caliente handicap race in Mexico and the Kentucky Derby, to be held at Louisville on May 16, authorities charged today.

Detectives of the district attorney's office, which investigated the sweepstakes at the request of a large New York bank, said they were convinced that thousands of persons had been robbed of a huge sum.

Final reports of the canvassers will be presented at a luncheon in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium next Thursday.

PARDON BOARD OUSTER URGED

PHILADELPHIA, May 8.—(AP.)—The abolition of the State Board of Pardons was advocated in an address here by Judge Harry S. McDevitt, who declared "Statistics show that the average 'lifer' in Pennsylvania only serves 11 years and eight months before being pardoned."

During his talk last night before the Men's Association of Trinity Lutheran Church, Judge McDevitt asserted that "Any convicted criminal with friends and money can hire a lawyer who can convince the Pardon Board that all courts have made a mistake in finding him guilty."

The jurist maintained that a whipping post in City Hall courtyard and a "devil's island" for "criminals beyond redemption" are two mediums that would curb lawlessness and criminality.

CITY CONCRETE ORDERS PLACED

Contracts for ready-mixed concrete needed for six city improvements, bids of which were rejected twice previously, were awarded today by Supplies Director W. R. Dunlap, at an average savings of 96 cents per cubic yard.

The awards were made to the Marion Coal and Supply Company, George Lanz & Sons, D. J. Kennedy Company and the Ready Mixed Concrete Company, low bidders.

The price ranged from $6 to $11 per cubic yard.

Included in the improvements for which the concrete is to be used are the Lake Carnegie Swimming pool, Nine Mile Run sewer, Magee Playground, Charles Street Playground, Penn avenue street improvement and Pocussett street improvement.

PHILA. APPEALS VOTE MACHINES

PHILADELPHIA, May 8.—(AP.)—Use of voting machines in the mayoralty primary in September and the general election in November in this city was made uncertain when an appeal was taken to the State Supreme Court in the matter of the dismissal by the Common Pleas Court here of suits that the machines contracted for did not conform to specifications.

Machines of the Automatic Voting Machine Corporation, which were submitted to the County Commissioners here, prior to the award of the Poole contracts, are involved in the suit.

Parley Town Ready To Welcome Gandhi

SIMLA, India, May 8.—(AP.)—Preparations are being made here for arrival of Mahatma Gandhi, leader of the Indian nationalist movement, next Wednesday, when he will begin a series of conferences with Viceroy Lord Willingdon.

The two will discuss the date of the second round table conference to be held in England, composition of the various delegations and other kindred matters.

Historic Graves Used for Cards

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 8.—(INS.)—Though historic Grove Street Cemetery, where many of Connecticut's great military, civic and educational leaders are buried, is surrounded by a fifteen-foot stone wall, the barrier is so ineffective that trustees have ordered a five-foot iron fence topped with sharp spikes.

The fence was ordered when it was found that the graves and tombs were being converted into card tables.

Hitler Opposed To Deadly Weapons

BERLIN, May 8.—(AP.)—Adolph Hitler, Austrian, who is head of Germany's Fascist movement, told a crowded courtroom today that he had done everything in his power to prevent the use of deadly weapons by his adherents. He was a witness in the Moabit Criminal Court where four members of his party are on trial for breach of peace and one for attempted murder.

All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

People I've Met

NEW YORK, May 8.

DR. B———. I met him but once in my life. But I don't think I'll ever forget him. Doctors, as a whole, are a strange group. As a guy who grows extremely sickish every time I see a little blood, it is hard for me to understand many of their reactions.

I often go out with doctors—and I find they talk shop as much as newspapermen. And what a gruesome kind of shop! Over a plate of soup or some excellent roast duckling, they discuss the best methods of sawing bones or cutting abscesses. Over the coffee, they talk of a few recent deaths as though that made an excellent dessert.

I learned a long time ago, however, that most physicians are not as brave as their talk would have me believe. When it comes to themselves, most of them are as frightened as a group of old maids. One of the greatest throat specialists in the entire nation has been suffering for years because he is afraid to have his tonsils removed!

But let me get back to Dr. ———. He stepped into my life at a time when I didn't understand the newspaper game quite as well as I do today. If, indeed, anyone could be rash enough to assert that I understand it today. As a matter of fact, I was just a kid reporter who thought he was pretty smart.

Around 3 in the afternoon they slipped me an assignment to cover a story in the West Forties. It wasn't much of a story, and if I should give you an idea of the kind of a star reporter I was. A bartender had been found dead outside the rear entrance to his saloon. It was probably just another drinking. But the office wanted me to make sure.

So up went Mr. Hellinger. When I arrived, I found the owner had disappeared. At the bar were several policemen and reporters, who seemed very well acquainted. They were standing there and drinking. And over in a corner, much to my horror, was the body of the bartender who had brought me all to the spot.

"Have something?" a reporter asked me.

I shook my head. In a few minutes, I ducked out of the joint and took several walks around the block. When I re-entered the place, the boys were still at it. I sat down at a table as far as possible from the corpse and mopped my brow. Here was a sample of the reporting I had always dreamed about—and the whole thing was making me just a trifle ill. (I'm not sure, but I think it was that first experience that made me decide to quit newspaper work and become a columnist.)

An hour passed and nothing happened. I went to a telephone and called my office.

"Hello, Colonel," I said to the city editor. "This is Hellinger. Can I up here . . ."

"That's fine," he said as he cut me up on me. More dejected than ever, I returned to the saloon. Again I sat down at my table.

Suddenly the door opened and a man walked in with a little case in his hand. The reporters remained at the bar. The policemen stepped forward.

"Hello, Dr. B———," they cried.

After hearing him called Dr. B———, I was quite sure the man was a doctor. That much of a reporter I already had become.

"Hello, boys," said the doctor. "What's the matter?"

The patrolmen nodded. The doctor walked over and kneeled beside him. I arose and stepped gingerly in his direction. I was glad the doctor had come. After all, he wasn't a hardened reporter or a policeman. He, at least, wouldn't be so cold-blooded about the situation.

The doctor touched the hand of the corpse. He nodded and looked up.

"He's dead," murmured the doctor pleasantly. "Make mine a beer!" . . .

* * *

MR. AND MRS. JONES. I'm not going to identify them any more definitely in this story because it would only embarrass them.

Living on the outskirts of New York as they do, Mr. and Mrs. Jones have had a very definite servant problem in the last few years. They have had many cooks and none of them was satisfactory.

Some weeks ago, Mrs. Jones talked it over with her husband.

"You know what I've made up my mind to do?" she told him. "I'm going to an employment agency and pick myself a girl who is as dumb as they come. The less English she speaks and the less she understands, the better I'll like it.

"All I want her to do is to understand a little bit about cooking. I'll teach her all the rest. How does that strike you?"

Mr. Jones shrugged his shoulders. Anything would have struck him favorably as long as his wife didn't do the cooking.

When he returned home from business that night, his wife met him at the door in great excitement.

"I've got her," she exulted. "Her name is Ethel and she's in the kitchen right now. She's exactly what I wanted. Cooks like a jewel—but understands next to nothing. She's the dumbest I've ever seen.

"Come on in and sit right down. Honey, how she cooks!"

Every Sunday, a poker and pinochle session begins in Mr. Jones' home. It starts in the early afternoon and doesn't break up as a general rule until 2 o'clock in the morning. As cook and general servant, it was naturally Ethel's job to see that the sandwich plates were filled and to clean up when the guests were departing.

Mr. Jones, even though he never permitted a big game in his home, was the banker for the crowd. It was he who distributed the chips to all players and it was he who paid off on the chips and would take them from him when the visitors had gone.

For three weeks, Ethel watched this chip procedure. After he had paid off on the third Sunday session, Mr. Jones attempted to engage her in conversation. But it was no use. The girl was too dumb to understand anything. The husband shook his head and gave it up.

The following morning, Mrs. Jones awakened him.

"Get up quickly," she cried. "Ethel's gone. She's packed up and left without her wages or anything."

Mr. Jones sat up in bed and blinked.

"Good Lord!" he ejaculated. "And such a wonderful cook, too. Did she steal anything?"

"No," replied his wife. "It's the strangest thing I ever heard. Nothing is missing. She just left."

Mrs. Jones ran from the room to investigate further. In a minute she was back. On her face was complete bewilderment.

"Ethel did steal something," she cried. "All our poker chips are gone!"

EWING ESTATE LEFT IN TRUST

NEW ORLEANS, May 8.—(AP.)—The will of the late Col. Robert Ewing, Louisiana newspaper publisher, probated yesterday, left his estate in trust for 10 years and appointed his son, John D. Ewing, as sole trustee. The will read:

"I know by experience that the policy of a newspaper must be controlled by one man and that power I here lodge in my son, John D. Ewing."

It directed that the four newspapers, the New Orleans States, the Shreveport, La., Times, the Monroe, La., News Star and the Monroe, La., Morning World, be operated by the trustee for the full term of the trust, except that after five years, the heirs were given the privilege by unanimous action to dispose of the New Orleans States.

TWO ACCIDENT VICTIMS DIE

Joseph Dittrich, 31, of 1130 Goettman street, died last night in Mercy Hospital from injuries suffered in a fall a few hours earlier while he was working in a sub-station of the Duquesne Light Company at Forbes street and Craft avenue.

Injuries suffered Tuesday, when he was struck by a crane in the Fort Wayne yards of the Pennsylvania Railroad, caused the death last night in Allegheny General Hospital of John Renni, 67, of 1947 Mountford street, North Side.

FOUR BANDITS LOOT BANK

NEW ORLEANS, May 8.—(AP.)—Four unmasked bandits entered the Mid-City branch of the Hibernia Bank and Trust Company, forced employes and customers to lie on the floor and escaped with $3,420 in cash. It was the third daylight bank robbery here within a week.

The four bandits were unmasked. One carried a sawed-off shotgun and the other three revolvers. They forced a young woman employe to open a door leading back of the cages and took the money and stuffed it into sacks.

As they started to leave, they found the front door had slammed and become locked. One of the bandits crashed the plate glass with the butt of his revolver and the four climbed through the opening and escaped.

SPURIOUS COIN SUSPECT HELD

William Francis Wheeling, alias William Wilson, 20, arrested Tuesday in McKees Rocks for manufacturing and passing counterfeit half-dollars in the Pittsburgh district, was held for court by the United States Commissioner. His bond was set at $2,500.

Wheeling was said to have admitted to W. A. Landvoigt, United States Secret Service operative in charge of the Pittsburgh district, that he had passed the spurious coins in Washington, D. C., Chicago, New Orleans, Birmingham, Cincinnati and other towns.

He was arrested after Sophie Sobeck, manager of a store at 610 Chartiers avenue, McKees Rocks, informed police that Wheeling had passed a fake coin in the store in making a small purchase. McKees Rocks police and city detectives then went to a house in Arch street, North Side, where Wheeling roomed, and said they found there a mould for making coins and 32 spurious 10-cent pieces.

CHICAGO PAPER MARKS JUBILEE

CHICAGO, May 8.—(Universal)—The golden anniversary of the establishment of the Chicago Herald and Examiner will be launched Saturday and continue through a memorable nine-day celebration marking this event of paramount importance in the history of Chicago and in the annals of American journalism.

Chicago will become the capital of American newspaperdom, with famed writers and artists of the Hearst Service present for the anniversary party. They will participate in the All-Chicago Jubilee celebrating civic and commercial progress. It is appropriate that the anniversary of this newspaper and the jubilee should fall within the same week, for the Herald and Examiner was a potent instrument for the fashioning of Chicago's greatness.

A half century has passed since James W. Scott and William D. Eaton founded the Chicago Herald. The Examiner, founded by William Randolph Hearst, entered the Chicago scene in 1902. With announced ideals of "truth and justice" and "public service," it moved steadily, vigorously forward. In 1918 it took over the Herald, and the combined papers became the present Herald and Examiner.

Association Celebrates Birthday

That unique organization, the Pittsburgh Female College Association, celebrated its twenty-fifth anniversary yesterday. When one speaks of the association as unique, the word is used advisedly, for it was formed when the institution from which it took its name was no longer in existence "save through the eyes of memory" (as the association song expresses it), and it is now being maintained purely for the sake of service and sentiment even by the second and third generations.

The celebration yesterday was an especially happy occasion—a beautifully-appointed luncheon in the Hotel Schenley, with 85 members and guests present. Miss Helen Pershing, whose father, Dr. I. C. Pershing, was president of the college from 1860 to 1886, was toastmistress. Her sister, Mrs. W. C. Anderson, who entered the college as a primary student, taught in almost every department and left it as vice president, recalled its early days, and Mrs. C. E. Locke, who was a graduate of the class of 1863, and is now a great-grandmother, was also introduced. Mrs. P. W. Morgan, president of the association, welcomed the guests.

Pennsylvania College for Women, Margaret Morrison College and the University of Pittsburgh, to which the association has given scholarships, were represented by Dr. Cora Helen Coolidge, Dr. Charles Watkins and Dr. S. B. Linhart. Miss Ruth Lieberman and Miss Ruth Brooks, winners of this year's P. F. C. A. prizes at Margaret Morrison, were also among the guests. A pleasing program of songs was presented by Miss Helen Heiner and Mrs. Arthur B. Sivter, both of the "second generation," with Mrs. Herman Ziel accompanying, and as speaker there was the Rev. Dr. Jacob Simpson Payton, named for Bishop Simpson, who was on the board of the college for many years.

Present Program

Dr. Payton spoke of the iconoclasts—"halo smashers," he called them—who attack old Puritan ideals and American ideals. He drew brilliantly witty and ironic comparisons between the old ideas and ideals (and even vocabulary) and those of today, leaving the inference to be drawn by his audience. The smashing of halos will go on from generation to generation, he said, but the ideals and achievements of great men will always stand as their monuments.

DOTTED FABRICS PREDICTED POPULAR FOR SUMMER WEAR

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, May 8.—The sartorial landscape still remains dotted. This will be welcome news for the dot-addicts who prefer this pattern to almost any other for their summer things. Whether or not we are all going to be in print is still a matter for some conjecture, but whatever the verdict may be, it cannot affect dots. Blue and white, black and white, brown and white with dots in contrasting color to the ground of the material are all smart and this style will be found to be the popular one for the proper treatment of the dotted frock. Those who do not like dotted fabrics look upon the continuance of this mode as something of a menace, but it is one of the few fashions that doesn't seem to do itself or anybody else harm by dint of constant repetition. It is a natural summer fashion, most expressive of the season and quite youthful. And that is all there is to it. So, now that we are all agreed that there are really some fashions that popularity cannot destroy, let's all wear dots if we want to this summer.

* * *

WORTH IS ONE of the designers who is responsible for the introduction of dark brown as an evening color. It is a good alternative to the ubiquitous black frock and as such is welcome. The model sketched is of dark brown tete de negre crepe of a very heavy quality. The frock fits very closely over bodice and hips and is embroidered with brown and copper beads and sequins. Heavy falling drapery at front and back in set-in panels give a graceful and classic line. Something very new is the belt of leopard fur. With this lovely dress, brown satin sandals with a medium heel and single diagonal toe strap are worn. This type of sandal is shown with many of the Worth evening gowns, and are worn on bare feet. Reversing the usual order of things, it is the hands which are covered, as long colored suede and kid gloves are shown with nearly every model.

* * *

SCOUTS TO PLAN TRAFFIC COUNT

More than 500 Boy Scouts will attend the first traffic count instruction session tomorrow morning in the William Penn Hotel. The scouts are from Troops 1 to 75 of Allegheny Council West.

The program includes distribution of count forms and instruction sheets. The boys will be given carefare, lunch money and written excuses to permit them to be absent from school the day of the count, Thursday, May 21.

The other 600 scouts who are to take part in the survey, members of troops higher than 75, are to attend a similar rally the following Saturday.

When Good Fellows Meet

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Short argument between Mr. Shouse and Mr. Fess.

"Don't make such a terrible Fess.

"Aw, go Shouse yourself."

"Did you call me a liar?"

"Not yet."

"My apologies are based on facts."

"But your information ain't."

"I never said it."

"And if you did say it I deny it."

"I hope you become father-in-law of the Dolly Sisters."

"Why don't you go out and come back right?"

"No, thanks, I am not merging with any apple salesmen."

"My distinguished contemporary is a bum."

"Both of us might as well start even."

"He practiced that speech in front of a mirror and wore a disguise at the time."

"What does he think with? Did you ever see anything in a vacuum tube but vacuum?"

"I'll sue. The only time a man can call me a liar is during a presidential year."

"He needs three sessions to vote once. And then they don't count it."

"If I said anything I'm sorry for, I'm glad of it."

"Yeah, that's when you were frostbitten."

"How about a little snifter? Right off the boat."

"Okay, old pal, pardon my rough language. I thought I was home."

GROUP TO STUDY AUTO TOWING

The car-towing proposal now before council and the proposed widening of Fifth avenue from Craft avenue to Clyde street were among the problems considered at a meeting of the Better Traffic Committee yesterday. The committee also discussed revisions in the state vehicle code, improvement of the wharves, areas in which parking at night is permitted without lights; and proposed no-parking ordinances. Frank L. Duggan, chairman, presided.

Duggan appointed a committee of eight to study plans for the towing and impounding of illegally parked machines. This committee, of which Edward B. Lee is chairman, was to meet today. A report is to be submitted to City Council Monday.

ELLWOOD CITY FACES TROLLEY LOSS

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

Those subscribers who couldn't live without reading these Sidewalks each evening will have to succumb for the next two weeks because its author! author! is already on his vacation . . . In Munhall and Homestead the unemployed are solving their problems by painting private mail boxes at 10 cents a box . . . On the back of those baseball blouses which Gus Greenlee, the Hill politician, bought for the Crawford baseball team, is printed, "J. J. COYNE FOR COUNTY COMMISSIONER," which is certainly an indication as to how Gus feels about it . . . According to Edwin A. Rowland, of the Mellon Bank Club, the club members are putting on dramatic skits simply to practice up their smiles so that when they become officers of the bank they'll be able to refuse loans with a smile . . . Squire Shafer, the elderly gentleman who got such a kick out of being held up on a street car on the Hilltop, told reporters about it for an hour, then turned to the missus and said, "Hey, there, Mrs. Shafer, how about my lunch?"

William Pfarr

* * *

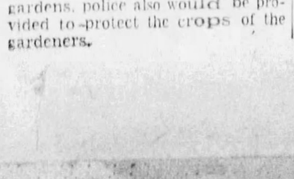
pint of whisky on the floor of a big downtown movie palace Tuesday night during a trombone solo . . . And the bottle smashed, and the stuff ran all over the place . . . Dave Harmon, who has reorganized his band again and is getting some good jobs, came to town for a few days' visit with his bride, a Southern gal . . . He's on his way to a hotel job in Milwaukee . . .

* * *

Milt Crandall? . . . He's still in Cleveland, doing promotions for RKO Theaters and remembering the days when his dance marathons in Pittsburgh and New York had the customers in the aisles . . . And here's a new Crandall stunt which never succeeded: . . . It was about the time Judd Gray and Ruth Snyder were to be electrocuted, and there was so much talk about a state taking a woman's life . . . Crandall's idea was for the executioner, Robert Elliot, who also pulled the switch on Irene and Dague, to faint just before he turned on the electricity, crying, "I can't kill a woman" . . . Then, Crandall planned, he would send Elliot around the country lecturing to women's clubs on "Why I Would Not Take a Woman's Life" . . . But, although he would have made himself a young fortune, the idea failed to attract Mr Elliot.

* * *

That elderly woman who wears only tatters can be seen again on the downtown streets, now that warmer weather's here . . . Ripley's been asking about her . . . The legend is that she's been wearing her wedding dress ever since her fiance died a day or two before the wedding years and years ago . . . And it's not so that she's wealthy, but she doesn't ask for aid . . . Idea for a radio skit: The conversation of two people listening to a terrible radio program . . . It looks like Abe Martin isn't dead after all . . . It was Abe who said prohibition was better than no liquor at all . . . But that wise saying was credited, so a reader reports, to a local master of ceremonies on an advertising poster a week or two ago . . . Lamentation: It doesn't seem like spring with the Homer Smith gone . . . And why hasn't somebody written a song glorifying buttermilk? What? You have! . . .



A flock of all-nighters are homeless since Childs restaurant closed for the summer. . .

* * *

Well, Well! . . . Pete Walsh, the head cop, told his force to seize every slot machine they could find . . . And the poor force went out and looked around and said they couldn't find any . . . And that's too bad . . . Pete had to go and start looking for slot machines just when every single one's been put under cover—they've been under cover since the so-called food probe started . . . And the fact had been printed at least a half-dozen times in the papers before Pete issued his orders . . . If those Fourth avenue bookies can't beat the charge that they wouldn't pay off a $10 parlay (which was run up to $500), they'll find a tough time getting started again . . .

Munhall to Provide Land for Gardens

Munhall Council will turn over to the unemployed of the borough a large tract of borough owned land along the West Run road. Council decided last night that in addition to offering the property to the unemployed for making gardens, police also would be provided to protect the crops of the gardeners.

5 HURT IN FIRE IN OAKLAND APARTMENTS

2 Rescued as $8,000 Blaze Routs Families; Woman Recovers $1,200 in Ruins

Five persons were injured when a two-alarm fire caused damage estimated at $8,000 to the Lafayette Apartments, 3530 Louisa street, late yesterday.

The fire started in a rubbish heap in the basement and spread rapidly up through the walls to the third floor of the building. Occupants of four of the six apartments and of six apartments in the Cambridge Apartments, at 3526 Louisa street, adjoining, were driven to the street.

Mrs. Pearl McCoy Bickle, a Negro, daughter of the janitor of the two buildings, was carried by firemen from the Cambridge Apartment basement, overcome by smoke. She was reported recovering in Mercy Hospital today.

Mrs. J. T. Wallace, apartment No. 4 in the Lafayette Building, affected by smoke, was helped to the street by Rudolph Hammer, 7075 Olivant street, a carpenter working in the neighborhood when the blaze broke out.

Mrs. Grace Malin, of the Cambridge Apartments, was helped to the street by neighbors. She had been confined to her home with a sprained ankle.

Mrs. Andrew Close, of the Lafayette Apartments, recovered $1,200, hidden under a mattress in her flat, after the blaze subsided.

Damage of $8,000 was estimated by Deputy Fire Chief Frank Jones.

SIFT RECORDS IN WATER LOSS

Plans for a suit to recover approximately $350,000 for lost water from the city's pipe line to Herr's Island hinge on an extended investigation of old agreements of the former city of Allegheny with occupants of the island, Engineer James H. Kennon, of the City Bureau of Water, said today.

The investigation will take several days, Kennon said.

In the meantime, the Bureau of Water was awaiting a report from companies occupying the island as to the fire protection they needed in the future.

City mains leading to the island have been shut off, but an attendant has been stationed at the gate valve to divert water to smaller pipe lines in case of fire, Kennon pointed out.

"Loss" of the water was discovered by a special pitometer survey ordered by the Water Bureau when Kennon became suspicious of "leaks."

SEEK TO BRING 'COUNT' HERE

Extradition of Lawrence C. Bingham, who, police said, gave worthless checks to hotels and department stores while posing here as a count and a colonel of the Czecho-Slovakian Army in 1929, is to be asked of Gov. Roosevelt, of New York, tomorrow.

Frank Terris, lieutenant of the city homicide detective squad, left for Albany today to present the extradition request.

The "count" will leave Blackwell Island prison Sunday after serving time for an offense similar to the one he is to face here.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

John G. Rarick has made millions as a chain store operator. His wife, Jenny, shortly after their marriage, lent him $2,500, all she had when he was near failure, and out of this money he built riches. But Jenny resents his far from imposing appearance and no longer feels real love for him. She plans the social education of their children, Jennifer and Avery. The thought is always in her mind that without her $2,500 Rarick would have achieved nothing.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

(This famous story has been made into a talking picture by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer with Marion Davies in the leading role.)

In Jenny's mind, Rarick had not even succeeded in being educated to greatness. He was like a man who, at 50, still spends most of his time reliving his college days. He had not gone on in spirit.

The pea had not grown with its pod. Jenny had, mark you that! Breeding will tell. Her maternal forebears had been Piexottos who had settled in St. Louis as early as Pierre Laclede. You could not come of that kind of colonizing stock and not know how to meet success with the same kind of indomitability with which they had met adversity. Jenny spoke frequently of her colonizing ancestors.

What was it that this man, her husband, lay there wanting, even in his sleep? What were the citadels behind those closed lids of his, upon which shone some secret inner sun of his private own? Was he inscrutable or just inadequate? The smallish young man who had fascinated her way back there, with his inchoate desires that had never entered the heads of the sons of the St. Louis businessmen who had milled about the wealthy-in-her-own-name, Miss Avery, had remained a sophomore on the campus of that youth.

He had what he wanted 10 times over, but in the 40 times had missed but once.

But was it desire behind those closed lids, or just a gnawing frustration?

She had seen the glance of this allegedly great little man, her husband, follow many a time the living, flowing line of a beautiful woman's body, but with much the appraisement with which he was fond of observing, in its glass case, a fine example of a wooden statuette of the Virgin of San Domingo in his North American collection, one of whose breasts was studded with a turquoise-incrusted marine clam shell.

There was no telling.

Wants Costly Mansion

Little man, you, I think I hate you. He must telegraph bid on the Ficke house. He must! He must! He must!

If anyone had told Rarick on the morning of the day he wired the sealed bid on the Ficke house that before his sun set on another afternoon he would be owner of $2,500,000 worth of mortar-stone lace and Italian Renaissance facade flanked by two famous Grecian urns which guarded a pair of doors, superb copies of the Campanile doors in Florence, he would have listened to it with that polite third ear of his which enabled him to appear attentive to the discourse of another while thinking of something entirely removed. A quality, by the way, which was to win and sustain him the reputation of being a canny and silent listener.

"Sooner or later, Rarick, the move is inevitable. Wire your bid today!" The phrase beat against his brain as if it had been there all night, and yet with his conscious mind he had forgotten it. That room in which he slept was always beating with repetitious little phrases that were Jenny's. Do this. Do that.

Wire what bid? Of course, that had been her last phrase before dropping off to sleep. Ding. Dong. Here it was again. "Sooner or later the move is inevitable. It is Providence that the Ficke house should be on the market just at this time."

"My home is here."

"You have the opportunity to live in one of the most beautiful homes in America. Do you realize that you are rich enough to buy the home of the man who endowed the Metropolitan Gallery with the Ficke Collection? I have been phophesying for the six months, ever since the death of Emanie Ficke, that the house would come on the market. Don't be all kinds of a fool.

McKeesport Man Suicide by Stabbing

Rade Toldanovich, 57, of 506 White street, McKeesport, died early today in McKeesport Hospital of stab wounds in his abdomen, believed self-inflicted, according to a report to the morgue. Toldanovich was in ill-health and had been out of work several months.

HINT OWN GANG SHOT 'LEGS'

ALBANY, N. Y., May 8.—(AP.)—The possibility that Jack Diamond was "put on the spot" by his own gang was the problem of the moment today for the state investigators following the trail of racketering in the Catskills.

This possibility was given ground with the discovery of the similarity between slugs taken from Diamond's body after he was shot near his Catskill Mountain home last week and slugs taken from the walls of a barn which the police considered a "Diamond place."

Mrs. Diamond has refused to testify before the Greene County grand jury, which is trying to find out about the gang. Attorney General Bennett indicated he would press contempt charges if she persisted in her refusal.

Farmers Follow Normal Program

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(INS.)—Farmers are going ahead with a normal program of production, despite a number of difficulties that confront them, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics said today in its monthly survey of the agricultural situation. The various changes in crop acreages from last year represent a readjustment in line with price conditions and with greater feed requirements rather than any let-down in the general program.

Forbes Street Man Dies of Gun Wound

Steve Cinik, 34, of Friendly Inn, 1112 Forbes street, died early today in McKeesport Hospital of a gunshot wound in his chest. County detectives say Cinik was shot by John Johnson, Negro, of Large, while the latter was investigating a disturbance in his chicken coop.

Found Unconscious, Taken to Hospital

HARMONY LINE ASKS TO DROP SERVICE

Receiver Petitions Court to Suspend Branches to New Castle, Beaver Falls

Maurice R. Scharff, receiver for the Pittsburgh, Harmony, Butler and New Castle Railways Company, today petitioned Federal Court for permission to discontinue service on the Ellwood City-East New Castle and Ellwood City-Beaver Falls branches of the road.

His petition stated that the road had been operated at a loss since 1923, and that elimination of service on the two branches specified would save the receivers $4,000 monthly.

Service was discontinued between East New Castle and New Castle by the company a year ago.

Judge Nelson McVicar ignored Scharff's request that service be ended at midnight May 29 and set June 4 as a hearing date, at which time objections against granting the petition will be heard.

Judge McVicar ordered Scharff to file notice of his proposed action with the Public Service Commission and with creditors of the company.

Scharff was also receiver for the Butler Short Line, Pittsburgh-Butler interurban service, which was abandoned April 22.

M'GOVERN HITS HALL SITE

Although named a defendant in the taxpayers' suit by Schenley Farms residents, McGovern, by his separate answer, joined in their appeal for an injunction to restrain the purchase of the Nicola site and issuance of bonds to finance acquisition of the

The suit was filed by more than a score of taxpayers representing Schenley Farms, the Ruskin Apartments, Syria Mosque and the Masonic Temple Association. A hearing has been fixed for May 18.

The only denial in McGovern's answer, similar to one of the denials in the answer filed recently on behalf of Commissioners Joseph G. Armstrong and E. V. Babcock, was that the provision in the law requiring all purchases exceeding $300 by the county to be advertised and bids taken. McGovern held that the provision is not applicable to the purchase of real estate.

Wanderlust Hits Tabby, Gets Lost on Trolley

This is the story of a traveling cat, which started back to its former home in Milwaukee via a Brookline street car, only to wind up lost—which it still is—in downtown Pittsburgh.

The cat's name is, or perhaps was, Tikkie.

Saturday night, the spring breezes swept their call of the wanderlust over the boulevard and Tikkie, restless since her arrival, heeded.

She disappeared.

Later, her owner learned that Tikkie had been discovered aboard a town-bound Brookline car and was taken from it at Smithfield street and Sixth avenue by a woman.

Whether the woman still has the cat or whether she merely took it from the car, Mrs. Olfe does not know.

At any rate, she wants Tikkie back. She hopes the woman who befriended the animal will see this and return her—providing Tikkie hasn't boarded a Milwaukee-bound bus by this time.

SCHOOL FAULTY IN OVERBROOK

Inspection of the Fairview School, Overbrook, yesterday, by the finance and administration committee of the Board of Public Education, left doubt as to whether it would be logical to spend money on repairing the building. Dr. A. L. Lewin, of the committee, said in many aspects the building is below the general Pittsburgh standard, as a large part of the interior of the structure is of wood.

CHILDREN GET HEALTH TESTS

Examination of children who will enter grade school next September has been begun by the Department of Public Health. Dr. C. B. Maits, director, said today. Dr. H. J. Benz, superintendent of the City Bureau of Child Welfare, is in charge of the work.

A city-wide survey is planned by the department, which is cooperating with the Board of Education, and with the officials of the city's parochial schools.

The children are examined for defects of the eye, ear, throat, teeth, feet, heart and nose, and for malnutrition, defective tonsils and nervousness. A report of the child's condition is sent to the parents with the advice that the family physician or dentist be consulted.

Dr. Maits and Dr. Benz said that corrective measures can be started before the child enters school, thus assuring the boy or girl better physical condition for progress in school and a healthful state in after life.

During the examination, children who have not been vaccinated, receive this treatment if the parents desire it.

FOCH FOUGHT BRITAINS NAVAL TERMS IN ARMISTICE

Safety of Military Strategy Risked By Useless Order

By MARSHAL FERDINAND FOCH

Commander-in-Chief of the Allied Armies During the Closing Phases of the World War.

CHAPTER XLI.

On November 1, 1918, the detailed examination of the terms to be imposed upon Germany commenced.

In the morning a first meeting of the heads of the Allied governments was held in Paris, at the Ministry of War. The conditions I had proposed concerning the occupation of the left bank of the Rhine were read. A discussion was then started in order to give Marshal Haig an opportunity to again develop his point of view and repeat his statements of October 25, which evidently expressed the opinion of Mr. Lloyd George and his colleague.

This proposal, which, for the purpose of suspending hostilities, would halt the Allied armies at the frontiers of Belgium, Luxembourg and Alsace-Lorraine; that is to say, on the left bank of the Rhine and some distance from the river—in other words, with this obstacle in front of our very noses—was militarily inacceptable.

It would leave to Germany, protected as she would be by the Rhine, the possibility of reforming her armies while the conditions of peace were being discussed and the possibility, if she refused those terms, of resuming the fighting under conditions disadvantageous to the Allies.

Marshal Foch

The latter might thereby lose much of the benefit of their hard-won victories. If the armistice did not give the Rhine to the Allied governments, there would be a risk of jeopardizing the peace they were seeking. My thesis was accepted.

On the afternoon of November 2 there was another session at Versailles, during which the naval conditions and those dealing with the Russian front were discussed.

At that very hour the Austrian high command was receiving from Gen. Diaz the text of the armistice terms offered by the Entente. What was the Vienna government going to do? Would it accept or not? And if it accepted, would not the disrupting of the dual monarchy render it incapable of fulfilling its promises?

All these questions preoccupied the thoughts of the Allied leaders, and so heavily did they weigh upon the discussion of the afternoon that Mr. Lloyd George abandoned his naval experts and a considerable part of their demands relative to the delivery of the German war fleet.

Agrees on Conditions

But as soon as Vienna's capitulation was known, he resumed these exigencies in their entirety. They demanded more especially the disarmament of the German war fleet, the surrender of many ships, both submarine and surface, along with considerable naval material—in short, terms so heavy that they might prove inacceptable by Germany, and thus prevent the signing of an armistice convention which, in the matter of land conditions, would be entirely satisfactory to us.

Faced with the fact that these naval clauses might be so severe as to make Germany reject our armistice, thus necessitating the continuation of the war on land for the purpose of acquiring, at the cost of much blood, naval material of no value for our operations, I called the attention of the Allied government to the responsibility they would be incurring if more of our men had to be killed for so little profit to the common cause.

In reply to this, I was told to insert the naval clauses in the armistice condition; then, if the enemy found them inacceptable, the matter of what modifications to admit would be taken under consideration. As a matter of fact, the Germans accepted everything.

Finally, on November 4, after a last reading, the definitive text of the armistice was agreed to by the heads of the Allied governments and immediately cabled to President Wilson. In addition it was decided that, aided by a British admiral, I should be charged with communicating this text to envoys duly accredited by the German government and treating with them on the basis of its terms.

In transmitting to Washington the conditions they had just agreed upon, the Allied governments, at the special request of Great Britain, made all due reservations as to the principle of the freedom of the seas, which figured among the Fourteen Points of President Wilson.

Germans Send Envoys

I immediately gave orders for receiving any German envoys who presented themselves at our front lines, and intending, if I was warned beforehand of their coming, to direct them along the line Givet-La Capelle-Guise, I sent special instructions to Gen. Debeney.

At the same time, I warned all the armies against false rumors which the enemy might circulate prematurely regarding the conclusion of an armistice.

It was the night of November 6-7, at 12:30, that I received the first wireless message from the German high command. It gave the names of the plenipotentiaries designated by the Berlin government and asked that I fix a place of meeting. It added: "... The German government would be glad if, in the interest of humanity, the arrival of the German delegation before the Allied front might cause a provisional suspension of hostilities."

I replied at once in these simple words:

"If the German plenipotentiaries wish to meet Marshal Foch to ask him for an armistice, they should present themselves at the French outposts on the road Chimay-Fourmies-La Capelle-Guise. Orders have been given to conduct them to the place selected for the meeting."

On the morning of the 7th I was informed that the German plenipotentiaries would leave Spa at noon and arrive before the French line between 4 and 5 o'clock in the afternoon. Measures were taken, both by the French and German commanders to stop the firing on each side during the passage of the enemy delegation.

Meets Plenipotentiaries

Accompanied by Gen. Weygand, three officers of my staff and the British naval delegation, headed by Admiral Wemyss, First Sea Lord of the Admiralty, I left Senlis at 5 o'clock in the afternoon and went by special train to the place chosen for meeting the German plenipotentiaries—a spot in the Compiegne forest, north of and near the station of Rethondes. My train was there run onto a siding built for railroad artillery.

The German delegation, having been constantly halted by the blocked condition of the roads behind the German front, reached the French lines only at 9 p. m., and arrived at their destination 12 hours late. It was not until 7 in the morning of November 8 that the train bringing them drew up near mine.

Two hours afterward, at 9 o'clock, the first meeting took place in the office-car of the French train.

The reports sent by me to the French Prime Minister and to the President of the republic after the signing of the armistice, give in detail what occurred at Rethondes between the Allied and German plenipotentiaries.

Let me add that, on the 9th, in order to show the determination of the Allies to put an end to all German resistance, I sent the following telegram to the commanders-in-chief:

"The enemy, disorganized by our repeated attacks, is giving way all along the front.

"It is urgent to hasten and intensify our efforts.

"I appeal to the energy and initiative of commanders-in-chief and their armies to make the results achieved decisive."

And all of them, stirred by the breath of victory that played upon their standards, sent word in answer: "Count upon us, we will keep on as long as need be."

Firing Halted

On November 11, at 11 a. m., firing ceased along the whole front of the Allied armies. An impressive silence followed upon fifty-three weeks of battle. The nations could now see ahead a world restored to peace.

"Officers, non-commissioned officers, and soldiers of the Allied armies:

"After having resolutely repulsed the enemy for months, you have attacked him with tireless energy and faith.

"You have won the greatest battle in history and rescued the most sacred of all causes, the liberty of the world.

"Well may you be proud!

"You have crowned your standards with an immortal glory and won the gratitude of posterity.

"Marshal of France,
"Commander-in-Chief of the Allied Armies,
"F. FOCH."

In accordance with the protocol which accompanied the armistice, the Allied armies were put in movement towards the Rhine a few days later for the purpose of taking possession of the three bridgeheads at Cologne, Coblence and Mayence and occupying the German territory on the left bank of the river.

The armistice, signed by the commander-in-chief of the Allied armies, did not constitute a peace treaty or even the preliminaries of peace. It was a suspension of hostilities which intervened in the course of a conflict for the purpose of stopping bloodshed and giving the belligerent countries the time required for drawing up a treaty of peace.

Though its text embodied certain political and financial clauses calling for immediate fulfillment, it did not determine the situation of the belligerent states at the close of the war. The Allied governments had reserved to themselves the important task of drafting the treaty which would fix this situation.

Rhine an Obstacle

To guarantee to these governments the possibility of fully carrying out this task, the Allied armies and their commanders agreed to halt their operations under condition which rendered the military situation sufficiently advantageous to prevent any resistance on the part of the enemy to the intentions of the Allied governments and to the peace terms they might dictate.

The Rhine was an obstacle under the protection of which Germany might have jeopardized the victories of our armies, reconstituted her forces and then proceeded to discuss conditions of peace. But now the Allies were going to hold the Rhine. They were even going to hold both banks.

Here they were in a position, if need arose, to resume their advance and put a stop to any difficulties which the German government might seek to create.

Moreover, the occupation of the Rhineland by virtue of the armistice constituted a mortgage in the hands of the Allies such as would guarantee the payment of the indemnities they had decided to claim.

By making it possible to resume the war if necessity arose, from dominating positions, and by exacting this mortgage—both assured in the very text of the armistice and thus representing a consolidation of our victory—the Allied high command has placed in the hands of the Allied governments the means of making whatever terms of peace they might decide to be desirable and of ensuring their execution by the enemy.

"I'M going, anyway"

THE modern Miss needs no "time out" for the time of month.

If you've ever taken Bayer Aspirin for a headache, you know how soon the pain subsides. It is just as effective in the relief of those pains peculiar to women!

Don't dedicate certain days of every month to suffering. It's old-fashioned. It's unnecessary. Aspirin will always enable you to carry on in comfort. Take enough to assure your complete comfort. If it is genuine aspirin it cannot possibly hurt you. Bayer Aspirin does not depress the heart. It does not upset the stomach. It does nothing but stop the pain.

Headaches come at inconvenient times. So do colds. But a little Bayer Aspirin will always save the day. A throat so sore you can hardly swallow is made comfortable with one good gargle made from these tablets. Neuralgia. Neuritis. Rheumatism. Pains that once kept people home are forgotten half an hour after taking a few of these remarkable tablets. So are the little nagging aches that bring fatigue and "nerves" by day, or a sleepless night.

Genuine Bayer Aspirin tablets cost so very little after all, that it doesn't pay to experiment with imitations!

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

The number of orchestras offering minstrel medleys lately suggests to us that Amos 'n' Andy might take advantage of the moment and introduce that new type of sketch that has been whispered about for some time . . . Amos 'n' Andy as end men and Al Bernard as interlocutor . . . we do believe it will click better than Ruby Taylor's illness . . . Well, Josef Koestner has the spot tonight (KDKA, 9:30) with a group of favorites from blackface days . . . And lookee! Tillie the Toiler with Mac, Mr. Whipple and the Boss (WJAS, 7:45) . . . Jessica Dragonette repeats "Liebestraum" in Italian . . . and with Leo O'Rourke does "Sympathy Waltz" from Friml's "Firefly" . . . while the Cavaliers are all het up about a spiritual number composed for them by Bob MacGimsey, the whistler . . . all on WCAE at 8 . . . Theater of the Air (WCAE, 10:30) always offers a choice of artists and presents one-half of them but if they come through tonight with Peter Higgins singing "Mother Machree," and "I Love You Truly," all will be forgiven.

TODAY'S TID BIT:

Jim Murray of WJAS tells this one about the radio violinist who went to have his hair cut. A barber came over, looked at his subject quizzically and asked:

"Madame, is this your first bob?"

The LOUDSPEAKER

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, May 8.—George Bernard Shaw is to have another chance at the microphone, seeking perhaps a vindication of his right to the first hold, among all Europeans, upon the American mind.

After a period of heel-cooling outside his door the radio rulers finally, you remember, gained his approving nod. He would broadcast a speech that could be heard in America. He would and did. But his speech proved a flop—a flop mechanically owing to the heavy static over the Atlantic and a flop from the standpoint of interest.

He talked of Einstein, told us things we already knew and told it to us, alas, in not the manner expected of him, a manner that should have caused a general stampede to the loudspeakers.

His prestige as a fountain head of wit and wisdom suffered. He became from the standpoint of popularity in international broadcasts an also-ran. Fancy Shaw an also-ran! It is not a proposition he likes. Hence probably his consent to lift his voice again. And what will be his subject? Well, they say it will be his favorite heroine, Joan of Arc.

* * *

Is Shaw begainning to lose his keen sense of publicity? One would think he would choose American and Americans to talk about. Speaking on the air about us with his usual thumbnosing attitude would cause headlines—headlines that could not possibly be won for a discussion of Joan of Arc. I hope he changes his mind before he clears his throat in the silences of Savoy Hill.

* * *

The champion of all living pin-prickers must know by this time that he is far back in the radio ruck so far as the postman is concerned. The novelty of foreign broadcasts may have worn off, but interest in them is still acute, especially if they concern panaceas for disease and economic distress or hold out some optimistic message on man's destiny.

* * *

While Sir Oliver Lodge's broadcast on immortality drew the most mail from American listeners, there were other talks that were not far behind in their appeal.

Next to Lodge, those who drew the most letters were Lord Moynihan who talked on the future of surgery with particular reference to the cure of cancer, Sir Arbuthnot Lane, also a famous surgeon and those business doctors, Sir Josiah Stamp and John Maynard Keynes. People acthally wrote Stamp and Keynes wanting to know what was going to happen to their stocks.

* * *

Gandhi will probably be the next world figure to enter the radio corral. If he passes through the United States on the way to his huddle with MacDonald the broadcasters will haunt his footsteps. If they fail to catch up with him here they intend to track him down in London. Gandhi won't escape them you can be sure of that unless he kills the King or in the meantime starves himself to death.

* * *

After Gandhi only Soviet Russia is left for the eardrums to capture. But as long as Stimson frowns there will be no effort to lead Stalin to the microphone. The broadcasters will tell you they do not have to look to Stimson for approval any more than newspaper publishers. All the same, they do not want to incur the displeasure of the State Department—not so long as the government, through its radio commission, has so much to say about broadcasting.

PRUDENCE PENNY'S RECIPES

PLANKED LAKE TROUT—Use a plank at least 3 inches wider than the fish, when split and opened. Heat the plank in the oven under the gas flame. Rub the fish with butter, sprinkle with salt and add a little Worcestershire sauce. Lay skin side down on plank. Set plank under the broiler and bake about 30 minutes with a very low flame. Spread with more butter during the baking. Have ready hot mashed potato and pipe a border around the fish after 30 minutes of baking. Set the plank in the oven until the potato is browned. Serve with a sauce made of 3 tablespoons butter mixed with 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce. Garnish with lemon slices and parsley.

* * *

BAKED ARTICHOKES—Soak 6 artichokes in cold water, head down, for half an hour. Boil until tender in salted acidulated water. Remove a few leaves from the center of each artichoke, and fill with a mixture of 1 cup bread crumbs moistened with melted butter or olive oil; 2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese, and seasoning of salt, pepper and paprika. Bake the artichokes in a buttered pan until the filling is light brown. Baste with butter as necessary.

* * *

Add tapioca, sugar, salt, spices, syrup and carrots to milk. Cook in double boiler 35 minutes, stirring frequently. Pour small amount of tapioca mixture over egg yolk, stirring vigorously. Return to double boiler and cook until thickened. Cool. Fill pie shell or tart shells. Cover with meringue made by folding 2 tablespoons sugar into egg white. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) 15 minutes.

* * *

APPLE CHUTNEY—Pare, core and chop 12 large apples. Peel and chop 1 onion. Remove the seeds and fiber from 2 green peppers and chop fine. Put all these together in a kettle; add 1 cup currant jelly, juice of 4 lemons, two cups sugar, 1 tablespoon salt and 2 cups of vinegar and simmer gently for one hour. Add 1 cup chopped raisins and cook another hour, stirring frequently. Add 2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce and remove from the fire. Pour into hot jars and seal until

* * *

GRAHAM MUFFINS—One cup sifted white flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 4 tablespoons sugar, 1¾ cups graham flour, 1 egg well beaten, 1½ cups milk, 1 tablespoon melted butter.

Sift flour once, measure and resift with salt, baking powder, sugar. Add graham flour. Combine the egg and milk and add to the flour gradually. Add butter, beating well. Bake in greased muffin tins in a 375 oven for 25-30 minutes. Makes 18 muffins.

* * *

SMOTHERED VEAL CHOPS—Six veal chops, 1 inch thick, ½ cup water, 1 egg, 1 cup cream of tomato soup, ¾ cup cracker crumbs, 1 large onion.

Salt and pepper the veal and dip in beaten egg, to which has been added 2 tablespoons water. Roll in cracker crumbs and brown on both sides in melted butter. Lay thin slices of onion on chops and pour over them the tomato soup mixed with ½ cup water. Cover and bake in a moderately hot oven, 400 degrees, for 1 hour. Serve garnished with sprigs of parsley and slice of fresh cucumber pickle.

* * *

FRICASSEED VEAL ON TOAST—Two pounds of veal, 2 tablespoons melted butter, 1 teaspoon salt, 6 sweet gherkins chopped, 2 cups bread crumbs, ¼ cup milk, ¼ teaspoon pepper.

Cut veal into 6 pieces, about twice as long as they are broad. Mix the bread crumbs, melted butter, milk, salt, pepper and chopped sweet gherkins. Spread a thin layer of this over the veal. Roll and fasten with skewers or toothpicks. Dredge with flour and fry, until a golden brown. Pour 2 cups of this white sauce around the rolls, cover and bake in a moderately hot oven, 400 degrees, for 45 minutes. Baste frequently. To prepare the sauce melt 2 tablespoons butter, add 2 tablespoons flour, stirring until smooth. Gradually add 2 cups of milk and stir until thoroughly heated. At the last add more salt to taste, a dash of pepper and several chopped gherkins.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Can You Reform a Man by Marrying Him?

Lora was toying with the idea.

"Lips that touch likker could never touch hers"—on that Lora was firmly determined. But instead of putting her Big Boy firmly out of her life, she thought maybe marriage would work the miracle.

"Don't do it, lady!" we cried. "Make him do his reforming first!"

A Bitter Experience

And now comes Irene, with even more bitter warnings.

"If you know what's good for you," she cries, "you won't marry him, reform or no reform. I know what I'm talking about because" . . . But here's the whole story.

"Dear Sally Martin:

"I have read the letter from Lora about her drinking Romeo, and I just simply have to speak out and tell her not to be fooled by this man. Yes, I know you advised her to give him a chance to reform . . . and then marry him if he did. But I want to tell you that that doesn't work always, either.

"I want to say to that youngster 'please, please give him up—now, before he can make you more unhappy, even if he does seem to reform!'

"Maybe you think that sounds heartless, but it is bitter experience that makes me give that advice. I married a man who 'reformed' during a three years' courtship . . . and who seemed to have given up all thought of drink. And what happened?

"Within a few days after we were married he had dropped back into his old habits again. He had just pretended to give them up because he knew that otherwise I would have nothing to do with him.

Prolonged Agony

"Almost since the first day of my marriage I have lived in agony . . . trying to get him to brace up and be a man . . . the man he could be if he would . . . trying to hide his weakness and shiftlessness from my parents and relatives and the sneering friends who warned me and would say, 'I told you so!' if they knew just how things were going . . . trying to fight poverty, sickness and crime, into which he would force me if he could . . . trying to forget my girlhood dreams of happiness and companionship and a home, and the children I do not dare invite into my miserably unhappy life.

"That agony lasted many long years, Lora. And I have finally escaped from it . . . a physical wreck, heartbroken, and with the lesson learned that, unless a man or a woman has the character and the sand to want to live a clean and useful life for his or her own sake . . . it is useless for anyone to imagine they can do it for another.

"In giving up this man you think means so much to your happiness you'll have to face loneliness for a while, it is true. But if you don't give him up . . . if you go ahead and tie your life to his, you'll have to face loneliness, too, after all. For what could be worse than the utter loneliness of trying to live with a weakling who doesn't care what you have to suffer just so long as he can wallow to suit himself . . . the utter aloneness of being tied to someone whose promises mean nothing . . . and whose actions rob your life of all joy and dignity and fineness?

Says Love Will Die

"A wise old man once said 'love is trust' . . . and I have learned, through many bitter tears, that saying is true. And you will learn it too, Lora, if you go on with this man.

"You imagine now that you 'love' him in spite of all . . . no matter what he does. Well, you'll soon find out that when you're eaten with fear of what he may do next . . . when you go, day after day, and year after year, knowing that you can't depend on him . . . love will soon die. And then where'll your happiness be? You won't have any. You'll have nothing but misery. It isn't worth it, kid.

"Forget him! He may pretend to change . . . but you can't trust him. Once a booze hound, always a booze hound. Once 'easily tempted,' always easily tempted. They don't get over it, any of them, take my word for it!" "IRENE."

"There's the story, Stranger! A terrible story, and a very true one . . . what do you think of it?

Or can he be trusted if he seems to reform?

You've seen men like that . . . Perhaps you've married one. Tell us what happened. Were they worth trusting? Or did they sink back into the mire?

Don't Act Hardboiled, Fay King's Advice to Sophisticated Youngsters

By FAY KING

Some foolish youngsters assume awfully wise and sophisticated ways.

They want to appear so hardboiled and worldly.

Now the fact of the matter is that the most hardboiled ladies you will meet can act and be as demure as sweet girl graduates.

Even the professional vamps have a line of injured innocence which is more important to their success than their sophisticated careers, which belie their looks.

Men are not only timid creatures, but particularly cautious and no man ever deliberately walks into the snare of a siren.

Regardless of how she may impress others it is a certainty that she has impressed him as being more slandered than sinning.

No man means to be treated as a sucker and sap.

Dicky Is Angry Over Veritzen Gifts

Fatigued, but happy and excited as I always am at Christmas, I stood in the hall doorway and then walked slowly through the rooms reveling in their brave beauty.

I have no sympathy with the modern Scrooges, who in their desire to be "different," look with supercilious scorn upon what they call the "stereotyped" Christmas. To me the blessed holiday means all the old traditions, from mince pie to mistletoe, and as I wandered from one room to another I felt the glow which always comes to me when the Christmas preparations are completed.

The living room at the farm is really two, which are always thrown together, and which have at the end an immense bay window. In this the Christmas tree towered beautiful in its symmetry, but as yet untrimmed. Everything else, however, was completed. Over every door and window and over the archways, branches of laurel and of the ground pine which Robert Savarin had sent with his portrait of Marion to Lillian formed a frame for the brilliant holly berries. Ropes of laurel and ground pine made a leafy lane of the staircase, and from every chandelier depended clusters of holly and mistletoe. Over the mantels in living room, dining room and library were immense wreaths of holly and sprays of the glistening leaves and berries were tucked behind the candle scones and the pictures. The lights, mostly shaded, were all turned on and the soft radiance fell upon the background of green with Philip Veritzen's roses blossoming from all corners. I had divided them, putting two or three in each vase and placing them as unobtrusively as possible upon the book cases, the piano and the tables. But I noticed uneasily that the beautiful crystal and silver container, filled with roses which Mr. Veritzen had handed me as a "wish for a merry Christmas," was so conspicuous in its place of honor in the center of the dining table that no one coming into the room could overlook it or fail to admire it.

But Dicky neither looked at it nor commented upon it when he came downstairs dressed for the evening and joined me in my tour of the rooms. Was it possible that he had not noticed it, or had he guessed from whom it came and was he determinedly repressing his disapproval and pique because it was Christmas time?

Whatever his reaction, I was grateful for the results and I put my hand upon his arm, caressingly.

"It is a lovely Christmas, isn't it, Dicky?" I asked.

"Best as far as the decorations go," he responded, but there was no particular enthusiasm in his voice and he did not put his hand over mine as he generally does when I slip it through his arm. I knew then, that he either knew or suspected the source of the exquisite roses and the first shadow touched my Christmas happiness.

I would not permit that shadow to spoil my Christmas, I told myself fiercely. I answered him brightly.

"I think it's going to be the best in every way," I said determinedly.

"Because of the extra guests?" he queried, and there was an unpleasant note in his voice.

"Yes, just that," I returned. "Christmas needs a lot of youngsters to be complete and we have 'em here of all ages."

"Not all," he said and there was an odd hesitancy in the words. "There's no child younger than Junior."

Again I wondered if I fancied an unconscious note of reproach in his voice. I do not know what answer I would have made but I was spared the necessity for answering. My father came up behind me at the instant and slipped his arm around me.

"I never can equal that compliment, Dad," Dicky said with the deference he always gives my father, "so I'll just hunt up the boys and find out what they're up to. I don't want any chance of their discovering things beforehand."

"I can't tell you where Henry and William are," I told him, smiling, "but Junior and Roderick won't be hard to find. They're in the breakfast nook off the kitchen with Katherine and your mother, and Katie is serving them all supper. We're having the meal in relays tonight."

"Suppose I take Hank and Bill for the next inning," Dicky suggested, "unless you and Dad are especially hungry. Then you two, with Mary and Noel, can eat in peace, and I'll keep an eye on my two older nephews. I know Katrina won't let the other two out of her sight. What say to my plan?"

"I think it's a very good one," I told him, but, as he walked away, the little intangible shadow deepened. Had he given me the real reason for his choice of companions, or did he not wish to eat supper with me?

Household Hints

The oven of the gas stove will never rust if the cook remembers to leave the door open after using, permitting the warm air to escape and preventing collection of moisture.

For novelty candle-holders use rosy-cheeked apples, polished and hollowed out to receive the end of a candle; at a children's party, where a color scheme of red and white is carried out, nothing more suitable could be designed.

If there is a lighted burner on your gas stove, stick a burned match into the flame until it catches fire and light your new burner with it. You will save a tremendous amount of matches if you will always do this.

For cleaning silver in a hurry, make a solution of one quart of boiling water, one teaspoonful of salts and one teaspoonful of baking soda. Pour this into a large aluminum kettle and place the silver in it. Let it stand for a few minutes and then rinse with clear boiling water. Clean the pan immediately after using.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

A Disease Rare in Man

I have a letter on my desk requesting information about a condition known as "the foot and mouth disease." Undoubtedly the inquirer has been misinformed about this ailment.

Dr. Copeland

Though foot and mouth disease may infect man, it is primarily a disease of cattle. It is an acute and highly contagious disease, usually confined to cloven-footed animals.

The disease is characterized by an eruption of blisters on the lining of mouth and on the skin between the toes and above the hoof. It may sometimes involve the udder and other parts of the animal.

The condition is rarely seen in the United States. There was only one outbreak reported last year. Energetic measures taken by the Department of Agriculture quickly terminated this possible epidemic.

The disadvantages of the methods used are chiefly in the loss of cattle required in the checking of the disease. Infected cattle must be isolated and when necessary, slaughtered and buried. All suspected cattle must be quarantined and kept under rigid supervision. These measures, though tedious and at times costly, are essential for complete eradication of the disease and the saving of other animals.

The infection is transmitted to man through the drinking of raw milk and buttermilk, or the eating of butter and cheese originating from infected animals. Children may become infected by the drinking of unboiled milk in a neighborhood where the disease is prevalent.

Men who are in charge of milking, caring for or slaughtering of infected animals, may become infected by contact. The disease in man is usually mild and no serious effects have ever been noted.

The disease may be prevented in man by extreme care in the selection of animals from which milk is taken. Pasteurization of milk in all suspected areas is the best means of preventing the disease. Children should not be allowed to drink unboiled milk.

Popular Forms of Engraved Wedding Invitations

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you be so kind as to tell me what the newest form of engraving is for wedding invitations? I thought I would like the English script, but have been informed by a friend that it is not one of the newer forms.

R.

Throughout the country the most popular form of engraving for wedding invitations is the shaded antique Roman, and so graceful and gracious a lettering it is that it most certainly deserves its popularity. Another type of engraving is the shaded modified Roman, and this too is popular, though not as generally popular as the shaded antique Roman.

English script—the smaller script, that is—is exceedingly popular. It is not of course "a new form of engraving; indeed, it is one of the oldest." But it has always been popular, and it probably always will be. It makes a very beautiful appearing invitation, especially when it is done by a good engraver. It is, of course, much less expensive than a shaded letter or than a black letter. You will not be wrong if you choose script for the invitations.

One warning: Don't choose a type of engraving just because it is "new." This is a very dangerous thing to do, and don't let any engraver or stationer persuade you to do this.

Choose your engraving because it is good-looking, because it has been tried and found attractive and appropriate. Don't try any of the "new" forms of engraving that are bizarre, full of unnecessary curlycues, engravings that look nothing but "hick." And don't give up the script idea unless you find something that you surely like better.

Making a Mountain Out Of a Molehill

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

While attending a dance with my friend this occurred. He danced with his mother and I sat out with my mother. While sitting there, two gentlemen asked me to dance, but I refused saying that I was so tired I wanted to sit out that dance. My friend and his mother decided to stop in the middle of the number and he asked me to finish it with him. I explained that I had refused two other gentlemen, so I thought that I would have to wait until the next dance. These two gentlemen were strangers to me. My friend became angry because I wouldn't finish the dance with him. Was I right, or wrong, in this matter? FELICE.

It was really better for you not to dance the rest of that dance. However, I must admit that this does somewhat seem forced, for the gentlemen, since they had not been presented to you, had no right to invite you to dance. Your escort made a mountain out of a molehill, I think.

Gifts for the Sick Man

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am confronted with a problem. A very intimate friend of mine is in the hospital. My friend is a man. Is it proper for me to send flowers or would you prefer a card of recovery? They tell me it is unique to send flowers. Are they right?

F. N.

It is perfectly correct for us to send flowers to a man in the hospital. Or fruits, if he is allowed to have them. Or, perhaps best of all, a book or books or a collection of current magazines that are appropriate to his tastes. And any of these accompanied by a note (a note, not a ready-made card) of wishes for an early recovery.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

To avoid round shoulders and a slumped-in chest, the typist who sits all day should have a small cushion so attached to the chair that it furnishes support at the small of the back. It will help her to sit high, thus she will ward off saggy neck and double chin.

An orchid powder is having a gala time with the blonde dollies. It is friendly to the pale, fair complexion. Suntan powders of fairly dark brown are not being offered. Too messy. Too hard on the bathroom linens and the toilet table. Rouge is getting fainter, lipsticks, too.

New fashions, fresh-laid complexions, smarty, sassy chapeaux put a woman on her toes. Draping the feminine frame with attire that takes on new character is a stimulating pastime. Since monotony is the blight that kills the flower of beauty, it behooves a woman to keep in touch with new modes and moods. Yes moods, for Lady Fashion is mercurial, ever changing. She charms and delights us. When we are no longer charmed, life has us beaten and nothing much matters.

Light scars left by pimples should be anointed every night with ointment of zinc oxide. Deep scars can sometimes be removed by surgical treatment. A new incision is made, the old dead tissue is removed, the wound is stitched together in a clever manner that leaves no definite blemish.

Tendrils along the forehead are going strong, for which let us be thankful. The exposed brow is trying for any woman who isn't qualified to stand in the front ranks of the beauty prize winners. Beau-catchers are formed and kept in order by moistening with bandoline, twisting into curly cues, slapping down on the skin to dry.

No uncommon sight is the combination of delicately colored complexion and a neck that looks like old parchment. There should be a get-together party now and then, with the neck receiving the attention that is due it, particularly after a winter of friction with coat collars. The down-trodden neck will respond quickly to anointings with a heavy massage cream, applications of peroxide to whiten the surface, and a bit of powder left over from the complexion feast.

BEAUTIFUL—AND NOT SO DUMB

THE modern girl holds many a trick in her wise little head. She has a shrewd sense of line and color. With deft strokes she accents her good points. And she has learned that good health is the foundation of all natural beauty.

A lovely skin, lively eyes and radiant youth are not things that can be bought at any price. For these are the outward signs of a body that is healthy within.

One of the most treacherous enemies of health is constipation. Its poisons undermine beauty. Skins turn to a sickly yellow. Eyes lose their sparkle. Pimples appear. Headaches, dizziness, spells of depression become frequent.

Constipation usually results from lack of roughage in the diet. Today, you can obtain this vital element in a delicious, non-fattening cereal: Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Two tablespoonfuls daily will prevent and relieve both temporary and recurring constipation. How much safer than using dangerous pills and drugs!

Almonds Supply as Much Nourishment as Meat

Once considered a luxury, this variety of nut is now recognized by food authorities as a good meat substitute and is rapidly becoming a staple article on many diets.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
Formerly Health Commissioner of New York City
United States Senator From New York State

Few persons realize the nutritive value of almonds and, indeed, of nuts in general. As a matter of fact, pound for pound, almonds supply as much nourishment as meat.

Nuts can be substituted for meat. A person can derive ample nutrition from a diet of fruit and nuts. The proteins contained in nuts are sufficient to supply the protein requirements of the body.

At one time almonds were considered a luxury. They were only served on state occasions. I am glad to say that there is a growing tendency to look upon the nut as a staple article of diet.

There are two chief types of almonds, the bitter and the sweet. The bitter is undesirable as a food. It is of commercial value for its acid and oil content.

The sweet almond is nutritious and pleasant to taste. It is easily digested. It contains important minerals, such as phosphorus, lime and iron.

Almond cake, almond meal, sweet almond paste and almond bread are made from ground almonds. The almond paste is used in the making of confections and pastries.

In cases of diabetes, almond cake and bread are sometimes used instead of wheat bread. This substitution is of value in that almond bread contains limited quantities of starch and sugar.

Almonds contain the same amount of vitamin B as cereal grains. In addition, they contain a small amount of vitamin A.

Nuts are extremely rich in fats and for this reason were formerly believed to be indigestible. However, if carefully chewed, they are easily digested. This food should not be served at the end of a full dinner or between meals. Make the nuts a part of the meal.

Leading dieticians recognize almonds as an important food. When used with vegetables, grains and fruits, their value to the body is very great.

chocolate, milk and eggs. Cook slowly and stir constantly until filling becomes thick and creamy. Add rest of ingredients and beat well. Cool. Use as filling between two baked cake layers. Spread with whipped cream. Cut in wedge-shaped pieces and serve with fork.

* * *

HEART AND LIVER PIE—Boil a pound of liver until very tender. Chop rather coarsely. Clean and quarter 6 lamb hearts and boil until tender, then cut in thick slices. While the hearts are boiling add ½ bay leaf, 2 finely minced onions, a small can tomatoes, ½ cup minced celery, pepper, salt, 1 teaspoon sugar and ½ teaspoon curry powder. After the hearts have been removed, boil the gravy down to about 1½ cupfuls, thicken it with browned flour, strain, mix with the hearts and liver, and fill a deep crust-lined dish with the mixture. Put on the top crust, makinga vent in the top, and bake the pie until the crust is done. Serve hot with currant jelly. This is a rich pie.

* * *

HAM AND SPINACH SOUFFLE: Soak stale bread crumbs in enough milk to cover. When the bread is soft, drain it well. To ½ cup of drained bread crumbs add 3 tablespoons butter, and cook for a few minutes. Add 1 cup chopped, cooked spinach, 2 tablespoons finely chopped onion, yolks of 3 eggs, beaten until light; ¾ cup cooked, diced ham and salt and pepper. Lastly, fold in the whites of the 3 eggs, beaten stiff. Turn into a mold lined with oiled paper, cover with oiled paper and steam until firm—about 40 minutes. Serve with Hollandaise sauce.

* * *

BAKED TUNA FISH LOAF—Flake 1 cup tuna fish and combine with 1 tablespoon butter, 1 cup bread crumbs, 1 tablespoon pimento cut into small pieces, and 2 eggs, well beaten. Add 1 cup hot milk and season with salt and pepper. Press into a buttered loaf pan and bake for 30 minutes in a moderate oven.

* * *

EMERGENCY PARTY CAKES—(Makes 36 to 40.) Three tablespoons butter, 1½ to 1¾ cups powdered sugar, 3 tablespoons orange juice, 1 teaspoon grated orange rind, ¾ cup cocoanut, 36 to 40 graham crackers.

Cream butter and 1½ cups sugar together. Add fruit juice and rind. Blend thoroughly. Add more sugar if necessary to make good spreading consistency. Frost graham crackers thickly with icing, sprinkle with cocoanut, and let stand until icing is hard. Serve as an accompaniment for a fruit salad or ice cream. This is a healthful refreshment for a child's party. Ruby orange juice gives this icing a delicate pink color which is most attractive.

* * *

CHOCOLATE NUT COOKIES—Cream 1⅞ cups light brown sugar and ½ cup butter thoroughly; add an egg and continue creaming until smooth and fluffy. Stir in 2 squares of bitter chocolate that has been melted over hot water and cool slightly. Sift 2 cups cake flour with ½ teaspoon soda and ½ teaspoon salt twice, and add alternately with 1½ cups evaporated milk to the creamed mixture until well blended. Add ¾ cup chopped nuts and 1½ teaspoons vanilla with the last few stirs. Drop by the spoonful onto oiled tins. Bake in a hot oven—375 degrees F.

Lawrence Tibbett to Do 'Road to Mandalay' For Talk Screen

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1931, by Premier Syndicate)

HOLLYWOOD, May 8.

With Lawrence Tibbett due back at the studio in June, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is casting an eye about to find him a suitable vehicle. A little investigation reveals that two writers are doing an original story to be called "The Road to Mandalay."

Tibbett sings this song in a way to make you think you've never heard it before. Actors and officials alike used to gather on the set and beg for the number when the Metropolitan Opera star was filming "The Rogue Song." He gave many an impromptu concert to admiring colleagues.

Lawrence Tibbett

Though his picture isn't scheduled for a month or more, Tibbett arrived in San Francisco last night and will fill a concert date here next week.

The star has signed to do two talkies for M. G. M. this year.

HE HAD ENOUGH

Lew Cody tells the story about the two drunks who went to a wrestling match. They arrived just in time to see one of the masses of muscle get a headlock on his opponent. After a desperate struggle the threatened wrestler managed to break the hold. For the next 15 minutes the two men threshed and rolled with no effect. At last the same wrestler succeeded in getting another headlock.

One of the drunks started to get up. "Let's go," he said. "This is where we came in."

LATEST GOSSIP

On the day that Fifi D'Orsay's engagement was announced in the papers, half the jewelers in town called up her fiance to see if he didn't want to buy an engagement ring . . . What does this mean? The Fox production list carries the item "Warner Baxter, tentatively 'In Her Arms.'" . . . Mary Pickford isn't superstitious. She sails for New York on the thirteenth to meet Douglas in London. My paperhanger readers will be interested to know that Pickfair is being done over during her absence . . . The production of "Corsair" has been postponed for a few days, I suspect to allow Roland West to test the engines of his new yacht . . . Joan Castle is beginning to get discouraged. She says she's been at Fox 52 weeks, has made a test a week, and has played in but two pictures. All the same, she's a comely lass, and ought to get a break one of thee days . . . Harking to the request of his fan letters, Eddie Cantor will sing three songs in "Hocus Pocus" . . . The home of Dolores Del Rio and Cedric Gibbons, M. G. M. art director, is the most modernistic in the film colony . . . Some jester remarked of Frances McCoy's titter: "Just another giggle-e."

Mary Pickford

POSTERITY DOESN'T WORRY HIM

One artist who doesn't dream of his work living forever is Hans Ledeboer, who paints pictures to be used on sets at Paramount. Of the 5,000 painting the Dutch artist has made during the past 11 years less than 100 are still existing. Some of his most carefully done oils were destroyed recently as a gag in a Marx Brothers picture. The Dutch painter is an excellent artist. He won a gold medal for murals at the San Francisco World's Fair, and has had several genuine exhibitions. He has his own philosophy about his film work. While the pictures do not hang in great galleries, they are seen on the screen by more people than have ever visited the Louvre. And the work is congenial. He isn't complaining.

KING'S PLANS

The postponement of "Over the Hill" will release Henry King to direct Janet Gaynor and Charlie Farrell in "Merely Mary Ann." This picture goes into production at once, because Fox must have four films a year co-starring the popular team, and Janet's appendicitis operation delayed matters considerably. Some time next month, after he completes "Merely Mary Ann," King is scheduled to get back on "Over the Hill."

Hardie Albright In Gangster Film

Hardie Albright, Owen Moore and George Byron will have important roles in the Fox picture, "Hush Money." Joan Bennett is playing the lead. C. Henry Gordon, Douglas Cosgrove, George Raft and Hugh White also are in the cast. It is a story of big time gang activities. Sidney Lanfield is the director.

Grand Officer Will Visit Eagles Here

Judge Thomas O'Donnell, representing the Grand Aerie, Fraternal Order of Eagles, will visit Westinghouse Lodge No. 803, Electric avenue, East Pittsburgh, to talk on old age pensions. Judge O'Donnell has been traveling in behalf of state-paid old age pensions, a movement started, he says, by the lodge.

Broadway Recruit Gets Film Contract

June McCloy, Broadway recruit who appeared with Douglas Fairbanks in "Reaching for the Moon," has been signed by RKO Pathe on a five-year contract and will be groomed for stardom. She will first star in a series of six two-reel comedies.

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"Dirigible," photodrama about a skylarking flyer and his wife, home among his trophies, and the inevitable other guy, whose friendly motives are misunderstood, pursues its way to polar ice and polar dangers on the Pitt screen, where it is to begin another week Monday. The sitting sitcheashun, as the box office boys see it, permits all and sundry to obtain seats as far in advance as now.

* * *

Small Timer, looking sternly at the lady in the aisle seat, says that women used to dress to "show" the others but now they dress to show themselves.

* * *

Eleanor Boardman and Monte Blue are expected to glide into the current of public approval in "The Flood" on the Harris screen tomorrow.

* * *

Small Timer, growing reckless through lack of applause, says he overheard a man, who had asked for unemployment headquarters, being directed to the City-County Building.

* * *

The Nixon, determined not to be neglectful in the matter of Yiddish drama, announces that Michal Michalesko will come to its stage next Tuesday night for one performance only of "I Want a Child," a play with music. Pitter-patter, maybe.

* * *

Small Timer, still straining his ears for titters, says the car he will buy will be Average, because he hears owners boast of the mileage they get on them.

* * *

Some actresses who have appeared as Luana in "Bird of Paradise," which George Sharp will offer in the Alvin next week, are Bessie Barriscale, who moved into and out of the movies; Lenore Ulric and Carlotta Monterey, now Mrs. Eugene O'Neill. Gladys George will play it for George.

* * *

Circus Clowns

The De Koh Brothers are a feature of the Sells Floto Circus, which will be at Exposition Park, North Side, May 14, and at Fifth and Penn avenues, Point Breeze, May 15 and 16.

Hitch-Hiking Fought By State Motorists

"Hitching" rides is being fought in a radio campaign from Harrisburg by the Bureau of Motor Vehicles, which declares that, with daylight saving time and good weather, the danger to children is increased. The broadcasts are directed to parents, teachers, auto clubs and Scout leaders. H. L. Mason, Jr., president of the Automobile Club of Pittsburgh, said today that in the first three months of this year there were 29 accidents, eight fatal, to "hitchers."

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

(Copyright, 1931, Daily Mirror, Inc.)

To Jackie Cooper
(Alias "Skippy")

No doubt you are the busiest of chaps
With work to do—and silly books to study;
But I'm a nervy cuss and thought perhaps—
That you could do a favor for me, Buddy.
I saw you on the screen the other night.
You made me howl—then brought me close to tears;
I played each game you played—I fought each fight;
I haven't been so entertained in years.

I wonder if you know the Kings and Queens
Of Hollywood—the stars of high degree.
No doubt you do—and your acquaintance means
An awful lot to wistful guys like me.
Please ask them over some day, Jackie, do—
I'll count on you for modesty and tact;
And, youngster, spend a precious hour or two

—Don Wahn.

—And Contents Noted

"A real small town," writes Dana L. Cotie, "is where you ruin your stomach on the soft drinks you get in the local speakeasy before they know you well enough to give you the good stuff."

"Dear Walter," writes G. M., "Your new contributor, 'E. A.' sounds suspiciously like Edward Anthony, head of the Crowell Publishing Publicity and co-author of 'Bring 'Em Back Alive.' He is the erstwhile 'Edar' of F. P. A's old Tribune Conning Tower. Get him to do you some silly verse such as his 'Advice to Small Children,' to wit:

" 'Eat no green apples or you'll droop;
Be careful not to get the croup;
Beware of chickenpox and such
And don't fall out of windows much.' "

"As a rumor of appointment (the rumor that Al E. Smith, Jr., is being considered as a justice to Special Sessions), it may be well founded, but as a matter of law it is woefully inaccurate. Al, Jr., took his bar examination in the June of 1926 and was admitted about four years ago. By section 13, article 2 of the Inferior Criminal Courts Act of the City of New York, eligibility to an appointment as a member of the Special Sessions Bench requires that the aspirant be admitted for a period of at least 10 years prior to the date of appointment. My hours of consultation are from 9 to 10 a. m. every Friday morning, and free of charge to you, sir.—Jay Jasper."

"Hey, Walter!" writes Izzy Elinson, "I see the local clothiers are featuring business suits. Now what can people be using them for these days?"

So that they will get shiny.

"London, Eng. Attached herewith is a clipping from Hannen Swaffer's page. Note where he toasts Paul Robeson, the Negro star, and says that he was on the All-America football team. Show him up, Walter.—Paul Walsh."

Paul Robeson played end and graduated from Rutgers in 1919 and was named for the All-America team by the late Walter Camp, you chump!

"Dear Mr. Winchell: The controversy over 'incomprehensible' being the longest word in the dictionary has my family a little insane. I claim that you were joshing when you said that incomprehensible was the longest word, and that you meant that 'antidisestablishwhatchamacallit' is incomprehensible to most people. Right?—Maude Wells."

I don' wanna tell.

St. Michael Players To Stage Comedy

"The King of Timbuctoo," a musical comedy, will be repeated by the St. Michael's Lyceum players, Sunday afternoon for the children, and Wednesday evening for the adults. The production was first produced in April. The proceeds will be used for the creation of a jubilee fund. In June the Rev. Conrad Eiben, pastor, and the Rev. Bernard Hartman, assistant pastor of the St. Michael's Church, will jointly celebrate their silver jubilee of ordination to the priesthood.

Here Today

Genevieve Tobin comes back to the Pittsburgh screen today in the film version of "Seed," new Stanley booking.

Academy to Close Tomorrow Night

The final burlesque performances of the season will be given in the Academy today and tomorrow. The current show is "The Devil's Darlings," with Billy Hagan and Joan Collette. The house will reopen in August.

DOUTHIT OUTDONE BY HIS UNDERSTUDY

IF TAYLOR DOUTHIT has any regard for his job, it might be wise for him to try to hasten the recovery of his ailing hip and get back in center field for the Cardinals as quickly as possible. Otherwise he may find it a considerable job to take his old position away from his present substitute, John Leonard Martin. Perhaps it's only a flash, but if the ball that Pepper has played here the last two days is a sample of what he is going to deliver right along, Douthit may be in for an extended stay on the bench, even after he is in shape to play again.

Pepper Martin

Martin started out modestly when given a chance to break into the St. Louis lineup. When the Redbirds invaded Pittsburgh Wednesday he had made only four hits in 25 times at bat for an average of just .160. But in the first two games of the present series here he walliped the Buccaneer hurlers for six hits in 11 times at bat, with a home run and a double included, for an average of .545, knocked in six runs and scored three himself.

AND IN MAKING himself a pest to the Pirates, Martin did not confine his activities to the offensive side. He deprived the Bucs of a victory on Wednesday by throwing Ben Sankey out at the plate in the eleventh inning to cut off what would have been the winning run, and in the two games he roamed all over Forbes Field to spear Buccaneer drives, piling up 10 putouts and two assists.

Pepper has been Cardinal property for several years, but never was given much of a chance. They admitted he had a lot of speed, but said he couldn't hit. Last year he was sent to Rochester and finished high among the International League batters with an average of .365.

THAT'S ONE OF the most impressive things about the Missourians as bidders for another pennant. When one of the regulars is missing from the lineup they appear able to stick in a substitute who is every bit as good as the absentee.

The strength of the Redbird reserves is shown by the fact that though they are without the services of two-thirds of their outfield in the absence of Chick Hafey and Douthit, they are able to go right on winning just the same. Yesterday's victory was their seventh in succession.

LARRY FRENCH'S failure in two starts here this spring to hold early leads provided by his mates caused some fans at Forbes Field yesterday to express the opinion that the southpaw had been far more successful on the road than at home since he joined the Pittsburgh club in 1929. The record, show an even break all around. French has won 26 games and lost the same number as a Pirate, and his victories and defeats have been equally divided, both at home and abroad. At Forbes Field he has won and lost 11, and on the road he has won and lost 15. He has yet to beat the Chicago club in Pittsburgh, and he has yet to lose a game in Cincinnati.

Andy Smeaton

WITH FLOCKS OF new records almost daily finding their way into the books in this remarkable era of sports, it may not be amiss to call attention to the mark hung up by Andy Smeaton, rangy captain of Grant Siverd's Duquesne University tennis team. In the last two seasons, Smeaton has won 16 consecutive contests in singles at the No. 1 position on his team.

This is the longest unbroken string of successes reeled off by a college racqueter of this district in the last half decade, if not in all time, and though the caliber of opposition faced by the Hill star has not always been of the highest, yet his victims have included such capable performers as Bill Clark, of Westminster; Johnny Hecker and Stewart Snodgrass, of Geneva; Mike Koma, of Grove City, and Stewart Dueger, of Carnegie Tech.

SMEATON, MORE THAN 6 feet in height, and exceptionally long of arm and leg, numbers among his assets dogged courage, excellent physical condition, a steady, powerful, flat forehand drive, a reliable defensive backhand from the baseline, a good, though not decisive volley, and a consistent, sometimes brilliant, service. And at chasing after deep ones and wide ones unleashed by the enemy, Andy is in a class with the speediest.

Smeaton gets his severest test and risks his winning streak today, as he must tangle with Eddie Jacobs, of Pitt, when the Panthers and Dukes clash on the Bluff. It would be asking too much of Andy, with virtually no experience beyond local competition, to expect him to take the measure of the redoubtable Gold and Blue southpaw, whose belt is adorned with the scalp of National Champion Johnny Doeg, and who also recently defeated Gregory Mangin, sixth ranking player in the United States, and Bob Considine, lank luminary of George Washington University. But Smeaton, win or lose, will be out there giving a best that is not to be despised by Jacobs or any one else.

AFTER WATCHING THE new and supposedly less lively baseball, Tris Speaker has concluded that it will ride just as far as the old one through the air when well hit, but does not roll so far nor so fast on the ground. "If you get a full swipe at it, the ball travels as far in the air as it ever did," Speaker says, "but it seems to slow down more quickly once it hits the ground. Maybe it's due to the raised seams. You see infielders making plays on grounders which formerly they could not have touched, or at least could not have handled."

THE PIRATES STILL hold the unenviable distinction of being the only club that has been defeated by Cincinnati this year. Even with a 4-to-0 lead at the end of the seventh inning yesterday the Reds couldn't beat the Cubs.

The Cincinnati weaklings have been a great help to the St. Louis club in particular. The Cardinals have defeated the Reds 17 times in succession—13 in a row last year and four this season. They have not lost a game to the Howleys since June 1, last year, when they dropped both games of a double-header.

Tony Herrera

A BOXER WHO has become a Pittsburgh favorite will get an opportunity in New York tonight to establish himself among the front rankers. Tony Herrera is to meet Jack (Kid) Berg, for 10 rounds in a bout substituted for the postponed McLarnin-Petrolle match.

Herrera's chances will depend largely on how well his brittle hands hold out. If they are injured early in the fight—and they are said to be none too good before the start—he'll hardly give Berg much trouble.

AT THAT, BERG isn't likely to stop Tony. For one thing, Berg isn't a kayo specialist, and for another thing putting Herrera away is something that no fighter has yet been able to accomplish. Herrera, whose proper name incidentally is Antonio Campbell and who is only half Mexican as his father was Scotch, has been knocked down about 20 times, he admits, but he has never taken the full count. Most of those knockdowns came in the first or second round, and he says he always is glad when the second round is over as he knows he'll be all right after that. A main bout in New York at this stage with a boxer of Berg's prominence spells a pretty rapid rise for Tony, as he has been fighting only two years and three months. His first fight as a professional brought him only three dollars.

Featured by the Westinghouse-Peabody classic in Section I, a full program confronts City League baseball nines today. Sharing the spotlight with the Section I feature is the Allegheny-South Hills battle in Section II, with Allegheny seeking readmission to the first division after its no-hit defeat at the hands of Carrick last week.

The Westinghouse-Peabody battle is one of the most important of the year. In the first place, Martin, Peabody's ace hurler, who had twirled two no-hit games in succession, will be on the slab for the East Enders, opposing Joe Ware, Westinghouse's all-around star. In the second place, a defeat for Westinghouse will toboggan the Brushtonites out of the tie for first place they now enjoy with Schenley, and enable Peabody to gain a deadlock with the idle Bellevielders.

CELLAR TEAMS CLASH

Allderdice and Connelly, both defeated in each of their respective four starts, clash at Connelley.

In Section II, Oliver expects little trouble from Allegheny Vocational and figures to remain in undisputed possession of first place in the section. Carrick and South Hills, tied for second place, can stay on the heels of the Brighton road entry by winning today, Carrick over Langley and South Hills over Allegheny.

In Junior League frays, Baxter meets the hard-hitting Gladstone aggregation and Herron Hill tackles the Washington Trade School nine.

In the W. P. I. A. L., only Section I nine are active. Carnegie and McKees Rocks meet on the latter's diamond and Dormont appears at Crafton.

In a non-league encounter, Turtle Creek and Shady Side clash at Shady Side. The Shady Side tennis team meets Wilkinsburg at Wilkinsburg and Bellevue's trackers engage the Academy cinder squad.

SCHENLEY VICTOR

Yesterday, Schenley gained a tie for the lead in Section I by defeating Connelley, 7 to 4. Stratton had one bad inning for Schenley, Connelley scoring four runs in the fourth. Qualley led Schenley's attack with three safe hits, including a home run. Landau also hit for the circuit for the victors.

Both Scott and Wilkinsburg were defeated in nonleague games. Rankin downed Wilkinsburg, 3 to 1, and W. P. I. D. took over Scott, 5 to 4. Savanic fanned 10 Scott batters.

FANS HONOR M'CARTHY

CHICAGO, May 8.—Chicago baseball fans will pay tribute to Joe McCarthy, manager of the New York Yankees and former leader of the Chicago Cubs, here this afternoon when the Yanks and White Sox open their series. McCarthy also will be honored at a banquet tonight.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT (Reg. by U. S. Patent Office) By RIPLEY

(On request, sent with stamped addressed envelope, Ripley will send proofs and details of anything depicted by him in these cartoons.)

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: A PLANE CAN CLIMB TWO MILES AND DESCEND IN FIVE MINUTES—These remarkable small, sturdy fighting planes recently were built by the Boeing Air Transport Company for the United States Army and Navy forces. In pre-delivery tests it was found that they could climb to an altitude of more than 10,000 feet and descend to earth again in five minutes. In descending they were pulled out of a two-mile vertical power dive at a speed of more than 350 miles per hour, zooming abruptly back into the sky. The strength of the wings is illustrated by the fact that the ribs support 100 pounds for each ounce of their own weight. GILDED PLATINUM WAS SOLD AS GOLD—In 1774, solid platinum ingots, superficially gilded, were passed off as gold bricks on some Hollanders on the South American coast. For this "deception," the enraged Dutch settlers summarily revenged themselves by equipping an expedition to the coast, which seized the "offending" Spaniards and strung them up on the yardarms of the Dutch ships. When platinum was discovered it was ridiculously cheap. Its very name (literally "little silver") is an indication of its original low value. (See Diderot's "Encyclopedie" on the subject.)

TOMORROW: A FEAT PERFORMED WITH THE FEET.

PREAKNESS DUE FOR WET TRACK

BALTIMORE, May 8.—(AP.)—Clearing skies today raised the hopes of backers of Twenty Grand, the Greentree Stable entry in the $50,000 Preakness at Pimlico tomorrow, but the track was so wet from showers the last two days that there was a question that it would be dry enough to suit the flying heels of the son of St. Germans.

Twenty Grand, co-favorite with C. V. Whitney's Equipoise, has performed his best on a fast track while Equipoise, the leading money winner as a 2-year-old, has won some of his best races in the mud.

The forecast was for clear skies today and tomorrow and a light wind was an ally of the sun's rays. Information from the Greentree Stables was that Twenty Grand would start, whatever the condition of the track.

Equipoise was the first horse formally entered in the 3-year-old stake today and that entry was followed a few minutes later by A. C. Bostwick's Mate, another strongly backed candidate.

Lansing Team Keeps Volleyball Title

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 8.—(AP.)—Lansing, Mich., successfully defended its international veterans Y. M. C. A. volleyball championship by defeating Binghamton, N. Y., in the finals at the University of Rochester River campus, 15-10, 15-10, yesterday. Lansing won over Rochester in the first round, 16-14, 15-7.

Members of the winning team were: Capt. Lyle Marshall, Harold Hess, Dr. Farland Morse, Bert Spence, Claude Ludwig, John Miller, Edward Frey and Edson Morrison. The opening rounds of the third international open volleyball tournament will be played today.

Sport Vignettes

Twenty Grand sounds like the money, but the turf sharps say it will be Equipoise if it rains and they have soupy going in the Preakness tomorrow and the Derby the following Saturday . . . Equipoise not only is a mudder, but a first-class swimmer, and nothing less . . . They even say that what was the matter with Equipoise when it ran last in its most recent start, at Havre de Grace, was a floating kidney . . . And things have come to a pretty pass when a rassler complains about his opponent merely biting him . . . Unless he's afraid of getting hydrophobia.

Burleigh Grimes, after winning that tough 13-inning tussle with the Pirates the other day, set out in search of an Oakland dentist who fitted a gold crown on one of his teeth 15 years ago . . . The thing has been acting up a bit lately and Burleigh simply wanted to tell the dentist he knew the job wouldn't last when he had it done . . . Jimmy Conrad, former fight manager and newly-appointed caddiemaster at the South Park county golf course, ought to go over big on the latter job, what with his personality and faculty for making friends . . . And Bat Schwartz, another former manager of boxers here, whose ace was Lew Goldie, is working for the city.

Four previous winners of the blue ribbon event of American automobile racing will try to make the field that will go to the post in the annual 500-mile race at the Indianapolis Speedway on Memorial Day . . . They are Billy Arnold, winner last year; Ralph DePalma, winner in 1915; Peter DePaolo, nephew of DePalma and winner in 1925, and Louie Meyer, winner in 1928 . . . The entry list, now closed, embraces 71 drivers.

The West Virginia boxing law becomes effective June 6, but already the various towns are staging professional bouts without interference . . . The chances are the commission will not be named until some time after the law goes into effect . . . H. L. Michael, the Morgantown promoter, is a former Pittsburgher, having managed the Squirrel Hill bowling alleys a few years ago . . . Morgantown should be a fertile spot. The college bouts there have been drawing big crowds.

Local fans who remember him as a player on the Allegheny High School team and later at Westminster College and Princeton University will follow with interest the fortunes of Al Wittmer as head football coach at Princeton next fall, succeeding Bill Roper, whom he understudied for several campaigns . . . A thrown ball that bounded into the Pirates' dugout before the game at Forbes Field yesterday caromed off the nose of D. E. Benjamin, our demon sports photographer, and busted same, necessitating an operation to restore it to its fine Grecian or, rather, Welsh, lines.

CHECKER CHAMP HERE

Newell W. Banks, holder of the match checker championship of America, will meet all comers in a special series of checker and chess matches in the Downtown Y. M. C. A. tomorrow evening. The visiting star also will engage in four blindfold matches.

LANGLEY TEAMS WIN

The Langley High School senior track and field team defeated South High in a dual met yesterday afternoon by a 69-to-55 count, while the junior high squad nosed out Overbrook, 32 to 27.

WEST TO FIGHT FOR TRYOUTS

CHICAGO, May 8.—(AP.)—A bitter fight over the scene of the final tryouts for places on the 1932 American Olympic track and field team today appeared certain, with Chicago and the Pacific Coast the combatants.

The trials originally were awarded to Soldier Field by the Olympic track and field committee, but Pacific Coast leaders have contended that their section was the logical place for the event and have prepared to put up a battle when the committee meets in Chicago May 16.

Chicago interests, headed by Avery Brundage, president of the Amateur Athletic Union and president of the American Olympic Association, are ready to fight to keep the trials here.

Other members of the track and field committee, with Sam Goodman and Kinter Hamilton, of California, are: Joseph England, Baltimore, chairman; George Donoghue and A. A. Stagg, Sr., of Chicago; Edwin P. Schaefer, Buffalo, N. Y.; George Brown, Boston; Martin Klein, New York; T. N. Metcalf, Ames, Ia.; A. C. Gilbert, New Haven, Conn.; W. J. Bingham, Cambridge, Mass., and Dr. Joseph A. Reilly, Kansas City.

Pitcher's Father Dead After Fall

PADUCAH, Ky., May 8.—(AP.)—Injuries which he suffered when he fell in the railroad yards here while attempting to board a car, proved fatal yesterday to D. M. Weaver, 54, father of James D. Weaver, pitcher for the New York Yankees.

Weaver, a resident of Fulton, Ky., was a car checker for the Illinois Central Railroad Company.

There was no game at Forbes Field today. The heavy rains of last night transformed the Oakland Orchard into a field of mud, the moist conditions causing the home management shortly before noon to cancel the contest scheduled between the Cardinals and Pirates.

The last game of the series is carded for tomorrow afternoon, Manager Ens, of the Freebooters, expects to stand by his slab assignment; Remy Kremer had the pitching ticket for today, and the big Frenchman will be thrown at the Redbirds in the finale. Sylvester Johnson also is likely to be a carryover. The good-natured Swede is one of Gabby Street's nine crack sharpshooters.

Bill Regan, popular boy of the Oakland district, will be honored in the last clash with the league leaders. The afternoon has been set aside as "Bill Regan Day." Many of the Oakland merchants, as well as Bill's boyhood chums, have banded together to honor the district athlete, who is filling in at second base for George Grantham while Gus Suhr is laid up with a leg injury.

REGAN TO BE HONORED

Regan played the keystone sack for five years for the Boston Red Sox. He was purchased by the Buccos during the past winter. When Bill was a little boy he belonged to the group of ushers at Forbes Field. In memory of these days, the ushers will play a big part in tomorrow's ceremonies. Regan will be the recipient of many gifts.

The Buccos were overwhelmed by the National League champions yesterday in the second game of the series. The St. Louis flock pounded French, Osborn and

Says Nick Altrock

(Baseball's Comedian)

WASHINGTON, May 8.—They say as Babe Ruth goes, so go the Yankees. Well, Babe must be coming down with smallpox or something, because the whole team has broken out in a rash of base hits. Our best pitchers got thumped like round steaks this week. Up to now our Washington club was just a busted looking glass to the Yanks. We were seven years bad luck to them. But I guess our term has expired. Anyway, for the first time since McKinley's administration they took a series away from us and we were so surprised we are going to have the box scores audited.

STARS SET FOR PITT CARNIVAL

BRITISH, U. S. WOMEN CUP DUELS SET

NEW YORK, May 8.—(AP.)—The feminine equivalent of the classic Walker Cup golf matches has been established officially by the United States Golf Association in sanctioning a new international series of team matches between British and American women.

The first will be played in Great Britain in 1932 since the Walker Cup contest for men is slated for the United States next year.

The competition probably will be held at two-year intervals, the same as the Walker Cup, the site alternating between the two countries.

The trophy for the new series will be known as the Curtis Cup. It has been donated by the Misses Margaret and Harriet Curtis, of Boston, both former national champions.

Announcement that the U. S. G. A. had decided to inaugurate an official women's competition, following the success of last year's informal matches in England, came from Herbert H. Ramsay, president of the association.

CARDS GET FERRELL

GREENSBORO, N. C., May 8.—(AP.)—Joe Mathis, business manager of the Greensboro Piedmont League baseball club, announced today the St. Louis Cardinals had obtained George Ferrell, an outfielder, from Buffalo of the International League, and that Ferrell would be sent to Greensboro, a Cardinal farm. Ferrell is a brother of Wes Ferrell, Cleveland pitching ace, and Rick Ferrell, catcher for the St. Louis Browns.

MILE RECORD OLDEST MARK OF MEET

By JESS CARVER

Nineteen years ago, a chap named Thomas, from old Pittsburgh High School, chased a mile in 4:30 in the 4-year-old Pitt interscholastic track and field championships. When you run a mile in 4:30 you do not stop to pick daisies along the way. This mark has withstood the assaults of field after field of star high school milers since that time, and tomorrow, figures to beat back the efforts of present day stars who compete in the twenty-fourth annual renewal of the Pitt meet.

The mile record is the oldest of the standards that will come under the scrutiny of close to 1,000 athletes from 70 schools, a record entry. The second oldest are those in the broad jump, set in 1920 by Taylor, of Brooklyn, and in the colorful 100-yard dash, 10 seconds flat, by Watson, of Peabody, the same year.

440 SHOT MARKS NEW

The fresher marks, set last year, include the 440-yard dash time of 50 seconds and the shot put distance of 46 feet, 2¼ inches.

A last batch of entries, received by Jim Hagan, director of the meet yesterday, brought the total number of schools to 68 and the individual entry list close to 1,000. Director Hagan also announced that Bill Croasman, athletic chief of the P. R. R., will serve as head scorer, which means that it will be possible to name the winner as soon as the last event is over—if not before. There isn't a more capable track and field official in the district than this Croasman gent.

Following are the existing meet records and record holders.

W.-J. SEEKS GAME

Wash-Jeff is experiencing considerable difficulty in getting back on Pitt's football schedule. The Presidents were off last year, are off again this and the outlook for 1932 is not particularly rosy.

Graduate Manager of Athletics Bill Theurer, of W. & J., made an attempt this week to take the game with Tech for '32 out of town, so that negotiations could be opened with Pitt for a tussle here in the Stadium. According to the agreement in force at present, Wash-Jeff is required to play its annual game with Carnegie somewhere outside the city.

DATES UNSUITED

Carnegie, however, cannot arrange a date suitable for the game. There are only two possible dates available, one being September 26, which is too early, and the other October 29. This might be hunky dory were it not for the fact that Pitt and Notre Dame are playing here that day, which means that a Tech and Wash-Jeff game elsewhere in the district wouldn't draw flies.

The Tipoff

Pitt meets West Virginia, Geneva tackles Muskingum and Westminster engages Allegheny in dual college track and field meets tomorrow. The Panthers are going to Morgantown for the clash with the Mountaineers with the full intention of making it as tough as possible, which won't be within 35 points of what West Virginia will score.

One week from tomorrow, Marietta College, of Ohio, will send its varsity crew to Philadelphia to compete in a quadrangular meet with Navy, Penn and Harvard. Mariette was invited to compete by the other institutions, and as the Ohio school is taking up rowing for the first time this year, the crew will engage only in junior varsity events.

Marry Rush, Wash-Jeff halfback star, who graduated this spring, has been invited to join the Olympic Club, of San Francisco, as a footballer. The invitation came from Percy Locey, director of the famous coast club.

If Rush accepts the offer, and he plans to leave for the coast as soon as he grabs his sheepskin, he will be the third college star from this vicinity to play for the Olympics, Horse Chase, of Pitt, Bull Yoder, of Carnegie, having preceded him.

Purdue has two eastern opponents lined up for the coming football season. The Boilermakers meet Carnegie Tech here and New York University in the Yankee Stadium later in the season. The latter game was announced yesterday.

While a grand's worth of high schoolers are competing in the Pitt meet here tomorrow, there will be about half that many tussling in Penn State's annual interscholastic meet at State College; a goodly number in the Beaver and Mercer County championships meets at Beaver Falls and Grove City, and a flock in the Westmoreland County meet at Greensburg.

NET MATCH ON AIR

The professional tennis match between William T. Tilden and Vin Richards, in New York tomorrow night, to be broadcast by the Columbia network, will be heard locally through Station WJAS, starting at 10 o'clock. Ted Husing, famous sports announcer, will be at the microphone in Madison Square Garden when Tilden and his former protege stage their duel.

House of David Star Loses Whiskers

FAIRMONT, W. Va., May 8.—(AP.)—They cut Mike Gordon's long black whiskers off today and he joined the Fairmont Club of the Middle Atlantic League.

Manager Jimmy Walsh, of the Fairmont team, was so impressed with the House of David shortstop in an exhibition game here that he made Gordon an offer, the shave and haircut, of course, being among the stipulations.

CO-EDS AT PITT HOLD PLAY DAY

The sixth annual play day of the University of Pittsburgh was to be held today, under auspices of the Women's Athletic Association. Five hundred women athletes from colleges in Western Pennsylvania were expected to take part.

The play day program was to follow a Greek theme, a Greek banquet climaxing the activities. The women were to be divided into eight groups, representing the eight strongest cities of ancient Greece.

Schmeling to Train At Conneaut Lake

CLEVELAND, May 8.—(AP.)—Max Schmeling will train at Conneaut Lake Park, Pa., just across the Ohio border, for his titular fight with W. L. (Young) Stribling here July 3, it was announced today by the Madison Square Garden Corporation, of Ohio.

The Pennsylvania resort was chosen after a long-distance telephone conference between Joe Jacobs, the heavyweight champion's manager, in Flint, Mich., and William McCarney, his partner, in Cleveland.

Conneaut Lake Park has an indoor arena seating 6,500 persons and an outdoor arena seating as many more will be erected, according to the announcement. Jacobs said Schmeling would open his camp May 20. Stribling will train at Geauga Lake, near here.

PITT, DUKES OPEN FORMAL SPORT RELATIONS

Women's Golf Body Schedule Revised; School Links Teams Play Today

VARSITY TENNIS SQUADS CLASH TODAY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Inauguration of formal athletic relations between the University of Pittsburgh and Duquesne University heads the tennis program here this afternoon. When Dr. Billy McElroy's Panther racqueteers invade the Hill today for combat with the Red and Blue array of Grant Siverd, the event will mark the first occasion in history in which official varsity representatives of the Oakland and the Bluff institutions have tangled in combat.

Boxing squads of the two schools met several weeks ago to be sure, when the Dukes eked out a 4-3 verdict, but the freshman rule was observed by neither team in the fracas and the mitt-slingers mingled more as an informal experiment than as an out-and-out intercollegiate melee for the records.

PITT FORMIDABLE

Pitt will bring to the Hilltop an unusually powerful court combination—a troupe that a week ago took the measures of such accomplished crews as those of Georgetown and George Washington universities in the Capital stars' own bailiwicks. In Capt. Eddie Jacobs, the Blue and Gold boasts a performer ranged thirteenth in men's singles in the United States—a lad whose trusty southpaw has gleaned for him verdicts over John Doeg, present national champion, and more recently over Gregory Mangin, Georgetown flash, who last spring accompanied the American Davis Cup aggregation abroad and incidentally shared for himself the number six niche on the nation's rating list.

The McElroy contingent will also include Ed Alcorn, Mount Lebanon youth, who last summer startled Steel City observers by his fine showings in the Western Pennsylvania, Western Maryland and Morgantown invitation tournaments, as well as Irwin Goodman, runner-up to Frank Broida in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Pittsburgh Public Parks titular tilting, and Milt Cohen, Uniontown luminary, who last year shared with Dave O'Laughlin the distinction of being one of two Pittities to register singles wins over University of California netmen at Fox Chapel.

DUKES UNIMPRESSIVE

The undefeated Panthers loom strongly as favorites to account for the thus far unimpressive Dukes, who have to date dropped three contests and tied one in four starts. Capt. Andy Smeaton, elongated Hill leader, has provided the lone bright spots of the early Bluff campaign and even the Edgewood ace, with 16 consecutive number one triumphs to his credit, can scarcely be expected to spill the redoubtable Jacobs.

Two other college tennis matches are listed today, the Pitt freshmen play at Wash-Jeff and Bethany at Geneva.

Adventures of Policy Pete

I. K. S. HONORS FLOOR TEAMS

The Irene Kaufmann Settlement House honored its championship basketball teams at a smoker held last night in the playroom of the new Settlement Building. Championship trophies and individual medals were awared the members of the championship teams.

Harry Pittler was toastmaster and he introduced the following speakers: Rabbi S. H. Goldenson, of the Rodef Shalom congregation; John T. Taylor and Henry J. Blum, of the Allegheny Mountain Association of the A. A. U.; Athletic Director Joseph (Ziggy) Kahn, S. Leo Ruslander, Abe Blumenthal and Louis Isaacs, members of the Irene Kaufmann Settlement House board; Sidney Teller, director of the I. K. S.; Billy Lewis, boxing coach at the Keystone Athletic Club; Ernie Sesto, boxing coach at Carnegie Tech, and Charles J. Doyle and Julius Levin, of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Lloyd Waner, star centerfielder of the Pittsburgh Pirates, was among the guests. Entertainment by I. K. S. members and refreshments completed the program.

Peabody High Wins Triangular Meet

The Peabody High School track team emerged victorious in a triangular track and field meet with Westinghouse and Allderdice at the Westinghouse High field yesterday afternoon.

Peabody won by scoring 73½ points to 70½ for Westinghouse and 33 for Allderdice.

BENAR NAMED SCHOOL CZAR

FAIRMONT, W. Va., May 8.—(AP.)—Athletic coaches of the Monongahela Valley Big Ten Conference met here last night and elected Ross Benar, of Buckhannon, as commissioner. Benar will make assignments for basketball and football relations of the group. His powers will also include the naming of officials, from lists sent to him by the other coaches.

It was agreed to pay officials of the games a flat sum of $12.50 each for their services and a system of rotation for the various meets, at each school in turn, was resolved upon.

An order of events for track meets, the same as in the big meets, was agreed upon and it was ruled that entrants could participate in the relay events without necessarily having participated in some other event.

Brill to Assist Little at Columbia

NEW YORK, May 8.—(INS.)—Martin Brill, famous Notre Dame halfback of the last two seasons, will be one of Coach Lou Little's assistants at Columbia University next fall, it was announced today. His title will be that of assistant backfield coach.

Brill, a member of Knute Rockne's undefeated elevens of 1929 and 1930, is a combined product of the football systems of Notre Dame and the University of Pennsylvania. He was a star ball carried, noted particularly for his aggressive play. He was a great tackler and his blocking was of the highest order.

A busy calendar of events holds the attention of boxing fans tonight. No show is scheduled in Pittsburgh, but a new club makes its bow in Uniontown, with Joey Spiegel, star of that place, meeting Howard Mitchell, of Cincinnati, in the 10-round main bout, and other district boxers are on the card, while Maxie Strub boxes Herman Perlick in a windup in Erie.

Between Rounds

Apples Meyers, Meyers Bowl promoter, who is in New York lining up some big stuff for his open-air season which gets under way one week from next Monday, will view the Berg-Herrera fight and expects to return home tomorrow or Sunday. He reports the boxing game is in a bad way in the big village, with the clubs drawing small gates.

Danny Ryan will take his Pittsburgh Lyceum boxers to Greensburg for an amateur show in the Coliseum next Monday night.

Three six-round bouts will complete the Tiger Joe Randall-Jimmy Belmont card which will round out the season at Mc-Keesport next Thursday night. Buddy McArthur and Bruno Sala are in the semi-final.

Babe Ruth, of Louisville, who boxes Dominick Petrone, of Mt. Washington, and formerly of New York, in the main bout of the all-star card of six bouts of six rounds each which will ring down the curtain at Motor Square Garden next Monday night, never has appeared here, but is a veteran of the featherweight division. He has met most of the stars. Petrone also is a vet and a former attraction in Madison Square Garden, New York. He recently made his local debut against Steve Nugent, of Cleveland, whom he defeated in an eight-rounder in the Garden ring.

Two wrestling champions will appear on the Derby Eve card at Louisville, Friday night of next week. They are Jim Londos, the heavyweight champion, who meets Jaro Mydral, the Jap, and Jack Reynolds, the welterweight champion, who takes on Hy Sharman, of Salt Lake City.

Joe Glick, New York veteran, takes the place of Lope Tenorio, who is ill, against Billy Wallace in Cleveland tonight. Glick and Wallace fought in Cleveland two years ago.

Jackie Brady and Madison Dix box in Cleveland next Wednesday night. Tommy Rios and Larry Madge are in the semi-final. Frankie Chatterton boxes Chet Smallwood. Louis DiSantis meets Press Johnson and Eddie Edelman is paired with Dick Landig in the preliminaries. Proceeds of the show will go to Matt Brock, the referee and former boxer who recently was shot during a gun battle between police and a robber.

Nunns, Rainville Win Cup Trials

TORONTO, Ont., May 8.—(AP.)—Gilbert Nunns, of Toronto, and Marcel Rainville, of Montreal, scored victories yesterday in the opening contests of the three-day Canadian Davis Cup tennis trials.

Nunns conquered Dr. Jack Wright, of Montreal, former Canadian Davis Cup captain, after five hard sets, while Rainville had an easier time with Walter Martin, of Regina.

U. S. CUP HOPES DIM—TILDEN

NEW YORK, May 8.—(AP.)—Big Bill Tilden doesn't think much of America's chances of regaining the Davis Cup this year.

Back in New York for his match with Vincent Richards in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night, Big Bill had this to say about the Davis Cup situation as it affects the United States:

"Frank Shields and Sidney Wood need stern singles competition. Give it to them and we'll get the Davis Cup eventually, but not in 1931. Not with Henri Cochet and Jean Borotra around.

"If Wilmer Allison changes his mind and goes to Europe this season he probably will pair with Johnny Van Ryn again. Together they form a great combination. If Allison remains in the United States there is George Lott to replace him. Lott undoubtedly is the finest doubles player in America and one of the best in the world."

As to these constantly recurring reports that Mrs. Helen Wills Moody will turn professional, Big Bill said he thought she would desert amateur ranks only in the event that she signs a motion picture contract.

"Her case may yet be the same as mine," commented Tilden. "I wanted to go into pictures. That automatically cost me my amateur standing. So naturally I went into professional tennis. If Mrs. Moody accepts a contract there is no reason why she should not appear professionally otherwise. But whom will she have for competition? Suzanne Lenglen is past her prime."

Tilden also announced that plans now are under way for a world-wide professional tennis tour lasting 10 months. Gerald Patterson, former Australian internationalist, soon will confer with Tilden with regard to the tour, plans for which now are only in the tentative stage.

LITTLE BILL AGREES

SAN FRANCISCO, May 8.—(INS.)—Not before three years will the best American tennis teams be able to defeat the French, according to a prediction made today by William M. Johnston, who, with Bill Tilden, was seven times successful in Davis Cup contests.

"Our younger players are good, but only good," Johnston said in an interview. "No one has come out of the crowd. No one has developed a game without obvious weaknesses. No one as yet is prepared to build the strength necessary to combat a 'Cochet.'"

PIMLICO MUTUELS

W. G. A. OPENING CARDED FOR NEXT WEEK

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

The Women's Golf Association of Western Pennsylvania has announced its revised schedule for Section I of the Women's Team League. Yesterday it was announced that the loop would continue with only seven clubs, following the dropping of Chartiers Heights.

The handicapping system that has been in vogue during past seasons will be employed. Players eligible for eastern rating will be sent cards, but for all local tournaments, the West Penn handicaps will be used.

The revised Section I card:

May 12, at Allegheny Country Club—10:30, Allegheny vs. Pittsburgh Field Club; 11:00, Stanton Heights vs. Fox Chapel; 11:30, Oakmont vs. Edgewood.

May 19, at Pittsburgh Field Club—10:30, Pittsburgh Field Club vs. Fox Chapel; 11:00, Oakmont vs. Stanton Heights; 11:30, Allegheny vs. Shannopin.

May 26, at Stanton Heights Golf Club—10:30, Stanton Heights vs. Edgewood; 11:00, Oakmont vs. Pittsburgh Field Club; 11:30, Fox Chapel vs. Shannopin.

June 2, at Shannopin Country Club—10:30, Shannopin vs. Pittsburgh Field Club; 11:00, Edgewood vs. Fox Chapel; 11:30, Allegheny vs. Stanton Heights.

June 9, at Fox Chapel Golf Club—10:30, Fox Chapel vs. Allegheny; 11:00, Shannopin vs. Oakmont; 11:30, Edgewood vs. Pittsburgh Field Club.

June 16, at Edgewood Country Club—10:30, Edgewood vs. Shannopin; 11:00, Stanton Heights vs. Pittsburgh Field Club; 11:30, Allegheny vs. Oakmont.

July 7, at Oakmont Country Club—10:30, Oakmont vs. Fox Chapel; 11:00, Stanton Heights vs. Shannopin; 11:30, Allegheny vs. Edgewood.

Two matches are slated for today in the Interscholastic Golf Conference. Langley High plays Allderdice at Pup's Foot in Section I, and Bellevue meets McKeesport High at the Youghiogheny Country Club in Section II.

Tomorrow, Hollidaysburg High plays host to Shady Side Academy in a non-league match at Hollidaysburg, while the usual Saturday competition will be staged at all clubs.

The club champion, Miss Katherine MacCloskey, and Mrs. John A. Lowry tied for the first honors in the opening event for women at Longue Vue yesterday. Each had a best nine-hole score of 40. Play was over 18 holes, the best nine determining the winner.

Miss Edna McCoy was third with a 42 and Mrs. Gilbert Osmer fourth with 43. Other scores follow:

Mrs. L. H. Burnett, 45; Mrs. L. W. Hague, 46; Mrs. Sidney Stewart, 48; Miss Rosemary Casey, 48; Miss Jenkins, 52; Mrs. J. E. MacCloskey, 56; Mrs. George D. Breck, Jr., 58; Mrs. W. T. McCullough, 59; Mrs. C. Bedell Monro, 59; Mrs. James Carothers, 59.

Jimmy O'Niel, Greenfield golfer, joined the hole-in-one club yesterday when he sank his tee shot at the No. 14 hole at Schenley. He used a No. 2 iron. He was playing with Father James Lavelle, J. R. Patterson and R. W. Och.

Tee to Green

David F. Haines, former steward at the Thornburg Country Club, will be in the same capacity at the Valley Heights Country Club this season. His son also is working with him at the Oakmont links.

H. G. (Swede) Olson is giving lessons at the Green Hills Farms range.

Helen MacDonald, noted woman golf professional, here for the last two days at Kaufmann's, was keenly interested in the miniature movies of golfers shown in the store. The slow-motion, diagrammed camera showed Bobby taking a wider backswing than his down-stroke—and it was a revelation to her.

"I have always believed, and taught," said Miss MacDonald, "that the arc should be the same going back as coming forward, and Bobby Jones' loop at the top of his swing, and then coming down inside of the line on which he took his club back is a big surprise to me."

Willoughby for 15 hits, they winning, 11 to 5.

Jess Haines held the Pittsburgh batters to seven hits as he breezed along to his third unbroken success of the season. The Cards shelled French from the mound in the fourth, when they made five runs. Osborn relieved French.

A heavy shower halted the game for 18 minutes in the fifth round. Osborn was hit so freely in this stanza he was relieved by Willoughby, who finished the contest.

Carey Asks Stribling To Stay on Ground

MACON, Ga., May 8.—(AP.)—Young Stribling today said that William F. Carey, of New York, president of Madison Square Garden, had asked him not to fly his airplane again until after his fight with Max Schmeling July 2.

Stribling said the Carey request was by letter. His plane is at a factory being repaired and the boxer does not expect to get it until after the fight.

By TOM BIRKS

Two games in the City League and as many in the Steel City circuit will attract fans looking for good games on the local sandlots this evening. Book Shoe vs. Homewood at Homewood tops the bill of fare, and a record crowd should pack the spacious stands at the playgrounds to watch Hank Daly's club try to inaugurate its home season with a victory.

The other City League fray finds the North Side Civics tackling Dormont on the latter's grounds.

In the Steel City loop the battle at Lawrenceville between the Brodericks and St. Elizabeth, at Leslie Park, is fully worth while. The second game in the league will be staged at Mifflin Township, with the De Pasquale club, of Oakland, furnishing the opposition.

GARAGEMEN FACE TEST

At Monongahela, the Keenie's Garage nine will open its home season with Van Vooris flashing. At Riverview, the Patton A. C., of Bunola, will give the home club something to worry over.

Packed stands should watch Heinie Boll meet Jiggers Welsh in a battle of wits at Homewood. Steele probably will twirl for the East Enders, with Lou Jacoby coming back for Book Shoe. Jacoby looked to be in fine form in the opener against the Thomas club.

The pitchers seem to be in excellent form in the district and batters are not breaking any former average mark at this stage of the game. However, when the real warm weather comes around there is going to be quite a noticeable change in the hitting of some of the leaders, especially in the City League. The veterans are going to start to hit, then look out!

After the Pirates and Cardinals complete their National League setto at Forbes Field Saturday afternoon, the Homestead Grays and the Homewood club will trot out on the turf for a twilight game, scheduled to commence at 6:30 o'clock.

SHARKEY TO HURL

This is the first of a series between these clubs and both are eager to grab off victory, insuring a keenly-fought contest. The Homewood pitcher will likely be Walter Sharkey, the former Massillon Agathons' hurler, who a couple of seasons back defeated the Boston Braves and compelled the Pirates to travel 11 innings to gain a decision, 6 to 5. Sharkey was with Terre Haute in the Three-Eye League last season.

Smoky Joe Williams or Lefty Williams will do the pitching for the Grays. On Sunday, the Grays will appear at Youngstown, O., against the Youngstown Civics at Idora Park.

Rain washed out the entire sandlot card last evening, causing a wholesale postponement of league and independent tussles.

Beaver County Meet Tomorrow

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., May 8.—The thirtieth annual Beaver County High School track and field meet will be held here tomorrow afternoon with Ellwood City favored to win the title for the third consecutive year. The Tubers were impressive with a well-balanced team in the Geneva Interscholastic meet last week and are top heavy favorites despite the fact Paul McMurdo, 440 and 880 star, and Mike Dunn, hurdle expert, will not be competing because of the W. P. I. A. L. semester rule.

New Brighton and Beaver Falls are expected to be the chief rivals of the Ellwood City team.

Jap College Nine Downs Notre Dame

SOUTH BEND, May 8.—(AP.)—Hosei University of Japan yesterday took the first game of a two-game series from Notre Dame, 4 to 1, behind great pitching by S. Suzuki. Suzuki held the Irish to three hits and was given perfect support. The Japanese batted Romanin from the box in the sixth, but got only two hits off Lisicki during the last three sessions. The score by innings:

Permits to play on the new North and South County Parks golf links are being issued by City Office Manager John Jay Burke. Above is that of Mike Galido, Schenley Park star and member of the local team in the national public parks tournament the last three years.

COUNTY PARKS PERMITS READY

John Jay Burke, city office manager for the Allegheny County parks, in charge of issuing permits for golf play and locker space from his office in the new County Building, has announced that all applications for permits must be accompanied by a tax receipt paid within a year of the date the application is made.

Those desiring permits to play golf also must bring with them a photograph an inch square, to be placed upon the permit for identification purposes. Permits will not be issued until these photographs are obtained, Burke said.

Sale of Hendrick Move to Get Kolp

NEW YORK, May 8.—(INS.)—Sale of Harvey Hendrick by the Brooklyn Robins to the Cincinnati Reds today was put down in some quarters as the first step in a move to obtain Pitcher Ray Kolp for the Robins.

So keen is Manager Wilbert Robinson to get Kolp that he has offered the Reds a choice of Ray Moss, Hollis Thurston, Pea Ridge Day and Austin Moore, with Hendrick thrown in.

"We need a right-hander who can beat the Chicago Cubs," Robinson told President York of the Robins. "And Kolp is the man who can do it."

SPORT SHORTS

MINNEAPOLIS.—(AP.)—The Minneapolis club, of the American Association, has signed Bob Meusel, former star outfielder of the New York Yankees, Manager Mike Kelly has announced. Meusel, now a free agent and living in Hollywood, Cal., will report not later than next Monday.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass.—(AP.)—Springfield's Eastern League club defeated the Boston Braves in an exhibition game here yesterday afternoon, 4 to 3, scoring the winning tally with two out in the ninth on O'Connell's single. Rabbit Maranville, product of the Springfield sandlots, was presented a floral horseshoe and a purse of money.

BENTON HARBOR, Mich.—(AP.)—Neil McIntyre, Indianapolis professional, led the field at the end of the 36 holes of the Blossom Festival open golf tournament here. His 145 was two strokes better than the score of Johnny Dawson, Chicago amateur. Al Espinosa was third with 186, and Maurie Wells, of Grand Rapids, Mich., fourth with 190. The tournament, which offers $1,000 in prizes, will end today.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—(AP.)—Jim McMillen and Billy Bartush wrestled for 45 minutes without a fall here last night. The referee and judges ruled it a draw. Glenn Stafford, of Cornell, pinned George Tragos, of St. Louis, in 10:43 with a body scissors and wristlock. Hans Steinke, of Germany, threw Willie Davis, of Virginia, in 12:20.

BOSTON.—(AP.)—Al Morelli, Boston College football star, won his first main wrestling match here last night by tossing Pat McKay, of Memphis, Tenn., twice in 11 minutes. The collegian flattened his opponent in 15 minutes with an inside crotch and body slam and gained the deciding fall in 26 minutes with a flying tackle.

MARTINS FERRY, O.—Twelve teams are participating today and tomorrow in an Eastern Ohio baseball tournament, winners of which will play in the state tournament. The 1930 Class A title was won by Martins Ferry.

NEW YORK.—(AP.)—Morton Kaer, all-America halfback at Southern California in 1926, has been signed by the New York Giants professional football team as field captain. Kaer will take the place of Benny Friedman, who has retired from professional play to coach the Yale backfield and trade in stocks on the New York Curb Exchange.

Coast League Pilot, Player In Fight

LOS ANGELES, May 8.—(INS.)—Oscar Vitt, manager of the Hollywood Stars, today was more or less battered following a fist fight here last night with Julian Wera, third baseman for the San Francisco Seals. The trouble started, it was said, when Vitt, on the coaching line, began "to ride" Wera. Both men were ousted from the game after they were separated.

PRIMO, GARDEN COURT FIGHT ADJOURNED

NEW YORK, May 8.—(AP.)—Federal Judge John Knox today heard arguments on the suit for an injunction brought by the Madison Square Garden of Illinois to prevent Primo Carnera from fighting Jack Sharkey before he carried out a contract with it, ordered brief to be filed and adjourned the action.

Judge Knox gave Carnera until Monday to file an answer to affidavits filed by the Garden today in support of its claim and indicated he would make a decision on the case sometime next week.

George W. Whiteside, counsel for the Garden, argued that the Garden had Carnera signed to a legal contract, one provision of which he would break by fighting Sharkey, June 10. The argument of Carnera's lawyer, George Sylvester, was that Carnera would be committing an illegal act by meeting the winner of the Max Schmeling-Young Stribling fight, since both those boxers were under suspension in New York state, and therefore the contract itself was illegal.

ILLEGAL ACT

The illegal act, Sylvester said, would be the breaking of a rule of the New York State Athletic Commission, a rule which, he said, had all the weight of the law under the act of the Legislature creating the commission.

Judge Knox inquired if it was not true that Carnera was under suspension himself when he signed the contract.

Sylvester admitted it was, but said he had since been reinstated and therefore could not now fight a suspended boxer without breaking the rule.

COMMISSION SCORED

"From what I read in the papers," Judge Knox remarked, "it appears the New York State Athletic Commission suspends and reinstates fighters at will."

Sylvester protested that remark and said the commission always had a reason for suspending a boxer.

Gummy Gasolines

Why Tydol Gasolines Are 99 98/100% Gum-Free

1. SELECTED CRUDES
Crudes selected for their cleanliness are "multi-fractionated" by super-refining equipment costing millions. Each crude gets the exact degree of refining it requires.

2. "GUM-TAPPED"
In towering fractionation stills of the most advanced type, Hi-test TYDOL is refined to gum-free purity. The gum-carrying gasoline is drawn off for re-distillation long before the refining process is completed.

3. GUM-FREE BLENDING

"Gum-tapped"

..but TYDOL Gasolines are 99 98/100% Gum-Free

You will find GUM in improperly or hastily refined gasolines.

For Hi-test TYDOL is 99 98/100% gum-free!

BLAEHOLDER, SORRELL GET FIRST WINS

Associated Press.

Howley made a few more changes yesterday, buying Harvey Hendrick, Brooklyn utility man, to plug the hole at first base, and releasing Chuck Dressen, but it appears that he has plenty of work ahead of him. Two Red outfielders, Wally Roettger and Cliff Heathcote, are pounding the ball at a .400 clip, but no other player on the team is even near the .300 mark. The return of Ed Roush hasn't worked out and Nick Cullop has not been hitting. Joe Stripp, a .300 hitter last year, has the best mark of the infielders, .268, while Chuck Cuccinello, who was expected to do some slugging, is barely above .200.

PITCHING WEAK

The Reds' pitching also has been ineffective. Si Johnson turned in seven good innings against the Cubs yesterday only to weaken and Chicago hammered out five successive hits in the eighth to tie the score at 4-4. The Cubs pushed over another run off Ray Kolp in the eleventh to win, 5-4, for Cincinnati's fifteenth defeat in 17 games. Kolp won one of the two victories and Red Lucas, who has gone the route four times, took the other.

The league-leading St. Louis Cardinals won their seventh game in a row yesterday, combining good pitching and powerful hitting to beat Pittsburgh 11 to 5. Jess Haines gave the Pirates only seven hits while the Cards got that many in the fourth inning, putting over five runs and then coming back after a shower to add four more in the fifth.

The St. Louis Browns, by far less successful than their townsmen so far, did about as well yesterday. They got started in the fifth inning and pounded four Cleveland pitchers for a total of 17 hits and a 10-to-4 victory. George Blaeholder yielded 13 blows but he kept them well scattered to turn in his first victory of the season.

SORRELL WINS FIRST

Vic Sorrell, of Detroit, also recorded his first win of the year, holding the Chicago White Sox to nine hits as the Tigers won, 6 to 1. Detroit collected four hits and as many runs off Al Thomas before he retired the second man in the opening inning.

The Eastern clubs of the American League had an open date as they began their first western trip of the year and New York and Boston in the National also were not scheduled. Brooklyn's game at Philadelphia was rained out.

RAIN CURTAILS M.-A. CARD

Rain played havoc with the inauguration of play in the Middle Atlantic League yesterday, only three games out of the six scheduled being played, and only one of these going the full nine innings.

In a slugfest at Scottdale, the Scotties opened their seventh season in the league by taking a 16-11 pasting from the Beckley, W. Va., entry, a newcomer in the league this year. The game was called at the end of the sixth inning. A total of 31 hits were made by the two teams, with Beckley getting 19 of them.

HONUS UMPIRE

Honus Wagner, former Pirate star, was an honored guest of the local management, and was induced to form one of a trio of umpires. He willingly consented and was stationed at third. Joe Smith, young Cardinal pitcher, was presented with a traveling bag by the Uniontown American Legion. The box score:

Charleroi and Wheeling started their game at Charleroi, but rain interfered and ended hostilities in the second inning. The Huntington-Charleston and Fairmont-Clarksburg games were postponed.

AUTOMOBILE OUTPUT EXCEEDS SEASONAL INCREASE

MOTOR GAINS SUSTAINED IN APRIL

Second Quarter Output May Top First 30 to 40%; Increase 18% Over March

NEW YORK, May 8.—Automobile production in April experienced highly favorable gains, with increases in schedules by several large manufacturers in the latter part of the month carrying the total for the industry somewhat above earlier forecasts. In the absence of final figures, returns received so far indicate that April output in the United States and Canada was in excess of 340,000 cars and trucks.

On the basis of April results and the outlook for the next two months, it is likely that production in the second quarter will total between 900,000 and 1,000,000 units, unless developments within the near future serve either to depress or stimulate the current retail demand.

YEAR'S PROSPECTS

Such a volume of output would show an increase of 30 per cent to 40 per cent over the first quarter and would represent three months of operations at a rate somewhat higher than in March, when the industry earned the greater part of its first quarter profits.

If production in the current quarter is close to 1,000,000, a normal seasonal trend in business over the balance of the year, as represented by the six-year average, would bring production in the second half to between 1,300,000 and 1,400,000 units, compared with 1,200,000 in the second half of 1930, and total output for the year to about 3,000,000 cars and trucks compared with 3,509,178 in 1930.

RESEMBLES 1922

On the other hand, a sustained retail demand for cars over the summer and early fall months, which is looked for by some interests in the industry, would result in a more favorable comparison in second half output with the probable record for the first six months. Such a performance is not unprecedented in the history of the industry, particularly in periods immediately preceding an expansion in business.

The April results represent a gain of 18 per cent or more over the March total of 289,334 units, the largest percentage increase in April production which has occurred since 1922, when, with the industry emerging from the depression of 1921, April output advanced to 230,866 units from 182,025 in March of that year, a gain of 26 per cent. In April, 1930, the increase over March production was 12 per cent, while the average gain over the past six years has amounted to 6 per cent.

LONE STAR NET SHOWS GAIN

The Lone Star Gas Corporation reports net earnings available for common stock after operating expenses, taxes, depreciation and preferred dividends for April of $615,186. This compares with net of $376,663 for the same month last year, an increase of 63.6 per cent.

Earnings for four months total $2,414,827 compared with $3,371,477, an increase of $43,350 or 1.2 per cent.

Government to Act On Standard Merger

WASHINGTON, May 8.—The United States government, before the end of the current month, will act on the question of appealing the lower court decision in the Standard Oil Company of New York-Vacuum Oil Company merger in which it was held that it was not a violation of the old Standard Oil dissolution decree.

If the lower court decision is appealed it will be taken directly to the United States Supreme Court.

Grigsby to Start Auto Radio Output

CHICAGO, May 8. April sales of Grigsby-Grunow Company were $2,409,792. Production on the Motor Majestic, the new automobile radio set, will begin this month.

Stock Exchange Topics

International Nickel's Prospects for 1931 Held Good.

Predictions from Canada this year have been that International Nickel will make a better showing relatively than other metal companies. This, it is contended, will be due to the diversification of products. Distress selling has come into the issue at times, just as other stocks have met a similar supply, and the new buying that developed was not sufficient to absorb all the offerings.

Although Republic Steel suffered severely during the business depression and no indication is seen of an early change, some interests have been picking up the stock on a scale whenever it has met heavy selling. They have acted on the theory that some of the supply represented forced liquidation, and that the company will show improvement when the steel industry generally turns for the better. Cornservative commission houses have advised clients against this practice, however, and that has limited outside demand despite the low prices.

W. T. Grant reports earnings only every six months, but in some quarters it is believed that the company has done comparatively well so far this year. The gain in sales has been consistent. Last year's operations completed a decade in which new records were made in sales and profits each year. The management has been conservative, only 28 per cent of the earnings having been paid out as dividends since 1921. At present, the stock is on a basis of $1 a share a year.

Interests in American Machine and Foundry have high hopes of increased earnings as a result of commendation in the trade for the new "Super-Standard" cigaret making machines for efficiency and increased speed. The company is in a strong trade position, and the outlook is considered satisfactory by the management. The company has grown consistently in the past seven years. Retirement of the preferred stock last year has strengthened the position of the common shares.

Power and light stocks ran into a flurry of selling yesterday, coincident with a sudden sharp drop in Columbia Gas and Electric in the course of the noon hour. Aside from the weekly figures on electric energy output, which made their appearance Wednesday, there was nothing in the way of fresh news to explain the weakness in that issue. At the bottom price of the day Columbia Gas was in new low territory for the bear market. Selling, which forced it down, was looked upon as a combination of liquidation influenced by unfavorable earnings, and in part offerings for bear account. The stock went ex its regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents the middle of last month, with payment to be made on May 15, next. Directors are not due to meet for action on the next quarterly payment until some time in June.

A smart increase in activity in the bond market yesterday, with sustained strength in high-grade issues principally in those of the legal class, conveyed the impression that the investment world was inclined to anticipate the reduction in the New York Bank rate and adjustment of interest rates which such a development would make necessary. Lowering of the bank rate would very likely result in something in the way of corresponding reduction in the interest rate paid on Clearing House bank deposits. The rate on such deposits is now down to 1 per cent so that any further reduction would be tantamount to elimination of interest in such deposits. A development of that nature would certainly tend to drive a considerable part of such funds in search of more lucrative employment with the bond market offering perhaps the most attractive opportunity at the moment.

WHEAT FREIGHT CUT DELAYED

CHICAGO, May 8.—A temporary Federal Court order today restrained for 60 days an application of reduced freight rates on wheat throughout the western district.

The order was granted on application of 72 western and eastern railroads and has the affect of delaying for five weeks the new rates which had been ordered effective June 1 by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The commission's order, increasing rates on many coarse grains, but lowering them on wheat, was first ordered effective last October 1, but its enforcement was delayed several times at the request of the railroads. Their counsel contended the commission misinterpreted its powers and that it also disregarded the Supreme Court's interpretation of the Hoch-Smith congressional resolution of 1925 by lowering to the "lowest possible lawful" point rates which the carriers contended already were reasonable.

Screw and Bolt April Sales Increased

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

SALES AND EARNINGS of the Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt Corporation continue to reflect a moderate improvement in the company's business. Volume is still at an unsatisfactory level, but operations have been definitely re-established on a profitable basis after several months of production at a loss.

April was the best month for the company since last October and May is showing further improvement. This leads to the belief that earnings for the second quarter will be far more encouraging than results for the two preceding three-month periods.

Earnings declined steadily during 1930 until the final quarter of the year, which showed a loss of $39,637 after all charges. In the first quarter of 1931 a profit of only $3,192 was reported. It is understood that January and February operations were at a loss and that this was entirely made up from March earnings.

Cash Position Strong

DIVIDEND REQUIREMENTS have not been earned since the first quarter of 1930, but a strong cash position has permitted directors to continue the payment of regular dividends at the annual rate of $1.40 a share. The organization and its predecessor company have an unbroken dividend record extending back to 1898.

The continuation of the present dividend rate will be largely dependent on the prospects for improvement in the company's business.

The balance sheet shows adequate resources to permit the payment of dividends over a fairly long period. Current assets on March 31 of $7,089,446 were 6.4 times current liabilities. Cash amounted to $1,951,436. This item alone was in excess of all current liabilities of $1,102,101. In addition to cash the company held marketable securities with a quoted value of $1,918,080.

Buys Own Stock

DURING THE PAST YEAR the company has made purchases of its own stock from time to time. The last statement showed that 35,784 shares were held at a cost of $556,259. This has reduced the number of shares outstanding to 1,464,216.

The company has no preferred stock. Funded debt amounts to $3,926,000 of debenture 5½s, which does not appear large in comparison to physical properties carried at $9,050,512 after deducting reserves for depreciation. Interest charges were earned 8.5 times in 1930 and 17.8 times in 1929.

Effects of Depression

THE BUSINESS DEPRESSION exerted an increasingly marked influence on earnings as 1930 progressed but, in spite of this, net profit for the year was $1,397,053 or 93 cents a share. This compared with $3,271,749 or $2.18 a share in 1929.

The continuation of regular dividend payments made it necessary to dip into surplus for $693,113 in 1930. A further deduction of $509,278 to provide for dividend payments in the first quarter of this year left earned surplus at $1,745,902 on March 31.

The present corporation, which was formed early in 1929 as a merger of three organizations, has a paid-in surplus of $8,518,706.

© 1931, LIGGETT & MYERS TOBACCO CO.

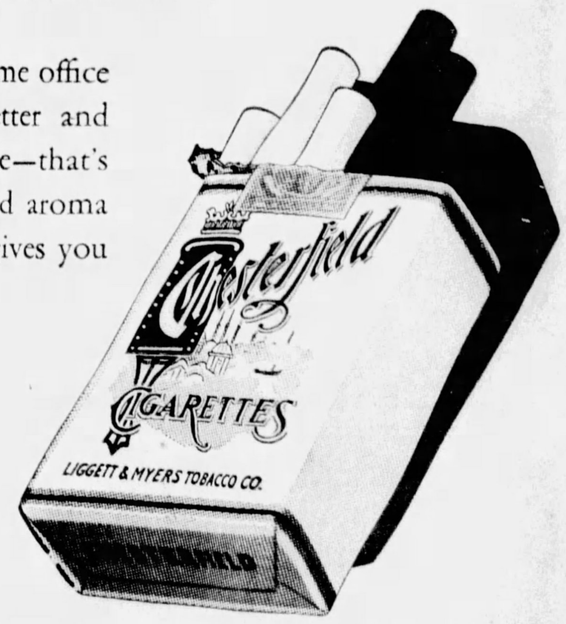
Knee-deep in a swirling salmon stream—or even deeper in some office problem—you relish the taste of a good cigarette. And the better and milder the tobaccos, the better the taste and the milder the smoke—that's bound to follow. What you taste in Chesterfield is the flavor and aroma of the tobaccos themselves. Chesterfield's blend and cross-blend gives you a fragrance and delicacy you'll find in no other cigarette.



FOR NINETEEN years, our Research Department has kept intimate touch with every new development of Science that could be applied to the manufacture of cigarettes. During this period there has been no development of tested value or importance to the smoker which we have not incorporated into the making of Chesterfield cigarettes.

GERARD SWOPE PRACTICES AS HE PREACHES

General Electric in Van Of Corporations Showing Consideration for Labor

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
United Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, May 8.

A man who supplements wise talk with consistent action is doubly worth listening to.

Gerard Swope, president of General Electric Company, practices as a business man what he preached as an industrial reformer in his address before the International Chamber of Commerce. Incidentally the General Electric Company has been at the vanguard of big corporations which have shown adult judgment in their relations with labor. Not only has the company a vastly superior setup for employe investments than the average corporation, but it also has been a pioneer in giving unemployment relief.

Mr. Rukeyser

SYSTEM INADEQUATE

The ruthlessness with which some employes in time of depression turn loyal and competent workers out into the streets constitutes a serious indictment of American business management. It is true that many of the larger employers sought to meet the emergency by rotating part time employment among many men instead of continuing a smaller number on the payroll for full time employment. But such an adjustment though helpful, is only a makeshift.

The broader need for the future is to set up special funds as unemployment reserves. In the light of the existing depression it is apparent that numerous executives did not properly figure their labor costs. They predicated their calculations on the illusory assumption that the progression of earnings and volume would continue uninterrupted through the years.

UNEMPLOYMENT RESERVES

Part of what seemed to be profits under a more scientific form of bookkeeping would have been allocated to unemployment reserves. Employers in their calculations undervalued the prospects for depression. They overestimated the real character of boom profits, and they indulged in an orgy of melon cutting in behalf of stockholders, without making ample provision for reserves for labor.

Instead of putting loyal and competent employes at the mercy of public charity in the future, Mr. Swope advocates plans whereby industries themselves will assume responsibility for their own workers. The General Electric Company has already set up a mechanism for this concept which is now in operation.

UPWARD TREND PREVAILS IN MARKET

Traders Take Advantage Of Chain Store Reports And Try to Start Rally

NEW YORK, May 8.—(AP.)—Bullish efforts in the merchandising shares gave a sluggish stock market an upward slant today.

The financial markets made no pronounced response to the reduction of the New York rediscount rate from 2 to 1½ per cent, although bonds continued to improve. In stocks, fluctuations have been steadily narrowing since the selling climax of last week, and traders took advantage of relatively satisfactory chain store sales reports for April to try to start a rally.

A tabulation showing aggregate sales of 35 chain store systems for the first four months of the year showed a reduction of only 3 per cent from the like period of last year. In view of the decline in prices, and the slackening of chain store expansion, this line of activity has held up better than several others.

The mail order companies, however, make a less favorable showing, the aggregate for three concerns showing a reduction of about 11¼ per cent.

The complete report of building contracts let in the states east of the Rockies in April is more favorable than separate reports for the earlier weeks of the month had indicated. The decline from last year is reduced to about 9 per cent. The aggregate level of building activity remains the lowest in recent years for this season.

The reduction in the rediscount rate was soon reflected in the call loan market. Loans renewed at 1½ per cent, but the rate was shaded to 1 per cent after midday. Commercial paper was also easier.

Wall street was not surprised that stocks failed to receive important stimulus from the lower rediscount rate, for it was recalled that several of the preceding reductions have been greeted with continued declines in prices. There was a tendency in many quarters, however, to regard the move as constructive.

SHARON HOOP'S ORDERS GAIN

SHARON, May 8.—While the plant itself has not increased operations above the 65 per cent of capacity basis, officials of Sharon Steel Hoop Company report orders being received are the strongest of any time in the past two years. Indications were given operating schedules would be increased in the future. Other plants in the Shenango Valley are maintaining their present schedule of operations. At American Steel and Wire plant, the galvanized pipe department is working full time, after being on a three-day-a-week schedule most of the winter.

DAILY TRUE STORY

Amateur?

Delancy Solves Another Murder Mystery

"What do you make of it?" Hogan asked.

"You answer, you're on the case. I just dropped in," Sergeant Morrisy laughed, a short, crisp laugh. "To tell the truth, it looks like one of those cases."

"I know—that's what I make of it."

"But the newspapers, the public, Hogan — you know what happens? They never understand that there are thousands of unsolvable cases. They will say that the police department fell down again."

Hogan nodded.

"Look here. I've got a friend who is a wizard at this sort of thing. I'd like to send for him."

"I doubt if he'd snap at the offer, Sergeant. I'll tell you who he is, but there must be no publicity."

"All right — I'm listening, Hogan."

Sergeant Consents

"Marvin Delancy."

"You mean the Marvin Delancy—the swell?"

"Right, Sergeant."

"What sort of a pipe dream is this, Hogan? How long you been chumming around with Marvin Delancy? He's the real goods, one of the old New York aristocrats."

"He's interested in our line. He has helped me several times," and Hogan told Morrisy how he became acquainted with Delancy.

Sergt. Morrisy shook his head.

"Delancy's all right as a rich young swell, but he's like all these other saps, these amateur detectives—not only useless, but in the way. He's one of those birds who believe the detective stories about wealthy society chaps turning detective. Forget him—don't want him messing in this."

Hogan did Delancy full justice.

"Hello, Peter—what's on your mind?" Delancy greeted Hogan over the wire.

"Something you can't solve. Want to come over? We'd be glad to have you," and Hogan gave him the address. Delancy did not expect Hogan to give details over the telephone.

In due time Marvin Delancy was admitted to the home of the late Jonas Gatley—very late, indeed, for he hadn't been dead more than six hours or so. The policeman at the door had his orders to let Delancy in.

"Sergt. Morrisy may be trusted to secrecy, Mr. Delancy. There will be no publicity. We're stumped and, more than that, you will be. I thought of you because I wanted you to get up against one of those real cases, where there is no solution."

"If you cannot solve this, I'm sure it will be beyond me," he said, and to Morrisy, "I've always been deeply interested in detective work, it's almost a hobby with me. Not that I ever intend adopting it as a profession. It is a keen pleasure to me to get into this, and keen pleasures are becoming rare. Tell me about it, Robbery?"

"No, sir," Morrisy said, "Mr. Gatley has been killed."

"Jonas Gatley dead? Tut-tut, amazing. I knew him slightly; fine old man. Robbery, of course, was the object. I don't believe he had an enemy."

"That's the point," Hogan started to explain; "there is no sign of robbery"

Informed About Case

"No clues, finger marks, anything? But of course not, you would have found them."

"Coming to that, Mr. Delancy," Hogan said, "Mr. Gatley's revolver was on the table here. Only his own finger marks on it. We think that whoever killed him took the gun out of the drawer with a handkerchief and left it there, fool enough to think it might point at suicide. As if that could be, when he was shot square through the back of the head."

"The most amazing thing—here, let me show you," and Serg. Morrisy, secretly pleased to see this amateur so completely stumped, produced a sheet of white paper. It was a fine quality of linen paper.

One word was written on it, "God."

Gatley's fountain pen was also on the desk table.

"We found that paper there. Gatley's finger prints are on the pen. We are assured by the servants that the word is in the dead man's handwriting. There's the problem for you, Mr. Delancy," Morrisy said.

"Gatley," Delancy said, "could not have written the word after he was shot. I know he was not a religious man. Have you talked with his lawyer?"

Attorney Arrives

"That's so, a man's lawyer knows his business and other secrets, I'll be getting him." Hogan went out to talk with the butler.

"How about other servants?" Delancy asked the sergeant.

"Cook and housekeeper come in daily but do not sleep here. Only the butler and valet sleep here. There is no doubt but what the man was alone."

"Then how about some door or window being forced? Any marks?"

"Not necessarily."

"But who would let the murderer in?"

"Gatley was quite sprightly for a man of his years," Delancy pointed out. "He might have gone to the door and admitted the man himself."

Mr. Tucker, the Gatley attorney, arrived. He was aghast and also angry that the servants had not notified him.

"His fortune was safe and sound. He owed no man and had wronged no man or woman. It is quite beyond me," the attorney declared. "There wasn't a reason on earth to murder him."

"There, what did I tell you, Mr. Delancy?" Morrisy exclaimed. "Here is murder done without reason."

Told About Escape

Delancy went back to the dictionary and jotted down something.

"About this word, 'God,'" he said to the attorney, "is it written in his handwriting?"

"Assuredly, but Jonas Gatley was the last man to ever write the word—he was never religious."

"It might not be meant for the Deity, gentleman," Delancy said. "It might be only part of a word. Now, Mr. Tucker," and he turned to the attorney, "here are some words beginning with 'god,' tell me if any of them remind you of anything or anyone connected with Mr. Gatley," and then Delancy read the following:

"Godchild, Godiva, Godwin, Godfrey—"

"What?" the attorney said, startled.

"Godfrey—did Mr. Gatley know a person of that name?"

"Yes, his cousin, but this doesn't solve it, for Godfrey Andrews has been under lock and key in a private insane asylum for 20 years."

"Unless," Delancy said, "he escaped. In that case Mr. Gatley would have admitted him, then feared him and started to have written something about him. Fearing he would be killed, he might have put his gun on the table himself, for protection."

The attorney's telephoned query to this private asylum brought an exclamation of horror from him. Godfrey Andrews had escaped from that asylum in the night or early morning!

"There's your solution, and the reason is—something between these men 20 or more years ago," Delancy said.

Sergt. Morrisy apologized.

"We need more amateurs—like you, Mr. Delancy," he said.

"Thank you. Call me in again some time, if you will be so good."

"I sure will, sir," the sergeant promised.

Rarick. Wire your bid."

"And what then?"

And what then? She sat up in bed at that, her nightgown, plain but impeccably sheer, falling down off one shoulder, her brick-colored, eccentric hair, which she wore brushed up perpendicularly off her ears as if to accentuate the narrowness of her face, falling in thin spray along her shoulders. A sort of tremor, faint as a blue flame, seemed to burn along the pale wick of her lips, making them flicker.

She was not the one to cajole with any grace. Her thin face, in a way that was no longer lovely to him, propped on its elbow, was all covered over with an expression that, starting at her lips, had burst like paper into flame. She desired with an intensity that was embarrassing. It grated Rarick horribly to see her wanting anything. It stretched her face so, drawing the tight skin back further still from the bony outline, nakedly, like a person biting down pain.

Very Wealthy

"I suppose I am a richer man than Breckenridge."

"Hellman figures you out about the thirteenth richest man in the world, Rarick. Know that?"

As a matter of fact, he did. His confidential secretary, Harry Hellman, an exceedingly stout young Jew, with excellent qualifications for his position, had called his attention to that new fact only that week. He had thought about it subsequently and with the sustained sort of incredulity that had caused him to clutch toward reality by repeating to himself such phrases as: I am a rich man.

I am a very rich man. Me, John Rarick, born in Fancy Prairie, Iowa, October 7, 1870, son of Anna Masey Rarick and John Geoffrey Rarick, m, Jenny Avery, St. Louis, 1898. President, Rarick Chain, Inc. Vice president, Dime Savings Bank. Vice president, Ajoy Soap Company. Board directors, Dime Savings Bank. Board directors, Corn Belt Traction Company. Vice president, Empire State Trust Company, Vice president, Croton Mills. Trustee, Guaranty Trust Association. Director, St. Louis Art Center, Municipal Opera Company, Americana Association, Lapidarian Club Society, Hispano Association, Society for the Preservation of Indian Culture, Missouri Historical Association. Member of . . . Me, John G. . . . all those . . . me, John!

Filled With Resentment

Coming from Jenny the selfsame statement that had caused him a rise of goose-flesh when Hellman had called his attention to this new notch on his hickory stick, filled him with a dull resentment.

What new desires and cravings and ambitions for herself, and, worst of all, crazy plots for her children, were there left to set in motion?

What was it that being the wife of the thirteenth richest man in the world could give her that she had not enjoyed as the wife of the thirteenth hundredth richest man in the world?

It did not seem so long ago to Rarick when their first car, a pretty sedan, had stood new and shiny one Sunday morning at the curbstone of their seven-room house on Kensington avenue, and Jenny with his overcoat thrown over her kimono, had rushed out to try its upholstery. There had been a small tag on the steering wheel reading "Good morning, Jenny. Your street car days are over. Rarick."

That was about as demonstrative as Rarick could bring himself to be even back in the days before their fairy tale had begun to happen.

"Good morning, Jenny. Your street car days are over," he had written during the fifth year of their marriage. During the first year he had sent her a modest little traveling case for a birthday present, but the card had read: "Pack my love and some of our dreams in this for our walking trip through the Pyrenees."

That had been before the acquisitive, tight-skinned look had spread itself over the face of Jenny; before the fox had leaned out of the nervous and intelligently homely face of the girl he had been proud of himself for choosing from a world that seemed to him populated with girls with no faces at all, only a vacuous geometry of pleasantly related features.

No one but God and Rarick knew that the dowry that went with Jenny had played no part in his choice.

Startled by Thought

Behind her reminder to him that he was the thirteenth richest man in the world there trailed the unspoken tagline, "thanks to the start I gave you by intrusting you with my inheritance," a string of words which, spoken or unspoken, traveled through him in a groove that innuendo had worn down, his live nerves the trolley of transmission. Rebuttal would have meant the fatal act of admission to her implied word. Rarick had learned various kinds of silences.

"I haven't minded the years of your stubborn refusal to pretty nearly everything I've asked for myself, Rarick. It is Jennifer now. I want the child to see the light of her fifteenth birthday in the Ficke house. That's not asking much of a man many times a millionaire. The pity is that it has to be coaxed out of you."

Under cover of Jenny's steady runnel of accusative and importuning talk, he began to reason with himself, to calm himself, to rid his mind of the taste of the phrase that had shot through his mind in sacrilege to this woman who shared his bed.

MOSCOW. — Well, friends, here I am, as busy as a bird dog, finding out what I can about Russia. Today I succeeded in getting the above snapshot scoop which shows the shortage of saddle horses among the former aristocracy. As I peeked through the transom at this charming lady, I explained to her that I was trying to get familiar with things in Russia. She invited me in and told me that the nation now has 9,628 miles of railroad track. Her husband happened home just then and made a great impression upon me.

Tax Relief Proposals

Controller Kerr's Call for Rigid Economy and Efficient Management Is the Better Plan.

Two city officials have come forward with suggestions for lightening the taxpayers' burden.

City Treasurer Schooley hails a bill introduced in the Legislature which would permit the city to issue bonds with delinquent taxes as security.

He also advocates the return to the city of some of the automobile license and gasoline taxes collected here by the state.

These proposals may have merit, but it is hard to become enthusiastic over them, because they savor of the policy of "robbing Peter to pay Paul."

The plan for tax relief advocated by City Controller Kerr in his speech to the Rotary Club has more to commend it. Controller Kerr calls for "rigid economy" and "efficient management" in municipal affairs.

Extravagance and mismanagement, as disclosed in the recent investigation of the Department of Supplies, have played an appreciable part in raising the tax rate to its present level.

Pymatuning Bill Signed

Completion of Dam Project Will Bring Many Benefits to Western Pennsylvania.

The Legislature has done wisely in deciding to finish the job without further delay. The state has been committed to the project for many years and has already spent not a little money on it.

Completion of the work will be an occasion for celebration in which the people of all Western Pennsylvania and Eastern Ohio may fittingly join, for the benefits that are to accrue from the improvement will extend over a wide area.

Pymatuning Swamp, which lies in Crawford and Mercer counties and adjacent Ohio territory, is to be transformed by a dam into a lake covering 16,240 acres. This will be of inestimable benefit to the industrial plants in the Shenango and Beaver valleys by permitting regulation of the stream flow. The reservoir will give protection both from floods and excessively low stages of water.

Scarcely less important are the recreational advantages to be provided by so large a lake, with its facilities for fishing, hunting and water sports.

Tech's Sharpshooters

It Is a Fine Thing for the Country to Have Young Men Who Can Shoot Rifles Accurately.

The awarding of the William Randolph Hearst trophy for rifle competition today to the Carnegie Tech Reserve Officers' Training Corps, winners of third place in the eastern section for senior units, is one of the most interesting events connected with the annual review of the corps.

Pittsburgh may well be proud of the record set by the local institution's marksmen. Carnegie Tech teams have won the third prize three times in sectional competition.

It is a fine thing for the nation to have young men who can shoot rifles accurately, for the rifle remains the weapon on which we largely depend for protection from enemies.

Floor Scrubbing

Now That the Work Can Be Done by Machine, What Is to Become of the Scrubwomen?

A machine has been invented which scrubs floors much more quickly than the work can be done by hand. One has been installed at the courthouse.

Every humane person will be glad to know that the women, generally elderly, who are employed as charwomen in office buildings can now be relieved of the back-breaking toil of scrubbing floors.

It is a rather shameful commentary on our civilization that many gray haired women have had to spend their nights on their knees with scrubbing brushes in gloomy skyscrapers to keep body and soul together.

The scrubwomen may, however, ask what they are to do to earn a living if their jobs are to be taken away from them by the new machine. Arduous as their toil was, it permitted them to maintain their independence, and was preferable to going to the poorhouse.

The county authorities have fortunately found other work for the scrubwomen. It is to be hoped that others who may install the new labor-saving device will also arrange to keep the women in their employ.

Fireworks Again

Dealers Ask Council to Raise Ban Against Dangerous Celebration.

Patriotism should be encouraged. But it isn't necessary to allow small boys to blow off their fingers or to get lockjaw in order to teach them love of their country or respect the ideals on which our government was founded.

Dealers in fireworks have asked City Council to pass an ordinance permitting the storage, sale and use of fireworks after June 15.

For several years fireworks were distributed under an utterly ridiculous law which permitted merchants to sell them but made criminals of the boys who shot them off. Now the dealers wish us to raise the ban on the noisy form of Independence Day celebration with its accompanying toll of serious accidents.

Love kills time quickly and pleasantly—and then Time returns the compliment by putting love to death by slow torture.

When a girl says she can't decide which of two men to marry, she usually means that she can't decide which of them is going to give her the chance.

Every man is at heart a bit of a romanticist, and when a girl becomes too obvious or too accessible to stir his imagination, she soon discovers that she can't even stir his pulse or his senses—beyond a kiss or two.

There are some things in life which simply won't mix; an artistic career and matrimony; work and alcohol; whoopee and domesticity; business and woman-chasing and love and common sense.

The Eighteenth Amendment is the father of the Nineteenth Mole. I remember, I remember

The house where I was born—
The little gilded rolling-pin,
The mounted hunting-horn;
The mottoes hanging on the walls,
The "newel" by the stairs,
The quaint hand-painted waterfalls
The tidies on the chairs;
Sweet memories, and sad!
But if I saw that house again,
I'd turn and run like mad!

LEIBNITZ'S GIFT TO SCIENCE

By Archibald Henderson

Beyond any doubt, the greatest contribution ever made to the science of mathematics is the calculus. It is embraced in two parts, each the inverse of the other; the differential and integral calculus. This is the most powerful instrument and fruitful discipline in science, since at bottom all advance in science of an essential nature depends upon its processes. At its base lies the principle of continuity, which has been responsible for the greatest scientific advances, throughout the ages.

A controversy, raging for more than two centuries, centered about the question of priority in regard to the invention of the calculus. Although many mathematicians, notably Wallis in England, and Fermat in France, had employed in calculations principles differing not at all from those of the calculus, solid foundations were laid by Sir Isaac Newton and Gottfried Wilhelm von Liebnitz.

A simple statement by Newton himself bears directly on the question. Says Newton:

The correspondence which took place about ten years ago, between that very skilful geometer, G. G. Leibnitz, and myself, when I had announced to him that I possessed a method of determining maxima and minima, of drawing tangents, and of performing similar operations, which was equally applicable to surds and rational quantities . . . this illustrious man replied that he had also fallen on a method of the same kind, and he communicated his method, which scarcely differed from my own, except in the forms of words and notation (and in the idea of generation of quantities).

This, however, did not settle the question of priority. Newton called his method that of Fluxions, Leibnitz called his that of Calculus. Undoubtedly the symbolism of Leibnitz was preferable to that of Newton; and this is demonstrated by the fact that the symbolism of Leibnitz prevailed. A careful study regarding the question of the calculus was made by Brewster, Newton's biographer, who draws the conclusion which has won rather general acceptance:

First, That Newton was the first inventor of the Method of Fluxions; that the method was incomplete in its notation; and that the fundamental principle of it was not published to the world till 1687, 20 years after he had invented it.

Second, That Leibnitz communicated to Newton in 1677 his Differential Calculus, with a complete system of notations, and that he published it in 1684, three years before the publication of Newton's Method.

Leibnitz, born at Leipsic on July 1, 1646, was a mathematical genius; but his early training was in legal and practical matters. As official under the Duke of Brunswick-Luneberg at Hanover, he engaged in important public matters, as divergent as the drainage of mines and the reconciliation of the churches. His deepest interest lay in philosophical and philological studies.

Leibnitz has a place in the history of philosophy as the expositor of the doctrine of monads. This theory has cropped up again and again in the speculations of later philosophers and thinkers. Leibnitz was a great thinker. His great achievement of the invention of the calculus is sufficient greatness for any one man, although he was eminent in other lines. Leibnitz died at Hanover on November 14, 1716.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

People think.

All people think.

All people think about the same things.

Which statements are going to come as a rude shock to certain snooty citizens who think they have a corner on intellectual processes. I know—I was just such a snooty citizen myself.

When I began this work I thought I was different. I was old enough to know better and I'd had plenty of enlightening hard knocks, but I still harbored the delusion that God had made me on a special mold. I thought I saw beauty and felt ugliness where common people did not see or feel them. I thought that I, alone, was puzzled by the mystery of life. Well, maybe a few other Choice Souls like Socrates and King Solomon and Bernard Shaw had noticed it. But privately I was convinced that, in certain matters, I had the bulge on even them. So naturally I was all prepared to Write Down to the proletariat in easy, one-syllable words and ideas, suited to their feeble comprehension.

Well—I started. And, stranger, what a surprise was handed to me!

For, the first thing that happens to you in a job like this is about a million letters. Real letters from real people in every circumstance. I was prepared for the letters. I had expected that most of them would be written on cheap paper, badly worded. They were. I had also expected that most of the writers would rant about the Home Folks rave about their Sweeties, spill the beans on their neighbors and probably ask me a cure for warts. They did. But they also did something else . . . an astonishing, humbling something else—

There—tangled with the common words, the foolish fat-headed ideas — were THOUGHTS. Thoughts that I had thought were the select and special secret of my own soul. Wistful, lovely thoughts written on paper smeared with tenement house grease. Brave, generous thoughts, signed with a number—from some prison cell.

Great Truths, searching questions, jotted down by some "bindle stiff," resting in a hobo jungle. The hands that had written those thoughts were bony with hunger, reeking with cheap, desperate perfume, once—at least—stiff with human blood. But the thoughts that struggled to find expression under those hands knew no limitation of pain or poverty, ignorance or shame. They were the old, old cry of the human soul—reaching toward the Eternal Mystery. They were your thoughts and my thoughts—the thoughts of Lincoln watching, helpless, through the night—of Joan, burning at the stake—of Christ, hanging on the cross.

Ignorance, poverty, social injustice and the mischance of birth had stunted those bodies and warped those brains so that they could not translate thought into normal action. They could dream of beauty and truth and courage and decency, but they could not live them. But their dream was the same as my dream—as your dream—

So I, who had come to condescend, perhaps to scoff, remained to marvel. I no longer think I'm different from the Common Herd. I only hope, humbly, that I'm the same.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELS

Upon This Hill

Upon this hill the world is at our feet;
Let us rest now and watch the day go by,
One who sees here the dawn's pale ranks retreat
Needs must await the sunset's pageantry.
This hill, remote and inaccessible,
Is like a bit of some bright world unknown,
Which we, together straying, call our own.

Upon this hill let us see day go by,
But we must leave before the moon comes up;
I could not ever see the moonbeams lie
Below us in that valley's verdant cup
Or hear one wakened lark's note, sweet and low,
And then go back to that old world we know.

Text For Today And the Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us, (and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father), full of grace and truth.—John, i:14.

Stick to a Job—

Until You are SURE of a Better One.

A GREAT SCIENTIST STICKS TO HIS JOB.

This picture shows Sir Oliver Lodge, born 80 years ago, exercising regularly, that he may have a healthy body as a residence for a strong and healthy mind.

Sir Oliver Lodge has stuck to his job, which is increasing human knowledge, for more than half a century, and has made a success of it.

Whatever is new in science he knows—every important experiment or publication he follows. He keeps up with his work.

The example he sets is useful to the tens of thousands that every day read the classified advertising found in this newspaper.

If you have a good job, HOLD IT until you KNOW that you have a better one.

Never imitate the dog that dropped his bone into the stream to snatch at a shadow.

This doesn't mean that men shouldn't change. Anyone dissatisfied with what he is doing has two ways out. The safest way is to make a success where he is. There is opportunity everywhere.

The next best way is to drop what you are doing, do something else.

If you are sure that something else would suit you better, try to get something else.

The fact that you are busy now will make it easier for you to persuade another that he needs you.

Do well the thing in hand, while you study and plan for the better thing that you might do.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, May 8.—Thoughts while strolling: Rosy-cheeked young Irish cops with the breath of Killarney in their voices. A. N. Aylesworth and Wellington Cross look alike. The versatile Jay Jerome Williams—the Edwin Alger of the comic strips and radio, syndicate manager and lecturer.

Dr. Abraham Flexner, a Louisville (Ky.) boy, who made good in the city. Bill Lengel, who peacemakered the Dreiser-Lewis bout. A turbaned Hindu in a rumble seat. Theodor, former head waiter now directing Ritz Tower. And friends of Molnar and Oppenheim. Shining modernistic fronts on West 34th street.

Julius Tannen looks the same as he did 20 years ago. And he has a grown son. A pineapple drink shop features a Hawaiian guitarist. Dudley Field Malone's pink complexion. Nothing can look so bedraggled as a soiled white poodle. Never hear of "pink eye" any more.

The late and beloved Nick Longworth has a double floor-walking on the avenue. A chalk-faced lady in black wearing a red rose. Every small town has a Lige, but you never meet anyone by that name in New York. Nor anyone called Clint. Or Ab. They are all Als and Daves.

Who remembers when Martin's demanded strictly formal dress? And flopped. And gray derbies with black eyelets in the crown? No one, by the way, is carrying on with a gray derby since Raymond Hitchcock left us. Save Tommy Millard, and he's in far away Shanghai.

Fur store proprietors who stand out front. Spanish dentists. Red nosed, raggedy wrecks hunting cigar snipes. I've always wanted to have one barbered, bathed and outfit him in the latest fashion. Take him to the Ritz to dinner. And write a magazine piece on his reaction.

The front of the Hippodrome looks like a circus side show. I first saw Annette Kellerman there. And where is she? "Apartment For Rent" signs where you never saw them before. Ned Wayburn moves like electricity.

The passing of Dr. George A. Dorsey a few weeks ago removed not only a celebrated anthropologist and author, but the most beloved poker player New York's literati has ever known. To the gang around the green baize table he was "Doc," fervently free of guile and an apple-cheeked gentleman with the disarming smile of a green grocer. He was the highest of high brows and yet as though a trifle ashamed of his intellectual depths he resorted to such ungrammatical nuances as "I seen" and "I done." I once heard him drop his cards to a caller with: "I knowed you had 'em." He was passionately devoted to his scientific studies, a fellow of a score of this and that societies, but among those privileged to his friendships he was just: "Doc, a grand guy."

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Instead of trying to get your money's worth when you attend the theater do you permit the parts of the bill that you dislike to spoil your whole enjoyment?

You can recall when certain parts angered or disgusted you to the extent that you cussed throughout the whole evening.

If you can't overlook the things you dislike and think only of the good acting or the effective scenery or the effect sought, you will have a bad time and go home more tired than when you entered the theater.

You have no idea how hard the players and the artists who helped put over the production have worked against difficulties.

All you care about is to be so amused that you can forget time and have your particular taste satisfied.
